Standard Oil Denies Ersatz Rubber Here Was Stifled

Deal With German Trust Hastened Production, Farish Tells Senate Inquiry

Newhall Is Rubber Czar

ARTHUR B. NEWHALL appointed "dictator" over rubber, natural and synthetic, in United States. Page 4.

'No Apologies'

By Windsor Booth
Post Staff Writer

Standard Oil and the German Dye Trust, I. G. Farbenindustrie pooled their synthetic rubber discoveries before war was declared, with the result that development of synthetic rubber in the United States has been hastened, W. S. Farish, president of the Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), told the Senate Defense Investigating Committee yesterday.

"Standard has no apologies to make for the part it has played and is now playing in the development of synthetic rubber," Farish said, alluding to charges made by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold that the company "stifled" production of a rubber substitute.

"It brought to this country from Germany the I. G. buna rubber invention, now being used in the Government rubber program. Should this program be supplemented by petroleum-butyl rubber, it will be because Standard, through its experience gained in working with vistanex, another I. G. (German) invention, succeeded in developing the butyl formula."

Cooperation in research

Farish said butyl rubber was the outgrowth of research conducted first cooperatively and then separately by the German company and Standard Oil.

"Standard discovered that by adding a minute percentage of another ingredient and changing the process there could be produced a true rubber capable of being vulcanized," he said.

He emphasized that Standard's disclosure of the butyl formula to the Germans in 1938 "could not possibly have had any political or military implications of any kind." All exchange of information about the product was discontinued in January, 1940.

Denies Helping Japanese

Farish spent most of his time before the committee denying charges brought by Arnold that Standard Oil of New Jersey has carried on business with the Axis.

He denied:

1. That as late as 1939, Standard Oil tried to "appease" Japan and continue doing business there without the knowledge of the State Department. He revealed that Standard Oil never did give the Japanese the 100-octane gasoline formula.

2. That after the fall of France, Standard Oil assisted German interests to establish hydrogenation plants in occupied France.

3. That the company made shipments to Italian and German air lines in Brazil, contrary to the

Harvard Student Held in Test Spanking of Girl,10

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Mass., March 31.—A 17-year-old Harvard freshman from Chicago, accused of luring a 10-year-old girl to his room and spanking her so that he could study her psychological reactions, was held in $2500 bail in district court today.

The youth, who was booked as Eugene Golub, pleaded innocent to a charge of indecent assault and battery and was held in $2500 bond for trial.

Police said the youth told them he wanted to determine the psychological effects of a spanking on a child and that he had used a time-set camera for making pictures. Golub was quoted as saying the pictures were mailed to a student of psychology at the University of Chicago.

The affair was placed before the police by City Councilor Michael A. Sullivan, who yesterday encountered the child and her mother in a hospital to which the girl had been taken for examination.

Sullivan said that the girl informed him that a youth had lured her to his room by representing that he was a camera man making screen tests for Hollywood.

WPB Conserves Tin

War Hits Toy Industry

Provision Effective Today

The War Production Board yesterday prohibited retail merchants from selling toothpaste or shaving cream in tubes to any customer who fails to turn in some type of used collapsible tube for each new one purchased.

The provision, first of its kind and effective today, makes retailers responsible for the trade-in transaction and directs that the used tubes thus collected be held subject to WPB orders.

At the same time, the board placed drastic restrictions on future use and production of collapsible tin tubes and prohibited their use entirely for foods, cosmetics and most toilet preparations.

Under the terms of the trade-in provision, a WPB spokesman declared, retailers are liable to penalties prescribed under the second war powers act—a maximum of $10,000 fine and a year's imprisonment—if sales of tube toothpaste or shaving cream are made in violation of the order.

Purchasers will not be required to exchange a used tube of the same type as the tube being purchased.

It was understood that the used tubes eventually would be reprocessed and allocated back to the tube manufacturers—possibly representing the entire supply of tin they can expect for the duration of the war.

The order provides that tubes containing 100 per cent tin may be used only for certain medical ointments and pharmaceutical preparations, while tin-coated tubes must be used for tooth paste and shaving cream.

2 Detective Squads Merged In Shake-Up

10 Men in Bureau Transferred; 38 Police Get New Assignments

A shake-up of the Detective Bureau which included consolidation of the fugitive and robbery squads and the transfer of 10 detectives was announced yesterday with the new assignments of 38 policemen promoted Saturday.

Acting Chief of Detectives Robert J. Barrett announced the Detective Bureau changes. One acting captain, two acting lieutenants and seven detective sergeants were transferred and two squad chiefs were reassigned.

The fugitive squad was combined with the robbery squad and Acting Capt. George M. Little, chief of the former squad, was transferred to a desk lieutenant's post. He will retain the rank of acting captain, it was said.

Lieut. Clyde Nesbitt Strange, chief of the robbery squad, was named to head the new combined group and was given six additional detectives.

Two Squads Trade Men

Two desk lieutenants, Joseph A. Connors and Charles Warfield, were relieved of their assignments and placed on a special detail guarding Government officials. Lieut. Herbert Wanamaker, newly promoted, replaced one of the pair. Detective Sergt. Oscar Mansfield was named relief desk lieutenant.

Detective Sergt. Jacob Wolf was placed in charge of the automobile squad, replacing Lieut. Connors, who handled the squad's duties in addition to being a desk lieutenant.

Two men were added to the homicide squad to take the place of Wanamaker and Detective Sergt. Dan Pittman, the latter being transferred to the robbery fugitive detail. Sergt. Robert V. Murray, who was transferred from the uniform ranks to the Detective Bureau, was assigned to homicide as was Detective Sergt. E. E. Thompson, formerly of the robbery squad.

Detectives Reassigned

Two newly named detective sergeants, William R. Greenfield and Bernard D. Crooke, were placed on the general assignment squad as was Detective Sergt. John Wise, who was transferred from the fugitive squad.

Two men were swapped by the robbery and narcotic squads. Sergts. M. O. Myers was transferred to the former from the latter and Sergt. P. C. Wheeler was assigned to narcotics.

Two lieutenants and a sergeant were transferred from the Fourth Precinct "for the good of the service." They were Lieuts. Bagby

Senate to Act On Small War Plants Today

Bailey Questions Loan Policy, Offers Several Amendments

The Senate yesterday pushed to the brink of passage a bill setting up a 100-million-dollar Smaller War Plants Corporation to mobilize the productive facilities of small business for war work.

Action was forced over until today when Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, questioned loan policies under the new setup and charged the bill in its present form "proposes to run a gift enterprise."

"Five unknowns (the five directors of the proposed corporation), could lend money for any purpose, anywhere, absolutely without check," charged Bailey. "Whose money is this, the people's or Congress?"

Series of Amendments

Bailey offered a series of amendments tightening borrowing qualifications and providing that the money must be loaned specifically for the manufacture "of articles essential to the national defense." The vote went over when bill managers balked at the latter amendment, pointing out that one purpose of the bill was to provide funds for essential civilian industries.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, ranking member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, urged the sponsor of the bill to accept Bailey's restrictions on the loan powers of the board. Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, protested:

"We are engaged in a great war. We've got to trust some one. We trust our admirals and we've got to trust these men in the same way."

Senate Minority Leader McNary suggested the overnight recess to permit time to consider the Bailey amendments.

Authorizes Many Loans

The bill, drawn by the special small business committee headed by Murray following long hearings, authorizes the corporation to make loans or advances to enable small business concerns to finance plant construction, conversion or expansion, or to provide working capital for them to manufacture "essential articles." Terms and conditions of the loans would be determined by the corporation.

The five directors would be named by Chairman of the War Production Board Donald Nelson. The agency could purchase or lease land, purchase, lease, build or expand plants, purchase or produce equipment, facilities or supplies to

Nation Passes Goal, But—

President Takes Note That D. C. Failed To Fill Red Cross Quota

President Roosevelt announced proudly yesterday that the 65 million dollars war fund sought by the American Red Cross had been oversubscribed, but he asked Washington newspapers to call attention to the fact that this city had failed to meet its quota.

Officials of the District Red Cross said last night that this city's record on the war fund drive was the worst in the country.

After Pearl Harbor, the President issued a proclamation asking for a Red Cross war fund of 50 million dollars. This sum was on hand by February 7, Norman Davis, Red Cross chairman, informed the President in a letter yesterday, and the Red Cross then raised the goal to 65 million dollars. That figure also was exceeded, and the money still is coming in.

The District of Columbia has not even reached its original quota of $750,000. Thus far, officials disclosed last night, only $488,000 of the sum has been raised, leaving $242,000 to be subscribed.

Meanwhile, the local Red Cross has been busy. Letters of thanks from Hawaii, Tennessee, Quantico and Boston arrived in Red Cross headquarters. One from Hawaii expressed thanks for sponges and surgical dressings sent by the District Chapter. Those from service men in Tennessee, Quantico and Boston acknowledged their gratitude for

Senate Kills Labor Curb Amendments

Votes Down Riders Suspending 40-Hour Week, Overtime Pay, Banning Closed Shop

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday overwhelmingly rejected a series of amendments to the small-business bill suspending the 40-hour week and overtime payments, outlawing the closed shop and prohibiting use of force or violence to keep workers from their jobs.

The amendments were unexpectedly offered by Senator O'Daniel (Democrat), of Texas. O'Daniel insisted on a vote, over vigorous objections by managers of the small-business measure.

"I plead with the Senator not to offer these amendments," said Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana. "The only effect would be to destroy the bill."

Amendments Shouted Down

The amendments were then shouted down. O'Daniel demanded a division count, and only four Senators stood in support of them. Although it was the first Senate test on the issue of the 40-hour week and closed shop on war contracts, many advocates of labor legislation failed to support it as a rider on the small business relief measure.

Meanwhile, several members of the House reported a weekend deluge of mail from organized labor groups protesting any change in the 40-hour week. One Southern Congressman who has been vigorously supporting modification of the wage-and-hour law reported receiving nearly 100 communications from a single section, each bearing a guarded hint that labor's full support would be thrown against him if he persisted in his efforts to obtain revision.

The new flood of labor mail was apparently not confined to Southerners alone as one member of the Illinois delegation received hundreds of postal cards from unionists in his district cautioning him to bear in mind the November election in connection with any vote on revision of the laws.

Pending Business

A clear-cut test of sentiment was expected within two weeks on the Connally bill empowering the President to take over war plants whenever work is interrupted by labor or management, and to freeze working conditions, except wages, in such plants.

The Senate meanwhile heard appeals by Senators Byrd of Virginia and Doxey of Mississippi (Democrats) for floor consideration of the Connally bill and last night Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, appeared near an agreement with Senate Majority Leader Barkley on a motion to call up the bill.

Barkley, opposed to any labor legislation at this time, objected to making the Connally bill the Senate's unfinished business. He agreed, however, to make Connally's motion to call up the bill the pending business when the Senate returns from three-day Easter recesses on April 13.

Connally, who had threatened to force a vote today on consideration of his measure, may accept the Barkley proposal.

India's Leaders Reject Cripps' Dominion Plan; Hitler Moving 1,500,000 for Caucasus Drive

100 Fresh German Divisions Ordered To Front, London Quarters Declare

By the Associated Press

London, March 31.—Adolf Hitler is moving 100 fresh divisions into Russia for a big push to blast the Soviet forces out of the Crimea on his flank and acquire a springboard for the jump toward the oil of the Caucasus, qualified informants said tonight.

A responsible foreign source said his advices from a number of listening posts "seem to make it clear that the Nazis are preparing to mount a series of spearhead offensives hinging somewhere around Orel and extending south to Sevastopol to clear the railroads and bases they need if they are ever to shake hands with the Japanese in Persia or on the Indian Ocean.

Troops Going Into Crimea

It is apparent, this informant added, that the Germans "are going to exploit fully, if they can, the bastions of the winter front like Orel, Kursk, Kharkov and Taganrog—to mention only those in the south where it seems the Nazi attacks are to develop first since they have been moving fresh troops to the Crimea lately."

It was estimated that the Germans have about 180 divisions (2,700,000 men) on the Russian front apart from the fresh 100 divisions (1,500,000 men) now being moved into position.

The best information, this foreign source said, was that the Germans eventually would be able to put nearly 4,500,000 men into the 1942 Russian campaign against an estimated seven million Russians.

Russians Advance Near Leningrad

The report of this mounting German onslaught coincided with a Moscow radio announcement tonight that the Russians had recaptured an important strategic point in the Leningrad area.

London quarters intimated that the recaptured point in the Leningrad region might be Schluesselburg, just east of Leningrad on Lake Ladoga—an important rail connection.

In the south, a Vichy report based on Bucharest information said, the Russians launched an offensive today in the Kharkov region from the north, south and east. The attack was preceded by artillery preparation lasting until last midnight.

Tanks and Infantry Close In on Nazis at Vyazma

London, March 31 (U.P.)—Tank-led and plane-supported Russian infantry, closing a pincers on Vyazma from the north and south, have stamped out German resistance and moved in close to the threatened enemy base 130 miles west of Moscow, the Soviet radio reported tonight.

Moscow broadcasts said Russian parachutists taking part in the synchronized drive on Vyazma had floated down behind the German lines, captured strategic positions and held them against powerful counterattacks.

Herds of Trojan Horses

British Attack Without Planes To Free Circled Units in Burma

By the Associated Press

New Delhi, India, March 31.—Lacking scouting planes and fighting in country teeming with hidden enemies, the British armies guarding the direct route to the central Burma oil fields were counterattacking tonight in a desperate effort to smash Japanese road blockades which have isolated British mobile units in the Irrawaddy Valley.

The position of the British in the Prome sector became rapidly more ominous, even as the Chinese at Toungoo, on the left wing of the Allied line, joined with reinforcements coming from north and east and reestablished their positions after a week of the most bitter combat.

(Up to Sunday, a Chinese communique said, the bodies of 5000 dead Japanese were counted on the battlefield around Toungoo. Hard fighting continues, despite the Chinese successes.)

Gen. H. R. L. G. Alexander's communique acknowledged frankly that the British position in the Prome area, some 140 miles south of Yenangyaung, heart of the oil fields, were "considerably hindered by lack of air reconnaissance and by the fact that the local population as a whole appears actively in support of the enemy."

The present situation, as related officially, was this:

While British reconnaisance units in the Paungde area, some 30 miles southeast of Prome, were heavily engaged in difficult country and while another small British mobile force was moving south to clear out an enemy knot of resistance, the enemy in a flanking movement crossed the Irrawaddy southwest of Prome and attacked Shwedaung, only 10 miles below Prome on the east bank.

There the Japanese collided with an Indian frontier force battalion which advanced to clear Shwedaung and, in heavy fighting, the Japanese lost 300 dead and wounded and the Indians took 70 prisoners—all of

Roosevelt Sees Unanimity in Pacific Council

Reporters Will Not Have Any Rows to Write About, He Says

President Roosevelt told reporters yesterday that they needn't expect any stories about rows in the new Pacific Council, which is to meet with him at the White House today. Rather, he said, they could expect unanimity.

He emphasized that the council was a consultative body which would deal with the general progress of the fight against the powers of darkness.

Where the council is concerned, the President said, it isn't a question of where supplies shall go, or where naval actions should be fought, or where airplanes should be sent. The members of the council, he said, were laymen and were going to get together and consult, not go out and fight.

The President said that such questions as whether the Pacific Council would cooperate with the Joint Staff Board were didactic. And this, he added, was something you couldn't be didactic about.

Asked whether Australia and New Zealand would be represented on the British-American Munitions Assignment Board, the President said there was no prospect of this. All the consultations of the Pacific Council, he said, would end up in general agreements, and, in the case of munitions, the agreements would be carried out in good faith by the people who make the munitions for the benefit of all.

The President was asked about a news story which said that the Pacific Council in London would handle matters of policy and the Pacific council in Washington matters of strategy.

He answered that the councils would consult in each place and with each other.

H. V. Kaltenborn, the radio commentator, pointed out that India had been omitted from the Pacific Coun-

Murmansk Convoy Saved, British Imply

Attacks Beaten Off, 2 Nazi Destroyers, 4 U-Boats Wrecked

By the Associated Press

London, March 31.—British and Russian navies, fighting together for the first time, have beaten off Germany's initial naval assault on the Allied Arctic supply line to Russia, sunk one German destroyer, damaged another and wrecked three U-boats, the admiralty announced tonight.

The Russian communique tonight added another Nazi submarine and a transport to the enemy craft destroyed in Far Northern waters.

The new 8000-ton British cruiser Trinidad fired and then destroyed the one German warship with her 6-inch guns. The Trinidad was in turn damaged, along with the destroyer Eclipse, but both the British warships reached the shelter of a Russian harbor under their own power, and their casualties were declared to be few.

The Russian ships participating in the action were believed to be destroyers of the 1800-ton Stremitelni class, especially built for service in northern waters.

Assaults Beaten Off

In the face of German claims that three transports were sunk and five other merchant ships damaged in the United States-British convoy, which was the target of three days of Nazi attack, the British admiralty communique said unequivocably that all the assaults on the convoy "were beaten off by Russian and British forces."

[Although the British admiralty's announcement did not state whether the convoy had as yet arrived at its destination, Stockholm dispatches reaching London said a "great" ocean caravan of ships laden with tanks, planes and munitions, largely American-made, had put into Murmansk Harbor, the International News Service reported.

[It was said to have withstood three major attacks, as well as

Sikhs Are First To Spurn Proposal; Gandhi's Opposition Blamed for Failure

By the United Press

New Delhi, March 31.—The powerful All-India Congress tonight spurned Britain's plan for self-government after the war, and Sir Stafford Cripps' momentous mission to swing India fully into the war against Japan verged on failure.

The party's working committee gave the finishing touches to a memorandum to be handed to Cripps tomorrow, setting forth its views on the British proposals. Though not in the form of a simple rejection, it was rejection in effect. The objection was that Cripps' plan did not give India enough control over its own war efforts.

Unless Cripps backs down from his public assertion that there could be no change in the plan, which would have to be accepted or rejected as a whole, and his warning that there would be no new plan until after the war, it was feared that the negotiations which opened here last week to settle the long-standing Indian problem were at an end.

Sikhs First to Dissent

The first Indian group to tell Sir Stafford that his scheme was not acceptable, the Sikhs, Hindu dissenters numbering about 4,500,000, sent a delegation to him this afternoon.

Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League, was expected to inform Cripps that, in view of the Congress Party's attitude, there was no need for his organization to take a stand on the British proposals, which were intended for acceptance by all the main political elements of India.

It was learned that Sir Stafford's radio appeal to the Indian public last night, in which he emphasized that control of Indian defense would not be transferred to Indian hands during the war, clinched opposition to the scheme in the congress working committee.

The party's memorandum to the British negotiator was expected to say that the clause in the proposals relating to interim arrangements was unacceptable because it involved no transfer of real power to the Indians.

Cripps Ready to Leave

The memorandum would reiterate the party's willingness, as set forth in the Wardha resolution of last January 6, to participate in the defense of India as free men and for freedom.

Told by newspapermen this afternoon that there was little chance of Congress acceptance of his plan, Cripps replied:

"Then I will go."

Pandit Jawaharial Nehru, who has the main voice in party affairs, and Mohandas K. Gandhi, spiritual leader of the party, dealt the death blow to the scheme by agreeing that it was unacceptable as it stood.

President Reads Holy Week Text To Doom the Axis

At his press conference yesterday, President Roosevelt decided that, since this is Holy Week, he would read to reporters an excerpt from a letter he had received. The excerpt follows:

"'No matter what may be the religious faith of individuals, most Americans see in Calvary's cross the eternal symbol that light will conquer darkness, truth prove stronger than error, life greater than death.

"It is the only sign by which we can conquer the powers of black paganism that now threaten everything which we hold dear."

The President did not identify the author of the letter.

Army Brass Hats Wrestle Over Undies for Women's Corps

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

At Quartermaster Corps headquarters for the United States Army yesterday the clothing and equipage branch was wrestling with a brand-new problem: undies for the women's auxiliary.

Somebody's just remembered a girl making $21 a month will not be able to buy her own girdles, etc. Besides, she shouldn't have to if she's signed up to serve for the duration in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps for which Senate approval is expected today or tomorrow.

Photos of It Closely Guarded

The top uniform already is designed and has been modeled for photographs—but nobody outside the War Department has laid eyes on it, and the negatives are under lock and key. Take it from the Washington grapevine, however, it is something extra special, being Army khaki in color and topped off by a jaunty cap made with a "Foreign Legion" visor.

Much midnight oil was burned while designers inside the clothing and equipage branch battled out the color question, and for a time it looked as if navy blue would win. Also there were "factions" holding out for pastel shades and for simpler, less expensive—but not so flattering—overseas caps.

Stocking to Be Cotton

The reason underwear for women serving with Uncle Sam's military services never came up before is that the Navy's yoemanettes, who served during the World War, drew a $100 uniform allowance, and nurses serving with the Army and Navy hold commissions that bring in adequate pay to buy their clothes.

Cotton stockings are an assured part of the WAAC uniform, and it is to be guessed the undies will be cotton, too. Whether the girls will have to wear the regulations, or can accept gifts of silk, has not been decided.

Mechanics for setting up the WAAC are being worked out in the Mother and Premature Baby Saved After 3 Days in Lifeboat

By the Associated Press

New York, March 31.—A mother and her prematurely born baby have been rescued by the Navy—presumably after surviving nearly three days in an open lifeboat on the cold North Atlantic.

The story, as announced by the Third Naval District, began last Sunday in the office of Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the eastern sea frontier.

The admiral was preparing to go home for lunch when a confidential message was handed him, announcing that another merchant ship had been torpedoed off the Atlantic Coast.

Admiral Andrews made certain that prearranged rescue plans had been carried out and then again started to leave.

A second message arrived. This was not a routine rescue job, he informed his staff.

An expectant mother aboard the torpedoed vessel had given birth to her baby, apparently prematurely, when the tons of Axis explosives crashed into the merchantman.

The admiral ordered out rescue craft and planes of all kinds. Vessels not scheduled for duty for days were dispatched with orders to effect a rescue with the greatest possible speed.

Throughout the day the admiral and his staff awaited word of a

LIEUT. AND MRS. ELIOT VANDEVANTER

The bombing exploits of Lieut. Elliott Vandevanter, jr., who yesterday was recommended for a Distinguished Flying Cross, thrill his pretty wife, but any suggestion that his achievements in the far Pacific are acts of retribution against the Japs for indignities which they once heaped upon her is "pretty silly," she said last night.

And what's more, she told a reporter in her mother's living room at the Farnsboro Apartments, 2129 Florida Avenue Northwest, she'd trade the proposed decoration and any others he has or may receive for just one telephone call from him.

Talking hurriedly because she had to go out and do her bit for civilian defense an as "eaglet" in the American Women's Voluntary Services, Mrs. Carol Lathrop Vandevanter, 23, said she hadn't heard from her husband, who attended Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va., before going to West Point, for almost a month. He was in Australia when he last communicated with her.

He had very little to say about his own bomber raids, such as the attacks carried out in the Lingayen Gulf and Vigan section of the Philippines, and on an enemy landing party on the southeast tip of Luzon Island, Mrs. Vandevanter said, and such incidents as he did report in his letter fall in the category of things that the War Department doesn't like to see in the newspapers.

While visiting her sister in Peiping in 1937, Mrs. Vandevanter was kicked in the stomach by a Japanese sentry and propelled into the center of what almost became an international incident. The Japanese later apologized, but denied they had kicked anybody. Mrs. Vandevanter, who at that time was Miss Carol Lathrop, yesterday repeated her accusations and said she had been kicked "good and hard."

Vandevanter's work yesterday was publicly cited by Col. Eugene L. Eubank, head of the United States Bomber Command in the Philippines and the Netherlands Indies, in a press dispatch from Australia. At the same time, an announcement from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's high command revealed that the young flying officer had been recommended for both the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Silver Star.

Yank Fliers Have Sunk or Badly Damaged 62 Jap Ships Since March 1

By the Associated Press

United States Army Headquarters in Australia, March 31.—Planes of the American Army bomber command operating from bases in the Philippines and the Netherlands Indies sank or seriously damaged 46 Japanese transports and 16 warships and destroyed more than 50 Japanese planes up to March 1, it was announced today.

The bomber command's chief, Col. Eugene L. Eubank, of Port Arthur, Tex., and Albuquerque, N. Mex., gave the accounting today in telling for the first time of the breath-taking exploits of the men who man the Flying Fortresses.

Indicative of the extent of these were the recommendations for awards up to the fall of Java: Twelve Distinguished Service Crosses, 25 Distinguished Flying Crosses, 61 Silver Stars and 22 Orders of the Purple Heart, with the honors spread through all ranks.

Personnel Losses Few

American losses in personnel and equipment were amazingly low, Col. Eubank said. He did not give figures, but said, "These planes can carry an awful lot of lead and still come back to their bases."

Only two planes were lost through pilot errors, such as bad take-offs or landings—a record which airmen hailed as remarkable in view of the makeshift fields from which the gigantic bombers so often operated.

Starting with the beginning of the war, Col. Eubank said the American bomber command in the Philippines was not surprised—it had been on the alert for a long time and carried out tactical missions on the day the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor.

The first Japanese attack on the Philippines developed the first outstanding tale of individual gallantry.

Capts. Ray Cox, of Riversdale, Calif., and Fred Crimmins, of Fort Worth, Tex., went into the burning hangars of Clark Field, calmly started the engines of many planes and taxied them to safety.

Both were recommended for Distinguished Service Crosses.

On the third morning after the outbreak of war, the bombers destroyed at least seven Japanese ships, including two warships. Capt. Colin P. Kelly, jr., credited with having hit the battleship Haruna, was shot down as he returned to his base.

One Forced Down on Island

In a raid on a Japanese landing party at near Legaspi Bay on Luzon, three bombers distinguished themselves, Capt. Jack Adams, of Anadarko, Okla., had to land his damaged bomber on a small island. He and his crew survived a ground strafing and then started back to their base. They arived three weeks later after having traveled by boat, ox cart, automobile, plane and train. Capt. Adams was recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Another of this flight of bombers was attacked by 18 Japanese planes. It shot down four and hit three others, then returned home over 400 miles of sea with six of the crew wounded. Capt. Hewitt Wheless, of Fresno, Calif., one of the two men who were not wounded, said Japanese tracer bullets were plunging through the plane so thick and fast that he did not dare lift his hands from behind the armor plate for an instant. He was recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross.

D. C. Man Gets Cross

The third of this group, Lieut. Elliott Van Davanter, jr., of Washington, D. C., was recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross. Due to bad weather, he could not immediately find an opening for his bombs, so he made run after run under enemy fire until a hole in the clouds permitted an effective attack.

On another mission, Capts. Donald Keiser, of San Francisco, and Elmer Parsel, of Macon, Ga., and Lieut. Earl Tash, of Walla Walla, Wash., were gone 32 hours, of which 25 were spent in the air on flights totaling more than 4000 miles.

They first flew more than 1000 miles and bombed the Japanese in the vicinity of Davao, on Mindanao Island. They landed nearby, reserviced their plane and flew 700 miles on another bombing expedition. Then they landed at still another field, fueled their plane and returned to their home base.

Raiding shipping in the Davao Gulf area, Lieut. George Schaetzel had one engine put out of commission by Japanese fighters. Capt. Alvin Mueller, of New Braunfels, Tex., immediately put his plane between Schaetzel and the enemy and fought them off at 20,000 feet while the crippled plane started the 1200-mile flight home over the open sea. Both landed safely, though Mueller's plane was badly chewed by bullets and his gunner, Staff Sergt. James Cannon, was killed.

Davao Attacks Rewarded

Another attack on the Davao area was made from a Netherlands Indies base 1300 miles distant by Maj. Cecil Combs, of Arlington, Tex.; Keiser and Parsel, and Capts. James Connally, of Waco, Tex.; Edward Bohnaker, of Platteville, Wis., and Frank Kurtz, of Omaha, Nebr. They sank a destroyer and three other vessels and scored four hits on a battleship. A few days later the same group, along with Capt. Patrick McIntyre, of Chicago, repeated the raid, sinking a cruiser and several smaller boats.

They were at such altitude that enemy fighters could not intercept them, but Col. Eubank described the weather as the worst ever successfully flown through.

All of these were recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross.

On another mission at extreme range, Kurtz stayed over his target to drop his bombs even after one of his engines had been shot dead, while Combs dived under the clouds, released his bombs on the target and destroyed two enemy fighters. Kurtz is a three-time winner of the Flying Cross in addition to a Silver Star.

Bold Tactics

Another bold stratagem was that of Maj. Stanley Robinson, of Morgantown, W. Va., and Capt. Elbert Helton, who hovered over their night target after a bombing, so that their departure would not indicate to the antiaircraft defenses the direction from which the next plane might come. As a result, the next plane was able to destroy a large Japanese ship.

Day and night such operations continued. From January 14 to March 1 there was only one day that the big bombers were not in the air almost constantly.

And all this, Col. Eubank pointed out, was without fighter support, for the distances were too great for fighters.

Even on the last day in the East Indies, Col. Eubank said, "we definitely sank five boats and probably four others and were preparing for another mission when the order came for us to leave."

Included in the list of recommendations for awards were the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Silver Star and the Purple Heart, all for Col. Eubank, but he modestly declined to say a word about how he won them.

Dive-Bomber Pilot Credits Hits to Sights

By Clark Lee

Associated Press Staff Writer

Brisbane, Australia (Wednesday), April 1.—An American Flying Ace whose uncanny marksmanship on Japanese warships has brought him the Distinguished Flying Cross attributes everything to the accurate sights on his plane and to the practice he got in the Louisiana maneuvers last year.

"Shucks, with those sights you can't miss," drawled First Lieut. Julius B. Summers, jr., of Somerville, Tenn.

"Longest Ship I Ever Saw"

Summers, whose nickname is "Zeke" and who insists he is just a hillbilly, is listed by headquarters among the heroes of the Army bomber command in the Netherlands Indies fighting.

Zeke said he was piloting a dive-bomber with Sergt. W. L. Kidd, of Salt Lake City, when they spotted Japanese ships approaching the island of Bali.

They found a clear level between cloud layers at 12,000 and 14,000 feet and were lucky to discover a good hole in the lower clouds above a Japanese cruiser.

"It was the longest ship I ever saw," recalled Summers.

They screamed down from 12,000 to 3000 feet.

The cruiser, which for some unknown reason did not use its antiaircraft guns, started dodging frantically, completing a 90-degree turn.

"But once you get a ship in the sights it's impossible to miss," said Summers—who didn't miss.

"Cruiser Just Buckled Up"

"That Jap cruiser just buckled up. We dashed back into the clouds and went home."

The next day seven planes spotted seven Japanese destroyers and two cruisers.

Summers dived out of clouds at 14,000 feet and let go his bombs on a cruiser at 7000, but did not stay around to observe results.

His companions said he sank that cruiser, too, and patrol planes went out next day and confirmed it.

Three days later the same squadron spotted 11 warships and transports near Bali and sank all of them.

"I learned really how to fly on maneuvers in Louisiana last summer," said Summers. "We all learned there."

thrusts by trailing U-boats. The convoy, Stockholm reported, was "strongly protected" by a force of cruisers, destroyers and, "according to rumor," an aircraft carrier.

The Arctic action was fought, apparently, all the way between North Cape and the Murmansk coast, which is daily assuming increasing importance as a supply lane to the Red armies. The Russians themselves have landed sea-borne forces behind the German lines in the Murmansk sector.

Light enemy forces first were sighted on Sunday morning, while the convoy was traveling through frequent snowstorms, the admiralty said.

Despite bad visibility, the Trinidad engaged a large German destroyer, crippling her and setting her afire. The Trinidad then gave chase to two other destroyers and the crippled Nazi sank, according to enemy accounts.

A few hours later a second attack developed. One German destroyer was hit and stopped by the Eclipse, but the Germans brought up two more destroyers an dthe Eclipse broke off the engagement.

Later, the admiralty continued, German U-boats were discovered "an dsuccessful attacks by the Allied forces resulted in three U-boats being severely damaged if not sunk."

Today's German communique claimed that "two heavily laden transports totaling 11,000 tons" were sunk by U-boats as they lay off the entrance to Kola Bay, near Murmansk. The Germans said a third transport was torpedoed and probably sunk and a medium-sized merchantman damaged from the air.

Earlier, the Germans announced they had damaged a destroyer and four merchant ships in the convoy off North Cape, then, during a battle with the British and Russian warships, had torpedoed the British cruiser and sunk a 10,000-ship from New York.

At 4 o'clock (E. W. T.) today, however, a Navy lieutenant telephoned Andrews, got him out of bed and reported:

"Sir, one of our warships has picked up a lifeboat with that mother and baby."

Death for Nurses

Bern, Switzerland, March 31 (AP).—The first two death sentences under German drastically strengthened food regulations have been handed down against two women who are nurses in a children's home, dispatches from Berlin said today.

They were found guilty of hoarding 4 tons of sugar, candy and soap.

Jap Planes Bomb Bataan Hospital; Our Guns Sink Enemy Vessel

Foe Continues To Pound At Harbor Forts

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Japanese planes and siege guns kept up their intermittent pounding of American-Filipino positions in Luzon, the War Department reported yesterday, but so far there is no evidence that the defenders are being "softened up" by the process.

The only tangible results of Japanese activity in yesterday's army communique were a number of casualties in a base hospital on Bataan Peninsula. They occurred when the Japs deliberately bombed the hospital.

Apparently angered at the failure of their weekend offensive, Gen. Yamashita's forces bombed the wounded and sick at noon Monday.

Hospital Plainly Marked

The hospital was plainly marked, the War Department said, and had been carefully avoided until then by enemy bombing planes.

Both day and night air raids on the harbor forts of Manila Bay continue, the communique reported, with but "little damage" inflicted thus far. Jap dive-bombers also continue to hammer the front lines and rear areas on Bataan.

During the day, the enemy siege guns hidden in the jungles across the bay in Cavite Province, shelled Corregidor and its satellite forts. The island citadels returned the fire.

A battery on little Fort Hughes on Caballo Island hit an enemy launch in Manila Bay, sinking the vessel.

Patrols Skirmish

The only ground fighting consisted of skirmishes between patrols along the front on Bataan Peninsula, running from about Abucay—23 miles north of Corregidor on Manila Bay—some 13 miles across the mountains and valleys to the shores of the China Sea below Mauban.

The text of the War Department communique, No. 169, of the war follows:

"1. Philippine theater: Except for sharp clashes between patrols, there was no ground fighting in Bataan during the past 24 hours. The enemy continued aerial bombardment of our front lines and rear areas. At noon on March 30, a base hospital in Bataan was bombed by the Japanese, causing a number of casualties. This hospital was plainly marked and had been carefully avoided by the enemy bombers until yesterday.

"Both day and night air raids on our harbor defenses continue intermittently. Thus far little damage has been inflicted. The day raids yesterday were accompanied by fire from enemy shore batteries in Cavite Province. The guns of our forts returned the fire. A battery firing from Fort Hughes destroyed an enemy launch in Manila Bay.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

Imperiled British Attack in Burma

whom turned out to be Burmese.

Despite these casualties to their mixed force, the Japanese managed to establish road blockades at Shwedaung, cutting off the British mobile units to the south.

Late Monday, the British launched the attack in an effort to clear the road blockades. The fighting still was going on, and the final decision was not yet known.

The Chinese at Toungoo, meanwhile, appeared to have solved the problem of their own encirclement by the enemy, at least for the present.

Chinese Retake Rail Town

Chinese reinforcements pushing south and west to Toungoo recaptured the railroad town and airfield at Kyungon, ten miles north of Toungoo, and four other villages, destroyed an enemy battalion and captured much booty.

Then the reinforcements made contact with the Chinese troops who have been holding the eastern part of Toungoo. Thus communications were reestablished and positions readjusted in this outpost area. In the main sector of potential battle north of Toungoo, the mountains are expected to give the Chinese a greater defense advantage.

Flew Here for 'Visit,' Carole Landis Insists; 'Amazed' to Hear She's to Wed Gene Markey

JOAN BENNETT

HEDY LAMARR

IT'S ALL NEWS TO HER—Carole Landis, blonde screen star, arrived at the National Airport yesterday but denied she was here to marry Gene Markey, film writer and former husband of both Joan Bennett and Hedy Lamarr. It was reported from Hollywood that Miss Landis was en route to the Capital to wed. Markey is on duty with the Navy as a lieutenant commander

Carrot-topped Carole Landis, of the films, flew into Washington yesterday expressing wide-eyed amazement over reports she had come here to marry the screen writer and producer, Gene Markey, now a lieutenant commander in the Navy.

"I haven't the vaguest idea what it's all about," she protested to newspapermen who confronted her at National Airport with dispatches from Hollywood which quoted her as telling film capital friends before boarding a plane Monday that she was headed for the Nation's capital to wed Markey.

"I imagine I'll see him while I'm here," she acknowledged. "I'll be here just for a visit . . . About a week."

Commander Markey was reported by the Navy to be en route to Washington from his undisclosed naval station in the South.

The findings of the experts had been unanimous, he declared.

A naval ensign who declined to identify himself finally rescued her from the baggage room, where cameramen had persuaded her to pose forlornly sitting on her luggage.

The ensign, who had been on hand to meet the earlier plane, bundled the actress into an automobile bearing California license plates and whisked her to the Wardman Park.

Reached there by telephone, Miss Landis said Markey was in town on "official business" and if they had any news they would announce it in the usual manner.

Miss Landis was married for 25 days in 1934 to Irving Wheeler, a writer, and for two months in 1940 to Yachtsman Willis Hunt, jr. The 45-year-old Markey is the former husband of Heddy Lamarr and Joan Bennett, screen actresses.

War Sidelights

Germ War Is Linked To Japanese

Chungking, March 31 (AP).—A Chinese government spokesman at a press conference today accused Japan of starting germ warfare and said full information on the charges would be formally transmitted to United Nations governments.

An investigation by noted foreign and Chinese medical experts had established that a Japanese plane on November 3 dropped infected material at Changteh in Homan Province which caused the death of six persons by bubonic plague, the spokesman said.

The findings of the experts had been unanimous, he declared.

Workers Get Bonuses

Los Angeles, March 31 (AP).—Thousands of aircraft plant workers are sharing thousands of extra dollars these days, just for using their heads.

The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce revealed companies paid more than $10,000 in bonuses last month for suggested improvements. The awards ranged from 25-cent defense stamps to $1500 cash.

"Suggestion boxes" are placed in handy locations in the plants. Into them the ideas are dropped, on prepared blanks. One plant received more than 1000 of them in five weeks. One was a simplified form on which to submit ideas. It won the idea man $10.

Four Nazis Killed

London, March 31 (AP).—Four soldiers of the German garrison at Pardubice, Bohemia, were killed during food riots which were only halted by the intervention of SS (Elite Guard) troops, the Czecho-Slovak press bureau said today.

After complaining about their food, the soldiers clashed with their officers, shouting "We want peace—let us go home!" the bureau reported.

An SS detachment was sent to the barracks and four soldiers were killed while 60 were being arrested.

Japan's Bases On New Guinea, Timor Blasted

By the Associated Press

Melbourne, March 31.—New destructive bombings of Japanese bases on New Guinea and Timor were announced today as Australia streamlined her army command and American-Australian fighting men sped to battle stations throughout this threatened continent.

Australian communiques said that hangars were set afire and runways blasted at the Japanese-held airdrome at Lae, on the northeast coast of New Guinea and that probably six Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground at Koepang, Dutch Timor.

An Allied plane reconnoitering over Salamaua, another Japanese-held point on New Guinea, was credited with probable destruction of all three of the Japanese navy zero planes which attacked it.

The Japanese meanwhile sent seven bombers over Darwin, on the Australian mainland, both yesterday and today, attacking the airport both times. No damage was reported, however.

Reports from Darwin tonight said that antiaircraft batteries had opened up there again after an alert had sounded and the area was blacked out, thus indicating the return of Japanese night raiders.

The Allied attacks yesterday were hampered by bad weather but were pressed home from 5-mile heights.

Advices from Townsville, Queensland, said American flying fortresses were proving especially effective in combat with Japanese fighters at these substratosphere altitudes.

The high-cruising Japanese fighters swooped down on the bombers from the rear in a favorite maneuver, but in every case the tail gunner of the fortresses shot down his attacker, Allied airmen declared.

No Time to Celebrate

Air Minister Arthur Drakeford said that there was "no time for parties" to celebrate today's twenty-first birthday of the Royal Australian Air Force but that vigorous blows would be rained on the enemy.

Despite the generally heartening news of aerial success, Australia hastened her land preparations for the expected eventuality of invasion.

The old system of state army commands was replaced by two commands embracing the entire continent in a rapid reorganization recommended by Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, the Australian, who is commander of all ground forces under the supreme command of the American Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Lieut. Gen. Sir John Lavarack, who until Blamey's arrival from the Middle East had been acting commander of the Australian army, will head one of the new corps areas, while Lieut. Gen. Sir Iven Mackay, commander of the Australian home forces, will head the other.

Maj. Gens. Henry Gordon Bennett and S. F. Rowell were raised to lieutenant generals in preparation for active posts of undisclosed natures. Seven new major generals were created.

Officials Hopeful

U. S.-Mexican Amity Seen On Increase

DR. EZEQUIEL PADILLA

Still closer relations between this country and Mexico were contemplated with gratification by officials here yesterday as a result of the Washington visit of Ezequiel Padilla, the Mexican foreign minister.

The hearty welcome given Dr. Padilla on his arrival Monday was considered a reflection of the gratitude felt for his activities for continental unity at the Rio de Janeiro conference of American Foreign Ministers in January.

He brought to Washington renewed assurance that a high degree of solidarity had been achieved in this hemisphere.

"The United States," he said, "has only to watch the oceans. North and south she has very decided friends with a keen sense of the common destiny of the continent."

While cautioning that one of the greatest tasks in Latin America, at present, is watching Fifth Columnists, especially in Argentina, Chile and Brazil, he said that such subversive elements were well under control in Mexico.

The foreign minister came here, accompanied by a small group of experts, to discus priorities on the movement of strategic materials, the interchange of products vital to the war effort, and means for increasing Mexican production.

Dr. Padilla was welcomed at Union Station by Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State; Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican Ambassador, and members of his staff; Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers, and members of the Division of the American Republics of the State Department.

U. S. War Policy Is Made Clear To Argentina

By John Elliott
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The United States will give preferencce in the shipment of war materials to those South American countries which have placed themselves in peril by cooperating in the defense of the Western Hemisphere through breaking off relations with the Axis and helping to assure the safety of maritime communications, it was stated on high authority, yesterday.

This statement of policy was made to explain why the Argentine military and naval mission went back home to Buenos Aires empty-handed a fortnight ago. The high Argentine army and navy officers who composed this mission came here to ask for what was described as very large assistance both in respect of money value and quantity of goods, particularly for the merchantization of their army and the modernization of their navy.

The Argentinians returned without having received assurances of such material assistance from this country because, it was pointed out, the Buenos Aires government is not contributing in an effective way to the defense of the Western Hemisphere. Argentina, for instance, is one of the two South American republics that have refused to break off diplomatic ties with Germany, Italy and Japan.

Others Aiding Convoy Plan

The unhelpful attitude of Argentina was contratsed with the cooperative spirit shown by such nations as Peru, Brazil, Venezuela, and Colombia, which have placed themselves in a position of increased danger from Axis aggression, not only by severing diplomatic ties with those countries, but by participating in the convoy system that is being set up. Unless and until Argentina is willing to pull her oar in the Pan-American boat, it was stated authoritatively, the United States will not be able to send her the same kind of material aid in the way of war supplies that are being sent to her sister republics.

It was emphasized that the discrimination against Argentina on the export of war supplies represented no desire on the part of the United States to exert pressure on her government and still less was it dictated by thoughts of reprisal. It was described as a logical policy that could be justified from every standpoint.

Fifth Columnist activities are increasing in Argentina, it was said in this well-informed quarter, largely as a result of Axis diplomats with their horde of subversive agents being allowed to remain in that country.

The position of Chile, which is the only other American republic besides Argentina that has not yet broken off relations with the Axis, called for special treatment, it was stated. Chile with her 2600 miles of coast line to defend is in a particularly vulnerable position and the protection of this front is of especial concern to the United States.

Newhall Named by Nelson As Coordinator for Rubber

By the Associated Press

Arthur B. Newhall, dollar-a-year man and former vice president of B. F. Goodrich Co., yesterday was appointed coordinator for rubber, with broad power to direct the "use, control or production of natural and synthetic rubber."

The appointment was made by War Production Director Donald M. Nelson, and a WPB spokesman said Newhall would "be to rubber what Ickes is to oil—only more so." He referred to Secretary of Interior Ickes who is also petroleum coordinator.

Virtual Dictator

Newhall can be a virtual dictator over rubber, it was explained, because he is bulwarked by Nelson's vast powers to "determine the policy, procedure and methods of the several Government agencies" now concerned with the acute rubber shortage situation.

The new rubber chief thus becomes responsible for the 400,000 tons a year synthetic rubber program. He is specifically empowered to represent Nelson in dealings with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiaries, the lending agencies for financing synthetic rubber plant expansions.

Newhall will conduct negotiations with RFC and with the petroleum coordinator's office not only on the synthetic program, but also upon such problems as the stock piling of rubber for military use, the purchase and sale of rubber and rubber products, and the financing of new production facilities.

Holds Other Powers

In addition, he holds general supervisory power over WPB's rubber units and rubber salvage operations; will make decisions on the allocation of rubber as between military and civilian requirements; set policies for priorities; and coordinate the rationing of rubber tires and tubes by the Office of Price Administration with WPB's rubber activities.

Newhall was executive vice president of B. F. Goodrich Co., until 1939, and is now on leave from his duties as vice president of Talon, Inc., of Meadville, Pa., as chief of the WPB rubber and rubber products branch.

Senate Rejects War Plant Bill

enable small business concerns to make essential items.

In addition, the corporation could act as a prime contractor for furnishing articles to the Government, letting subcontracts to small business concerns or others.

The bill sets up a special deputy to Donald Nelson in the War Production Board to devote full time to bringing small business into the war production picture, and gives Nelson broad new powers to mobilize small concerns for the war effort.

Murray told the Senate that small business is "at the lowest ebb in the history of our country." He said that 50 per cent of the Nation's productive capacity is small business, and some 45,000 small concerns could be brought into war work.

Senator Taft (Republican, of Ohio, agreed that "this bill only does for small business what is already being done for big business" whose large available facilities were used to launch the production effort.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, said small business "has found itself in the jaws of a pincers movement between priorities and war contracts."

Senate Rejects Amendments Curbing Labor

bill and related labor and profits issues, revived his charge that important labor legislation "has been suppressed by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor."

He said this has not made a wholesome impression upon the American people."

"The Senate should have the right to pass on these House bills one way or the other," he said. "The fact that the effort is being made to prevent consideration of the Connally bill, instead of adding to the unity of the country is adding to its disunity."

The Connally bill, which was approved, 12 to 2, by the Judiciary Committee, would be open to amendment covering all phases of the labor situation, and prohibition on "exorbitant profits on war contracts," Byrd pointed out.

The Virginian rose to dispute Monday's assertion by Senator Barkley that Senate debate of the issue would disturb national unity. Byrd said the people "back home" are demanding that the Nation be stripped for action and victory and that a national labor policy adopted by Congress would do much to unite the country."

He said any effort to prevent consideration of measures the people believe are essential to victory "will merely add to the disunity that now exists. When the pepole back home hear that they have been branded as sixth columnists because of their efforts to increase the production of vital war materials and remove any and all barriers that exist to winning the war, such statements merely add to the disunity and to the criticism," Byrd added.

"The people back home are not asking a great deal of Congress here in Washington," he said. "They are merely asking that if the 40-hour week interferes with production, that it be repealed; that if the constant bickerings between capital and labor interfere with production, that they be stopped; that strikes in defense industries, even for one day, will not be tolerated; that extortionate profits of those who have war contracts not be permitted; that all the frills and activities not essential to the war be dropped for the period of the emergency."

He said "it is the duty of Congress to meet these issues squarely and to take the best action that may be dictated by the sole and single purpose of winning the war."

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, a member of the Labor Committee, replied to Byrd's charge that his group was "suppressing" labor measures. Mead said all Government officials engaged in war production had appeared before the committee and advised there was no need for antistrike legislation.

Senator Doxey, chairman of a Judiciary subcommittee considering a bill barring closed shops on war contracts, followed Byrd with an appeal to the Senate to "make the Connally bill the next order of business" and modify the 40-hour week.

"I do not have to return home to ascertain the sentiment of my people," said Doxey.

Only a few barely audible "ayes" were heard as the Senate reluctantly voted on the O'Daniel riders to the small business bill. When the Texas Senator demanded a division vote, only three besides O'Daniel stood up. They were Senators Connally, Byrd and Doxey.

Connally's compromise move meanwhile to call up his own bill on April 13 would place it before the Senate at approximately the same time the House is receiving its report on the Smith-Vinson bill to suspend the 40-hour week, bar the closed shop and fix a 6 per cent limit on war contracts. Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee, now in recess, has predicted a bill will be reported by that date.

Judge Continues Effort to Find Pamphlet Source

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough yesterday ordered another hearing this morning on the subject of the propaganda pamphlets somebody left in his chambers in the District Court last week.

On Monday when he asked the Department of Justice to find out where the pamphlets came from, he warned that if he found out somebody was going to jail.

The pamphlets included one which Ralph Townsend, Scribner's Commentator writer, has admitted he wrote for his Tokyo employers when he was a Japanese agent. Justice Goldsborough sensed an effort to influence him, because he is now considering whether to send Townsend to prison, turn him loose on probation or let him off with a fine.

Farish Denies Rubber Charges

wishes of the State Department.

4. That the company retarded "ersatz" rubber development.

He admitted that Standard helped its German subsidiary build a plant at Hamburg for the production of aviation gasoline "because we were not at war and we could not have done otherwise." He admitted that Standard made a deal to sell its Hungarian properties for 24 million dollars in gold, but was stopped by the State Department after the gold reached Lisbon; and he admitted that Standard made an agreement in 1939 with I. G. Farbin to conserve the latter's interests while the war lasted.

"I wish to assert with conviction," Farish said, "that whether the several contracts made with the I. G. did or did not fall withing the borders set by the patent statutes or the Sherman Act, they did inure greatly to the advance of American industry and more than any other one thing have made possible our present war activities in aviation gasoline, toluol and explosives and in synthetic rubber."

Hindrance Denied

Farish pictured his company as being a leader in developing synthetic rubber, and as having asked repeatedly for Government support which it was unable to obtain on a large scale until after the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

"Any charges that the Standard Oil Co. or any of its officers have been in the slightest respect disloyal to the United States is unwarranted and untrue, Farish said. "I repel all such insinuations with all the vigor at my command. I do so with indignation and resentment."

The committee will resume the hearing this morning at 10:30. Farish will again take the stand to answer questions about synthetic rubber.

Va. Officer Is Killed In Trinidad Mishap

The War Department said yesterday that Second Lieut. James Henry Holmes, of the Signal Corps, was killed in an automobile accident at Sangre Grande, Trinidad, on March 29. Holmes is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jean S. Holmes, of Bell Air Farms, Fredericksburg, Va.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE FUTURE

when you pick your new topcoat

Let's call a spade a spade, what do you say? This is no time for fancy sugar-coated stuff. Before you plunk down your hard-earned dollars for this year's topcoat, take a good look at its "family tree". Is the fabric a vigorous thoroughbred or a pale weakling? Will its tailoring stand the gaff or fold up like an accordion? Here are a few simple tips to help you get the right answers. For long wear, it's covert, shetland and camel-tones—in that order. For stand-up tailoring, it's Rochester needlework—first, last, and always. For both—fine woolens plus Rochester quality—it's Bond's! Yes, every Bond topcoat is Rochester tailored—something we believe no other clothier in town can tell you! And because this superb job is done in our own Rochester workrooms—with no wasteful, in-between costs to boost prices—you naturally pay less. Long wear for the future, with a modest price today—that's your pleasant outlook, at Bond's!

Yes, We Have No Lack of Razor Blades—'Twas a Mistake

By Sterling F. Green
Associated Press Staff Writer

Take it easy, men. The Office of Price Administration says there won't be a razor blade shortage, after all, and it is unnecessary to stock up with them.

People who do that are hoarders, said Dan A. West, director of OPA's consumer division, and besides, "in this case there isn't even a shortage."

The rush for shaving tackle was touched off by last week's War Production Board order curtailing output of safety razor blades to the monthly average production in 1940. What confused shavers was that the announcement said in one place that an "ample supply" would continue to be available, whereas in another place it said that only "an average of a blade per week per shaver."

Electric Shavers To Be Cut Off

West clearified matters yesterday, however, when he reassured shavers that the curtailmnet order would permit a "completely adequate supply," because it will mean manufacture of at least 2,400,000,000 blades this year. This compares, West reported in a formal statement, with 700 million in 1932, 1,600,000,000 in 1937 and two billion in 1939.

To complicate OPA's problem in curbing the run on razor blades, WPB yesterday announced that manufacture of electrical dry shavers would be halted May 31, along with about 50 other electrical appliances. Incidentally, lawn mowers were put on the proscribed list, effective June 30.

West said the razor blade curtailment could be "three or four times as great" without creating a shaving problem. "A little extra care in shaving and in handling will yield many more shaves per blade," he pointed out, and offered these recommendations:

Before shaving, prepare your beard carefully so that hard whiskers, grit and skin oil won't break down the blade. Careful washing and lathering soften the beard and make shaving easier on the blade.

Rinse your blade in hot water before using. Rinse the razor with hot water frequently while shaving.

Rinse razor and blade well after shaving.

Shake the blade vigorously and dry carefully to avoid rust.

Wrap the blade in its own paper covering, especially if you live in a coastal climate where salt air may erode the metals.

Roosevelt Sees Council Harmony

cil here. In reply, the President said that he was not aware that the Pacific lapped the shores of India.

The President then proceeded to describe in layman's terms the military geography of the area. The Pacific theater of the war, he said, extended to Singapore. Everything west of Australia, he said, would be in the Indian Ocean, but he did not suggest that an Indian Ocean council be created. China is in the Pacific theater of the war, he pointed out, but a part of her army is fighting in Burma. He said there was necessarily a certain amount of overlapping, and no brick walls could be erected around the different theaters.

The President was asked if Gen. Douglas MacArthur had command over the naval forces in his particular theater of the war. The President hesitated at first, and then said he thought MacArthur's role as supreme commander in the Southwest Pacific gave him command of air, land, and naval forces.

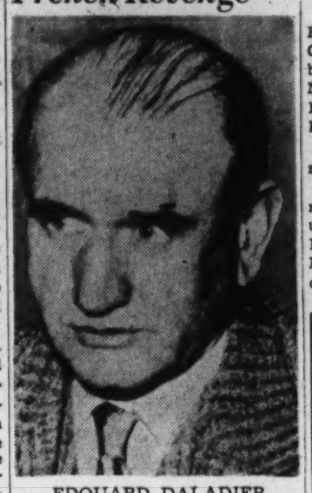
Ex-Premier Hints French Revenge



EDOUARD DALADIER

By the Associated Press

Riom, Unoccupied France, March 31.—Former Premier Eduard Daladier, one of five leaders of the defeated French republic on trial for responsibility for the defeat, shouted an angry warning today that although France bowed to Germany in this war "it will not always be the same ones who get licked."

Daladier's sensational statement came at the conclusion of testimony by Gen. Joseph Keller, who had said France's tank force was outnumbered by Germans by two to one.

"Never mind who got licked," Daladier said, addressing himself to Gen. Keller, who commanded all tank units attached to infantry, "it will not always be the same ones who get licked."

The former premier cited Gen. Charles de Gaulle, now leader of Free French Forces, among others as having developed the modern conception of tank strategy which was adopted by the Germans but ignored by French army chieftains.

"Just as the conception of Stukas was a French conception, formulated in 1934 and copied two years later by the Germans," Daladier said, "so was the conception of the independent armored division a French one and, even before Gen. De Gaulle, was formulated by Gen. Joseph Doumenc, who wrote a book called 'Achtung Panzer!' in which he outlined a plan for associating light, heavy and medium tanks in independent divisions.

"The idea later was elaborated by De Gaulle."

"Hatred of novelty, hatred of intellectual daring, hatred of modernization—these paralyzed the army," he asserted.

Presiding Judge Pierre Caous agreed with Daladier that orders for tanks were not placed until very late.

The judge then tried unsuccessfully to get comment on the subject from Gen. Maurice Gamelin, Allied generalissimo at the start of the war and now a codefendant with Daladier.

"Can you tell us why those tanks were not manufactured earlier?" Caous asked.

Gamelin arose and replied briefly: "That would incriminate everything."

Adjutant General's office and can be announced as soon as the Senate agrees with the House on the bill, which was introduced in the House by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts, and in the Senate by Senator Lister Hill (Democrat), of Alabama.

Officers to Be Trained

The measure permits the War Department to accept up to 150,000 women volunteers for noncombatant duty. The first 12,500 will be assigned to the air-raid warning services.

An officers' training school will be set up immediately, at a location not yet announced. Approximately 30 women from each of the Army's nine corps will be accepted for six weeks of intensive training. This will provide four officers for each of the first 50 companies anticipated for air-raid warning duty.

Recruiting will proceed slowly, according to current plans, with strict physical and psychological tests given.

U. S. to Halt Metal Toy Output June 30

The war reached into the children's sphere yesterday with a Government order halting output of toys and games made of metal, plastic and other materials needed for the armed forces.

The edict, effective June 30, prohibits completely the manufacture of electric trains, motor and rubber-powered model airplanes, and other metal toys.

The War Production Board also ordered production of vacuum cleaners halted after April 30, as a preliminary to converting the 85 million dollar industry entirely to war work.

Eighteen companies, with factory employment totaling about 12,000 workers, were affected by the shutdown order, but WPB said that approximately one-fourth of the industry already had been converted entirely and that all of the companies now were producing some types of war supplies.

Use of iron, steel and zinc was banned at the same time for a long list of household articles ranging from fly swatters and cuspidors to curtain rods and coat hangers. Pots, pans and kitchenware were curtailed in various degrees.

Adults' recreational material also is affected by the toy order, for it covers dice, poker chips and games. Sporting goods and athletic equipment are not affected but playground equipment, except that used by clubs, schools and institutions, falls under the ban.

Reduction of the use of iron and steel in cooking utensils by 10 per cent immediately was ordered. In kitchenware and essential household articles, iron and steel use is cut 30 per cent and zinc use 50 per cent. This group of items includes wash basins, dishpans, garbage cans, tubs, washboards, can openers, pails and similar articles.

The use of iron, steel and zinc in nonessential articles is cut 50 per cent during April, May and June, and on July 1 its use is forbidden entirely. These articles include coat hooks and hangers, tie racks, fireplace equipment except screens, shoe trees, soap dishes, fly swatters, cuspidors, curtain rods, carpet beaters and similar articles.

Asbestos Textiles Affected

Disclosing that the Army was about to ask bids for more than 300,000 pairs of asbestos gloves, the board issued orders prohibiting manufacturers from delivering asbestos textiles except for manufacture of industrial packings or to fill orders carrying defense preference ratings.

Kerosene refrigerators were excluded, meanwhile, from orders halting production of domestic mechanical refrigerators after April 30.

Officials said the action was necessary to provide for essential Government requirements for this type of equipment. Approximately 15,500 kerosene refrigerators, which are adaptable to all conditions of use, particularly in remote areas where power facilities are not available, would be needed this year and the next by the Government. If production were stopped April 30, only about 3500 would be available.

Simultaneously, the board announced a program to reduce steel consumption in manufacture of nonmechanical ice refrigerators while permitting output of enough units to meet steadily increasing civilian demands.

Because of the production stoppage on mechanical refrigerating devices, WPB officials predicted, civilian demands for the duration of the war must be filled largely by manufacturers of the old-fashioned ice box.

During April, May and June, producers of the boxes will continue operating under the present 40 per cent cut in use of steel. After June 30, yesterday's order directed, they will be prohibited from using more than 20 pounds of steel in each box.

Land Opposes Atlantic and Gulf Dock Board

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Admiral Emory S. Land, Maritime Commission chairman, has given an unfavorable report on a White House suggestion to set up a Government-labor-management board to supervise longshore operations in loading war cargoes at Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Reliable sources reported that Land had written President Roosevelt in response to a White House memorandum of some days ago, declaring that the East Coast dock labor situation was satisfactory and that there was no need for a change.

The President's suggestion was made in the light of reports that the existing "shape-up" system of hiring longshoremen by the International Longshoremen's Association was inefficient, and offered free opportunities to saboteurs to enroll as union members and thus obtain access to merchant ships being loaded.

A similar supervisory board, under the chairmanship of Wayne Lyman Morse, dean of Oregon University law school and public member of the War Labor Board, was established recently with jurisdiction over Pacific Coast harbors. It is reported already to have effected substantial improvements and increased speed in loading ships in Western ports.

Asked yesterday about the report that President Roosevelt, in a letter to him, had raised the suggestion of a board for the East Coast, Land declared he would not discuss any correspondence from the White House.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, however, disclosed yesterday that last week Land had discussed the matter with her and had declared he felt that the East Coast dock labor situation was satisfactory. Miss Perkins said she had no views or information on the matter of the "shape-up," and deferred to Land's judgment.

According to maritime experts, one of the first acts of such an agency as was suggested would be establishment of Government hiring halls, like those on the West Coast, and the abolition of the "shape-up."

Butyl Rubber Poor Substitute, Farish Says

"Ersatz" rubber tires will be a poor substitute for the real thing, W. S. Farish, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, told the Senate Defense Investigating Committee yesterday, but they will be better than no tires at all.

Rubber companies using the petroleum-butyl rubber process developed by Standard Oil and the German Dye Trust, I. G. Farben Industrie "know how to make rubber tires which will last as long as 10,000 miles when used on passenger cars which are operated at less than 35 miles an hour," Farish said. "It required months of work after June, 1940, to arrive at this partial solution of the problem. The rubber companies had trouble also in making butyl rubber tire inner tubes. They had trouble adhering the valves to the tube and also with splicing the tube itself. There is a promise that these problems are nearly solved."

Despite the promise of rubber substitutes, the Rubber Reserve Co., of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation holds out little hope of relief for the motorist who is down to the cord now. There will be 90,000 tons of rubber substitute made in 1942; 250,000 tons by June, 1943, and 700,000 tons by January 1, 1944. There may be a small surplus for civilian use in 1944, RRC officials said.

Authorities insist: CHANGE OIL FOR SPRING. And you can insist on this oil that outlasted five other big quality brands by far. Not one came nearer than 58% of its mileage!

DOWN where the desert slew gold-hunters—down where 100° heat is "cool"—down in dread Death Valley six cars streaked. All were alike... all ran till wrecked. All started with full 5-quart fills of oil—locked in. All conditions were alike—certified. Five of the cars with five boasted brands of oil went as dead as the cattle skulls in the sands, while the one other oil still had quarts to go!

And that was the same Conoco N*th* motor oil which can refill your own crankcase today with the N*th* degree of mileage and engine endurance. Changing from weakened Winter leftovers to Conoco N*th* gives your engine OIL-PLATING for Spring. And OIL-PLATING is lubricant closely fastened all over inner engine parts as if "magnetized" against all draining back down to the crankcase. Bonded in place—even on straight-up surfaces—even overnight, and while your car is parked—OIL-PLATING can cut down the raw rubbing of precious parts during starting and running.

You can realize how that's all against hollowing out your engine till it eats too much oil, and may demand replacements that are getting scarcer—more costly. But another big thing is to keep the oil itself in shape. And this patented Conoco N*th* oil—at a popular price—comes to you with Thialkene inhibitor... man-made... the modern synthetic developed to check or inhibit effects that would otherwise degenerate your oil.

The science of it is a long story, but the mileage is a thousand times longer than that, and Death Valley proved it. So can you by changing to Conoco N*th* today for Spring, at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company

Nunnally Johnson Uncorks Some High-Proof Hilarity

'Roxie Hart' Siphoned Full of Acid Fun; Julie Haydon to Star Again at Catholic U.; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THE HYENAS would have been green with envy.

I mean at the way we ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the drama desks laughed at yesterday's preview screening of "Roxie Hart." No ladylike and gentlemanly titters, mind you, but bounteous bellows, dredged up from deep down in the anatomy.

GINGER ROGERS

As a billowing burlesque of Chicago justice, as it pertains to beautiful young trollops who blast their boy friends to death with bullets, "Roxie Hart" must be catalogued as the most potent spring tonic that has been whipped together in years. The hilarious spirit of the thing is tipped off in the first flash of the foreword: "This picture is dedicated to all the beautiful women in the world who have shot their husbands full of holes out of pique!"

This Twentieth Century-Fox button-buster, as everybody must know by now, was loosely adapted—very loosely—from Maurine Watkins' old stage play of "Chicago" by the waggish Nunnally Johnson in one of his more antic moods. If Mr. Johnson is as wise a young man as everybody knows him to be, he will never set foot in Chicago again without his dark glasses and false whiskers!

We have no foul intention of reviewing this masterpiece of mockery here and now, beyond the simple statement that Ginger Rogers, in the title role will knock you dizzy, and George Montgomery, her leading man, will make it fairly easy to understand about Hedy Lamarr.

Any showshopper in search of a laugh, who permits this one to get away, deserves to be locked in a projection room for the rest of his life with nothing to look at but "Bahama Passage!"

Those ol' debbil twins, a late curtain and an early deadline, have gone and done it again! In "completing the cast" in yesterday's review of Emlyn Williams' "Yesterday's Magic," starring Paul Muni at the National, great haste and no speed omitted the name of James Monks, whose performance of the richly amusing Welsh "Tommy," without a sense of humor, deserved no such anonymity. Along with Margaret Douglas and Brenda Forbes, Mr. Monks is one to be noted as a generous contributor to the comedy of the evening.

Brilliant Young Star to Return

Among the brighter spots of a sunshiny day—it is Tuesday we are talking about—is the announcement from Father Gilbert V. Hartke, director of the speech and drama department at Catholic University, that Julie Haydon, star of such Broadway hits as Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance" and Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life," will be returning to Washington and the campus to appear in the title role—both halves of it—in "Art and Prudence." Variety—diversity of plays, not the weekly handbook of show business—being one of the mainsprings of the production policy at C. U., Walter Kerr's "frothy satire on professional drama schools" will be the offering to follow in the wake of Florence Reed's illustrious engagement in "Athaliah." It will open in the University Theater on Wednesday night, April 8, with Miss Haydon's appearance made possible by the postponement of "Life, Laughter and Tears," for which she is articled to Eddie Dowling.

And John Golden has definitely decided to send Rose Franken's comedy hit, "Claudia" to the West Coast for engagements in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Whether it will be the New York company, the Chicago company, or a troupe made up of members of both, has not as yet been determined. Whatever the eventuation, it will have no effect upon next week's return engagement of the original cast, headed by Dorothy McGuire, Donald Cook and Frances Starr, at the National.

A Biblical Masterpiece in Revival

A national committee, appropriately called the "King of Kings Committee," is sponsoring the showing of Cecil B. DeMille's famous picture of the Life of Christ in cities throughout the country during this Holy Week. In Washington it is being presented daily, except Saturday, in the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets. Today and tomorrow it will be shown once only at 8 p. m., but on Good Friday it will have four screenings, at 10:30 a. m., 1:30, 4 and 8 p. m., and on Easter, three, at 3, 5:30 and 8. The enterprise is being supported by free will offerings, no admission being charged.

The Southern Sisters, now at the Earle, are a bit nonplussed. Compelled to plane to Washington from Cleveland for the current engagement with Johnny Long's Orchestra, and forced to high altitude by bad ground weather, they were no little chagrined to discover that their pet white Java rice bird began to droop as soon as the rarefied heights were reached. The crew piped oxygen into the cage to keep the bird alive. It survived the trip, but lost a little face with its charming owners. "Some bird, that doesn't like to fly!" is the caustic way they put it.

Ginger Wilder 'Bout Wilder!

Hollywood, Calif., March 31.—Billy Wilder is going to be as good a director as he is a writer. He knows what he wants and gets it on "Major and Minor" with laughs. Ginger Rogers adores him and says, "Why not? He's written the best script I've had in ages." Funny to see Ginger in freckles and pigtails, without a smidge of makeup in the same scene with Ray Milland, covered with grease paint and every hair in place.

VICTOR MATURE

Ginger was raving about the fourteen new golden Guernseys she and her mother bought for the ranch. Lela, who's a confirmed night-hawk, now goes to bed at 11 o'clock so she can get up at 5 and watch the milking. I asked Ginger if she was going in for a prize bull, too. She said, "No, I get enough 'bull' around here without paying for it."

Easter Brings Wide Range Of Attractions

"CLAUDIA." With its original company intact, John Golden's production of the Rose Franken play returns Monday evening to the stage of the National, where it launched its career prior to a year's run in New York. Dorothy McGuire is the naive young wife, Frances Starr her wise mother, Donald Cook her understanding husband and Olga Baclanova their theatrical friend. Mrs. Franken's story relates how the childlike wife became a woman through the illness of a mother who had shielded her from the hard knocks of life. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Glen Echo

THE AMUSEMENT PARK opens its season on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. This will be the park's thirty-second season, one of the spring and summer features of the Capital's amusement life. Over 50 attractions include the Coaster Dips, Waterway Canal, Flying Scooter, Midway House, Carrousel, Shooting Galleries, Haunted House, two cafes and commodious picnic groves. In the Spanish Garden ballroom, Paul Kain's orchestra will play for its third season, with a new member of his musicians, Iris O'Brien, at the mike for the vocals.

Palace

"THE COURTSHIP OF ANDY HARDY." Mickey Rooney's latest romantic escape as the youngest of the Hardys features, as usual, Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford, Sara Haden and, as a newcomer, Donna Reed, object of the Rooney affections. This twelfth of the series finds Andy carrying the torch for the village wallflower—a purely temporary status. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"THE MALE ANIMAL." James Thurber's and Elliott Nugent's stage comedy comes to the screen in a highly praised version directed by Coauthor Nugent. Henry Fonda, Olivia de Haviland, Joan Leslie, Jack Carson, Eugene Pallette, Ivan Simpson and Hattie McDaniel are the leading players, telling of the college professor who tangles with the trustees when he threatens to read a piece they think subversive. The stage revue features the return of the Roxyettes from a four-week holiday and Ballerina Carol King. The 14 Coeds and the Four Arnauts and Nolly complete the bill. Opens Friday morning.

Capitol

"ROXIE HART." Ginger Rogers' latest comedy, an adaptation of Maurine Watkins' stage hit, "Chicago," tells of the little chorus girl whose insatiable desire for publicity prompts her to go on trial for a murder she did not commit. Adolph Menjou and George Montgomery are featured. The Capitol stage revue stars two dancers of national repute, Paul Haakon and Patricia Bowman. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"MR. BUG GOES TO TOWN." Paramount's new full-length Technicolor cartoon, from the Fleischer studios, tells of a community of little people (called insects by humans) who live in Bugville, just 45 inches from Broadway. Hoppity, Honey Bee, C. Bagley Beetle, Jeepers Creepers and Mr. Bumble are the leading characters. Hoagy Carmichael wrote the score. Also at the Metropolitan will be the puppet novelty cartoon, "Jasper and the Watermelon." Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"SECRET AGENT OF JAPAN." Created from idea to finished print since December 7, this topical melodrama is laid in Shanghai in the days immediately preceding and terminating with the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor. John Larkin wrote the screenplay. Preston Foster, Lynn Bari, Noel Madison, Sen Yung, Janis Carter, Steve Geray, Kurt Katch, and Jan Wolfe are the players. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

Pix

Little

"FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT." Alfred Hitchcock's espionage thriller of a newspaper reporter who becomes involved in the beginning of the war is revived for a week's run. Joel McCrea, Laraine Day, Herbert Marshall, George Sanders, Albert Basserman, Robert Benchley and Edmund Gwenn are the players. Opens this morning.

Trans-Lux

"CAVALCADE OF AVIATION." Starting with the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk and progressing through the soaring importance of flying, this is the chief short subject of the incoming bill at the newsreel theater. The news clips edited by Kaltenborn and Tex McCrary continue. The color cartoon is "The Sky Princess." Opens Friday morning.

Gayety

"BLACK AND WHITE REVUE." The friendly contest of two casts furnishes novelty for the Easter Week attraction at the burlesque house opening Sunday afternoon. Costarred are Renee and Dusty "Open-the-Door" Richard. Others performers include Irving B. Hamp, Gertie Beck, Sally O'Day, Charlie Harris, Harry "Shuffles" LeVan, Emery Evans, Susaye Brown and Betty Coette. Midnight performance Saturday evening.

Children's Theater

"THE POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL." Clare Tree Major's Children's Theater of New York will present its last offering of the season Saturday morning at 10:30 in the National Theater.

She Remembers Pearl Harbor

MRS. DONALD LEE KENT, a recent evacuee from the Hawaiian Islands, is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Lee, 2126 Thirteenth Street Northeast. Said Mrs. Kent of the raid on Pearl Harbor: "We were scared to death at first, but in a few minutes we settled down to the real business of war." Mrs. Kent said she and her husband, a Navy warrant officer, were asleep at the time of the raid. They were awakened, she said, by the wailings of Pudgy, a pet dog

CCC Enrollment Declines Heavily, But Bosses Keep Jobs

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

From the testimony of James J. McEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Senate Education and Labor Committee yesterday determined that while CCC enrollments soon will have dropped about 80 per cent from the peak of a few years ago, the number of employes in the agency's Washington office has been reduced by only 28.2 per cent.

McEntee did not give the committee the benefit of a percentage comparison of enrollment and payroll declines, but he did disclose that the CCC at one time operated a "peak load" of 3652 camps with about 200 enrollees per camp. He added that, effective April 15, the number of camps will have been reduced to 600 with an average of 180 enrollees per camp.

McEntee's figures would give the CCC a "peak" enrollment of slightly more than 530,000 as against an April 15 enrollment of approximately 108,000, or a little more than 20 per cent of the corps strength during a period of the depression.

The CCC, McEntee said, has 719 employes on its Washington payroll in addition to a field force totaling 29,202. The field force has undergone a reduction in recent years of 50 per cent, as compared with the 28.2 per cent decline in the Washington payroll.

On the committee's witness stand for the second successive day in opposition to the McKellar bill to liquidate the CCC and transfer its more essential war functions to other agencies, McEntee said: "You don't get the reductions in the office here that you do in the field."

"We are very cognizant of that," responded Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, accused the corps of conducting a "deliberate drive to fill up the CCC camps in the country." To back up his charge, he read parts of an article headed "CCC Wants 5000 Boys" from a Texas newspaper and called attention to a similar story in a Columbus, Ohio, paper.

"We have never done any recruiting, Senator," McEntee insisted, but added that it might be a good time in the face of the declining enrollments and necessary CCC war work. He explained that recruiting drives are conducted by "selectors" who are State, rather than Federal, employes.

"You say you don't think the CCC inspired that at all?" Taft parried.

McKellar called on McEntee to furnish the committee with figures showing how many young men have applied for CCC enrollment since Pearl Harbor. The Senator stated that there were 5498 CCC enrollees 21 years old or older. McEntee reported that 2500 enrollees have enlisted since December 7.

McEntee and McKellar clashed over CCC's budget. McEntee said he could see "no need" in discussing the budget now, but McKellar charged that McEntee's budget was 95 million dollars off last year and warned:

"I am on the Appropriations Committee and I'm telling you now there will be quite a discussion of your budget this year."

The pair clashed again when McEntee said that enrollees are under the "technical" direction of the Forest Service in fighting forest fires.

"Do you require technicians to put out fires?" McKellar began. "I thought it took a tremendous lot of energy to put out a fire, but I never heard that it took technicians . . . Anyone can fight a fire if its gets close enough to him. I know he will if it gets hot enough."

When Lieut. Col. J. H. McNinch, Army Medical Corps, told how the CCC conditioning program puts weight on thin youths and causes over-fat ones to reduce, McKellar cracked that the CCC should be a "great institution" for women.

40-Hour Week Fight Laid to Labor Haters

Representative William J. Fitzgerald (Democrat), of Connecticut, said last night it might be a good idea for the Government to "buy 1000 machine guns and shoot about 10,000 of these fellows" who are stirring up "dissension" between labor and capital.

The attempt to destroy the 40-hour week, the white-haired Congressman told a meeting of the Connecticut State Society in the Continental Hotel, "is being made by people who hate labor, by people who want to exploit and suck the blood out of women and children."

He predicted that if the 40-hour week is repealed, organized labor's ranks will be swelled "from 12 million to 25 or 30 million."

Movie Stars Evade Reporters Here

Stirling Hayden, Hollywood's blond Adonis, and the beauteous Madeleine Carroll, the voting choice sometime back of New York collegians for companionship on a desert isle, blew into the Hotel Roosevelt last night and beat a hasty exit through a side door a few minutes later while a crew of reporters and photographers vainly sought confirmation of widespread reports that they were married, or were going to get married.

A suite had been reserved there the night before, hotel sources said, by Commander Ben H. Wyatt, U. S. N., in Hayden's name. Commander Wyatt took a suite at the Roosevelt March 2 and was joined a few days later by his wife.

Hayden and Miss Carroll returned to the hotel with their hosts shortly after midnight and went to their rooms after leaving word that they were not to be disturbed. Miss Carroll, it was stated, took Room 218 with Mrs. Wyatt, while Hayden had Room 602.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Nunnally Johnson Uncorks Some High-Proof Hilarity

'Roxie Hart' Siphoned Full of Acid Fun; Julie Haydon to Star Again at Catholic U.; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THE HYENAS would have been green with envy.

I mean at the way we ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the drama desks laughed at yesterday's preview screening of "Roxie Hart." No ladylike and gentlemanly titters, mind you, but bounteous bellows, dredged up from deep down in the anatomy.

GINGER ROGERS

As a billowing burlesque of Chicago justice, as it pertains to beautiful young trollops who blast their boy friends to death with bullets, "Roxie Hart" must be catalogued as the most potent spring tonic that has been whipped together in years. The hilarious spirit of the thing is tipped off in the first flash of the foreword: "This picture is dedicated to all the beautiful women in the world who have shot their husbands full of holes out of pique!"

This Twentieth Century-Fox button-buster, as everybody must know by now, was loosely adapted—very loosely—from Maurine Watkins' old stage play of "Chicago" by the waggish Nunnally Johnson in one of his more antic moods. If Mr. Johnson is as wise a young man as everybody knows him to be, he will never set foot in Chicago again without his dark glasses and false whiskers!

We have no foul intention of reviewing this masterpiece of mockery here and now, beyond the simple statement that Ginger Rogers, in the title role will knock you dizzy, and George Montgomery, her leading man, will make it fairly easy to understand about Hedy Lamarr.

Any showshopper in search of a laugh, who permits this one to get away, deserves to be locked in a projection room for the rest of his life with nothing to look at but "Bahama Passage!"

Those ol' debbil twins, a late curtain and an early deadline, have gone and done it again! In "completing the cast" in yesterday's review of Emlyn Williams' "Yesterday's Magic," starring Paul Muni at the National, great haste and no speed omitted the name of James Monks, whose performance of the richly amusing Welsh "Tommy," without a sense of humor, deserved no such anonymity. Along with Margaret Douglas and Brenda Forbes, Mr. Monks is one to be noted as a generous contributor to the comedy of the evening.

Brilliant Young Star to Return

Among the brighter spots of a sunshiny day—it is Tuesday we are talking about—is the announcement from Father Gilbert V. Hartke, director of the speech and drama department at Catholic University, that Julie Haydon, star of such Broadway hits as Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance" and Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life," will be returning to Washington and the campus to appear in the title role—both halves of it—in "Art and Prudence." Variety—diversity of plays, not the weekly handbook of show business—being one of the mainsprings of the production policy at C. U., Walter Kerr's "frothy satire on professional drama schools" will be the offering to follow in the wake of Florence Reed's illustrious engagement in "Athaliah." It will open in the University Theater on Wednesday night, April 8, with Miss Haydon's appearance made possible by the postponement of "Life, Laughter and Tears," for which she is articled to Eddie Dowling.

And John Golden has definitely decided to send Rose Franken's comedy hit, "Claudia" to the West Coast for engagements in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Whether it will be the New York company, the Chicago company, or a troupe made up of members of both, has not as yet been determined. Whatever the eventuation, it will have no effect upon next week's return engagement of the original cast, headed by Dorothy McGuire, Donald Cook and Frances Starr, at the National.

A Biblical Masterpiece in Revival

A national committee, appropriately called the "King of Kings Committee," is sponsoring the showing of Cecil B. DeMille's famous picture of the Life of Christ in cities throughout the country during this Holy Week. In Washington it is being presented daily, except Saturday, in the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets. Today and tomorrow it will be shown once only at 8 p. m., but on Good Friday it will have four screenings, at 10:30 a. m., 1:30, 4 and 8 p. m., and on Easter, three, at 3, 5:30 and 8. The enterprise is being supported by free will offerings, no admission being charged.

The Southern Sisters, now at the Earle, are a bit nonplussed. Compelled to plane to Washington from Cleveland for the current engagement with Johnny Long's Orchestra, and forced to high altitude by bad ground weather, they were no little chagrined to discover that their pet white Java rice bird began to droop as soon as the rarefied heights were reached. The crew piped oxygen into the cage to keep the bird alive. It survived the trip, but lost a little face with its charming owners. "Some bird, that doesn't like to fly!" is the caustic way they put it.

LEONARD LYONS

Words to the Wise!

New York, March 31.

DONALD NELSON: Oliver Lyttelton, Britain's production chief, is coming to Washington soon to confer with you about coordinating production . . . STANDARD OIL CO.: Thurman Arnold will be recalled this week to testify before the Truman committee about the synthetic rubber patents. Under subpoena, he will supply the names of those who tried to suppress the story . . . EDDIE CANTOR: H. R. Knickerbocker, the foreign correspondent now in Australia, learned that his wife had just given birth to another daughter. He asked Gen. MacArthur for a statement about daughters. The general said: "Strong people have girl babies. And we have to be tough in spite of that."

MADELEINE CARROLL

MAYOR LAGUARDIA: Last week end the judges of the county court and general sessions drafted a bill to be sent to the New York State Legislature. Its provisions would permit them to take jurisdiction of all adolescent cases which, until now, have been tried by the other courts . . . MUSIC CRITICS CIRCLE: Frances Nash, the pianist, will perform in New York with the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra on April 7 . . . THOMAS E. DEWEY. Although Gov. Lehman says he doesn't expect to be a candidate in November, the "Draft Lehman" movement will begin at the May 6 meeting of Affiliated Young Democrats.

FORT JAY: Jack Chrysler, son of Walter P. Chrysler, will be in the Army within the next few days . . . CAPT. JOHNNY GREEN: Be ready for action this summer. The New York State Guard will hold maneuvers, for ten days, at Camp Smith and probably at Pine Camp, too . . . JOHN VAN DRUTEN: Twelve-year-old Pat Hitchcock, who received the best reviews of the season when she appeared in your play, "Solitaire," returned to Hollywood prepared to receive the acclaim of her schoolmates at the convent where she studies. But on her first day back, young Pat and the rest of her class had to go into retreat—a three-day period of mediation during which no word is spoken.

PARAMOUNT: Madelaine Carroll's agent, who accompanied her to Canada for a war show there, purchased an overcoat, but didn't have enough with which to pay the duty. Miss Carroll borrowed the necessary $10 from a customs guard . . . DREW PEARSON: Is your partner, Bob Allen, being commissioned by the Army? . . . OMEGA CHI: As a result of the recent unfavorable publicity about a high school fraternity in Westchester, all fraternities will be outlawed after June at the swanky prep school, Exeter. The officials now insist that frats are undemocratic.

DAMON RUNYON: Jesse Block, who played "Joe Turp" on the radio dramatizations of your stories, leaves for Hollywood this week—for a movie deal to appear with his wife, Eve Sully, in the next Jack Benny picture . . . THURMAN ARNOLD: Walter Teagle, head of Standard Oil, says of the recently-exposed deals: "People forget that Standard Oil is an international corporation." . . . ARCHIBALD MacLEISH: A few days ago the receptionist at your Office of Facts and Figures telephoned an official and said: "There's a Mr. Hobsburg to see you." The caller, who waited with jutting chin, was Otto, the pretender to the Hapsburg throne.

LICENSE COMMISSIONER PAUL MOSS: George Jessel, whose "High Kickers" opens in Boston next week, invited the Boston censor to see his show last Friday, to obviate any difficulties. The censor is a reasonable gentleman . . . EQUITY: Countess Maeterlinck, who will appear in her husband's playlet on April 25 at N. Y. U.'s French Club, was asked for a biographic sketch, to be used for the show's publicity. "What I've done before, isn't important. It's what they see onstage that matters," she replied. "Why tell them I have talent? If that is true, they'll be aware of it. And if that is not true, they will make me aware of it."

Ginger Wilder 'Bout Wilder!

Hollywood, Calif., March 31.—Billy Wilder is going to be as good a director as he is a writer. He knows what he wants and gets it on "Major and Minor" with laughs. Ginger Rogers adores him and says, "Why not? He's written the best script I've had in ages." Funny to see Ginger in freckles and pigtails, without a smidge of makeup in the same scene with Ray Milland, covered with grease paint and every hair in place.

VICTOR MATURE

Ginger was raving about the fourteen new golden Guernseys she and her mother bought for the ranch. Lela, who's a confirmed night-hawk, now goes to bed at 11 o'clock so she can get up at 5 and watch the milking. I asked Ginger if she was going in for a prize bull, too. She said, "No, I get enough 'bull' around here without paying for it."

Easter Brings Wide Range Of Attractions

"CLAUDIA." With its original company intact, John Golden's production of the Rose Franken play returns Monday evening to the stage of the National, where it launched its career prior to a year's run in New York. Dorothy McGuire is the naive young wife. Frances Starr her wise mother. Donald Cook her understanding husband and Olga Baclanova their theatrical friend. Mrs. Franken's story relates how the childlike wife became a woman through the illness of a mother who had shielded her from the hard knocks of life. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Glen Echo

THE AMUSEMENT PARK opens its season on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. This will be the park's thirty-second season, one of the spring and summer features of the Capital's amusement life. Over 50 attractions include the Coaster Dips, Waterway Canal, Flying Scooter, Midway House, Carrousel, Shooting Galleries, Haunted House, two cafes and commodious picnic groves. In the Spanish Garden ballroom, Paul Kain's orchestra will play for its third season, with a new member of his musicians, Iris O'Brien, at the mike for the vocals.

Palace

"THE COURTSHIP OF ANDY HARDY." Mickey Rooney's latest romantic escape as the youngest of the Hardys features, as usual, Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford, Sara Haden and, as a newcomer, Donna Reed, object of the Rooney affections. This twelfth of the series finds Andy carrying the torch for the village wallflower—a purely temporary status. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"THE MALE ANIMAL." James Thurber's and Elliott Nugent's stage comedy comes to the screen in a highly praised version directed by Coauthor Nugent. Henry Fonda, Olivia de Haviland, Joan Leslie, Jack Carson, Eugene Pallette, Ivan Simpson and Hattie McDaniel are the leading players, telling of the college professor who tangles with the trustees when he threatens to read a piece they think subversive. The stage revue features the return of the Roxyettes from a four-week holiday and Ballerina Carol King. The 14 Coeds and the Four Arnauts and Nolly complete the bill. Opens Friday morning.

Capitol

"ROXIE HART." Ginger Rogers' latest comedy, an adaptation of Maurine Watkins' stage hit, "Chicago," tells of the little chorus girl whose insatiable desire for publicity prompts her to go on trial for a murder she did not commit. Adolph Menjou and George Montgomery are featured. The Capitol stage revue stars two dancers of national repute, Paul Haakon and Patricia Bowman. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"MR. BUG GOES TO TOWN." Paramount's new full-length Technicolor cartoon, from the Fleischer studios, tells of a community of little people (called insects by humans) who live in Bugville, just 45 inches from Broadway. Hoppity, Honey Bee, C. Bagley Beetle, Jeepers Creepers and Mr. Bumble are the leading characters. Hoagy Carmichael wrote the score. Also at the Metropolitan will be the puppet novelty cartoon, "Jasper and the Watermelon." Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"SECRET AGENT OF JAPAN." Created from idea to finished print since December 7, this topical melodrama is laid in Shanghai in the days immediately preceding and terminating with the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor. John Larkin wrote the screenplay. Preston Foster, Lynn Bari, Noel Madison, Sen Yung, Janis Carter, Steve Geray, Kurt Katch, and Jan Wolfe are the players. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

Pix

Little

"FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT." Alfred Hitchcock's espionage thriller of a newspaper reporter who becomes involved in the beginning of the war is revived for a week's run. Joel McCrea, Laraine Day, Herbert Marshall, George Sanders, Albert Basserman, Robert Benchley and Edmund Gwenn are the players. Opens this morning.

Trans-Lux

"CAVALCADE OF AVIATION." Starting with the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk and progressing through the soaring importance of flying, this is the chief short subject of the incoming bill at the newsreel theater. The news clips edited by Kaltenborn and Tex McCrary continue. The color cartoon is "The Sky Princess." Opens Friday morning.

Gayety

"BLACK AND WHITE REVUE." The friendly contest of two casts furnishes novelty for the Easter Week attraction at the burlesque house opening Sunday afternoon. Costarred are Renee and Dusty "Open-the-Door" Richard. Others performers include Irving B. Hamp, Gertie Beck, Sally O'Day, Charlie Harris, Harry "Shuffles" LeVan, Emery Evans, Susaye Brown and Betty Coette. Midnight performance Saturday evening.

Children's Theater

"THE POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL." Clare Tree Major's Children's Theater of New York will present its last offering of the season Saturday morning at 10:30 in the National Theater.

She Remembers Pearl Harbor

MRS. DONALD LEE KENT, a recent evacuee from the Hawaiian Islands, is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Lee, 2126 Thirteenth Street Northeast. Said Mrs. Kent of the raid on Pearl Harbor: "We were scared to death at first, but in a few minutes we settled down to the real business of war." Mrs. Kent said she and her husband, a Navy warrant officer, were asleep at the time of the raid. They were awakened, she said, by the wailings of Pudgy, a pet dog

CCC Enrollment Declines Heavily, But Bosses Keep Jobs

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

From the testimony of James J. McEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Senate Education and Labor Committee yesterday determined that while CCC enrollments soon will have dropped about 80 per cent from the peak of a few years ago, the number of employes in the agency's Washington office has been reduced by only 28.2 per cent.

McEntee did not give the committee the benefit of a percentage comparison of enrollment and payroll declines, but he did disclose that the CCC at one time operated a "peak load" of 3652 camps with about 200 enrollees per camp. He added that, effective April 15, the number of camps will have been reduced to 600 with an average of 180 enrollees per camp.

McEntee's figures would give the CCC a "peak" enrollment of slightly more than 530,000 as against an April 15 enrollment of approximately 108,000, or a little more than 20 per cent of the corps strength during a period of the depression.

The CCC, McEntee said, has 719 employes on its Washington payroll in addition to a field force totaling 29,202. The field force has undergone a reduction in recent years of 50 per cent, as compared with the 28.2 per cent decline in the Washington payroll.

On the committee's witness stand for the second successive day in opposition to the McKellar bill to liquidate the CCC and transfer its more essential war functions to other agencies, McEntee said: "You don't get the reductions in the office here that you do in the field."

"We are very cognizant of that," responded Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, accused the corps of conducting a "deliberate drive to fill up the CCC camps in the country." To back up his charge, he read parts of an article headed "CCC Wants 5000 Boys" from a Texas newspaper and called attention to a similar story in a Columbus, Ohio, paper.

"We have never done any recruiting, Senator," McEntee insisted, but added that it might be a good time in the face of the declining enrollments and necessary CCC war work. He explained that recruiting drives are conducted by "selectors" who are State, rather than Federal, employes.

"You say you don't think the CCC inspired that at all?" Taft parried.

McKellar called on McEntee to furnish the committee with figures showing how many young men have applied for CCC enrollment since Pearl Harbor. The Senator stated that there were 5498 CCC enrollees 21 years old or older. McEntee reported that 2500 enrollees have enlisted since December 7.

McEntee and McKellar clashed over CCC's budget. McEntee said he could see "no need" in discussing the budget now, but McKellar charged that McEntee's budget was 95 million dollars off last year and warned:

"I am on the Appropriations Committee and I'm telling you now there will be quite a discussion of your budget this year."

The pair clashed again when McEntee said that enrollees are under the "technical" direction of the Forest Service in fighting forest fires.

"Do you require technicians to put out fires?" McKellar began. "I thought it took a tremendous lot of energy to put out a fire, but I never heard that it took technicians . . . Anyone can fight a fire if its gets close enough to him. I know he will if it gets hot enough."

When Lieut. Col. J. H. McNinch, Army Medical Corps, told how the CCC conditioning program puts weight on thin youths and causes over-fat ones to reduce, McKellar cracked that the CCC should be a "great institution" for women.

40-Hour Week Fight Laid to Labor Haters

Representative William J. Fitzgerald (Democrat), of Connecticut, said last night it might be a good idea for the Government to "buy 1000 machine guns and shoot about 10,000 of these fellows" who are stirring up "dissension" between labor and capital.

The attempt to destroy the 40-hour week, the white-haired Congressman told a meeting of the Connecticut State Society in the Continental Hotel, "is being made by people who hate labor, by people who want to exploit and suck the blood out of women and children."

He predicted that if the 40-hour week is repealed, organized labor's ranks will be swelled "from 12 million to 25 or 30 million."

Movie Stars Evade Reporters Here

Stirling Hayden, Hollywood's blond Adonis, and the beauteous Madeleine Carroll, the voting choice sometime back of New York collegians for companionship on a desert isle, blew into the Hotel Roosevelt last night and beat a hasty exit through a side door a few minutes later while a crew of reporters and photographers vainly sought confirmation of widespread reports that they were married, or were going to get married.

A suite had been reserved there the night before, hotel sources said, by Commander Ben H. Wyatt, U. S. N., in Hayden's name. Commander Wyatt took a suite at the Roosevelt March 2 and was joined a few days later by his wife.

Hayden and Miss Carroll returned to the hotel with their hosts shortly after midnight and went to their rooms after leaving word that they were not to be disturbed. Miss Carroll, it was stated, took Room 218 with Mrs. Wyatt, while Hayden had Room 602.

Higher Pay

It was a foregone conclusion that the Senate would raise no serious objection to increased compensation for the armed services. But its unanimous approval of Senator Johnson's bill was, among other things, a tribute to the obvious fairness of his proposal. For he would so readjust pay or perquisites as to help out where help is most needed. The Government already pays for the food and shelter of enlisted men, but the men have found that their relatively modest cash return doesn't go nearly as far as it did a few months ago. Consequently, Senator Johnson would grant substantial pay increases to help meet the general price rise. On the other hand, so far as officers in the higher grades are concerned, he would increase not their pay but their subsistence and rental allowances, as a necessary concession to the increase in living costs.

This is probably as wise an over-all coverage of the situation as could be expected. The bill is in no sense an attempt to pay officers and men in full for service to the country. There is, in fact, no possible way of doing this. But by adding some 282 million dollars to the annual cost of maintaining the military and naval establishments—not an overwhelmingly large item in a war program that is measured by the tens of billions—at least some additional effort would be made to meet the basic needs of the men in uniform. Surely the House will recognize the advisability of doing this and will register its conviction—the sooner the better—no less impressively than did the Senate.

Dr. Padilla

Washington has been host to a great many distinguished statesmen during recent days, but none is more welcome than Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, foreign minister of Mexico. He comes to us as the representative of a great and friendly neighbor who, within a short time after Pearl Harbor, manifested her solidarity with the United States by breaking off diplomatic relations with the Axis. But he is just as welcome on personal grounds. Dr. Padilla is the living embodiment of the democratic tradition and the spirit of hemisphere solidarity. At the recent inter-American conference in Rio Dr. Padilla fairly electrified the statesmen of the 21 republics of the New World with one of the most eloquent and penetrating pleas for unity of mind and heart and hand among the peoples and nations that inhabit our two continents.

In the long history of Mexican-American relationships there have been times when the two countries did not see eye to eye, to say the least. Fortunately the differences that once divided us have disappeared. The two nations now share common aims and aspirations. They stand together with the overwhelming majority of their fellow American republics against the dark forces that would make a shambles of civilization. Because of the spirit that now permeates and pervades this hemisphere the United States, as Dr. Padilla said on arriving here, "has only to watch the oceans. North and south she has very decided friends with a keen sense of the common destiny of the continent." No American statesman has given better expression to that solidarity than Dr. Padilla himself.

Voting Blind

On the eve of a two weeks' informal recess the House did a foolish thing. It passed an 18-billion-dollar war measure carrying a 6 per cent limitation on profits from contracts paid for out of the appropriated funds. The proposal to restrict profits was tacked on the bill at the last minute, and passed without debate with only a few members present. Congressmen will be deceiving only themselves if they imagine that such irresponsible legislative conduct will curry favor with critics back home who are rightly demanding that strict controls be established over both profits and wages.

The public wants action, to be sure. But it also wants assurance that control legislation will achieve its objective without impairment of our war efforts. Instead, the House has voted blindly for a type of profits restriction that the Treasury's tax experts regard as both ineffectual and detrimental to the war production program. And it has added to its sins of commission by attaching the profits amendment as a "rider" to an important war appropriation measure.

We can only hope that the amendment, which Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee concedes to be "absolutely unworkable" in its present vague form, will be thrown out by the Senate. On sober second thought the House may then be more inclined to follow the sound advice of the Treasury and find other and better ways of putting a stop to war profiteering.

Stripping For War

Those who insist that the only way in which this war can be won is by a shift from peace to war standards seem to have incurred the charge that they are "Old Dealers." They are held to be using the war as a means of setting up the "old order" again. They want to scrap the "social gains" of this Administration. The charge is widespread enough to call for an answer. For there can be no unity, let alone any comprehensive mobilization for war, as long as the battle to convert our peace standards is confounded by such suspicion.

In meeting the charge there is an initial difficulty which comes from the nebulous nature of these phrases. What is the old order? What are the social gains? What are Old Dealers? It is impossible to say what these phrases mean except in juxtaposition to a specific subject. The old order, presumably, is the one which decreed that a business depression should be allowed to run its course unimpeded by government. Surely there are few persons left who are so reactionary. If there are, there need be no fear that they will ever again control our politics. A return to a lack of system which left the government without a sense of responsibility for keeping the economy on an even keel is inconceivable. It can never resign that responsibility. The effect of this war, if not the new age of enlightenment, affords the guaranty.

That is a revolution which has now been absorbed into our national life. It is a "social gain" in the sense that this kind of economic responsibility is a social responsibility. We balk at a depression running its course because our social conscience will no longer tolerate breadlines and starvation. Unemployment has come to be recognized as an evil which left alone would eventually eat away the foundations of our society. That is why only the myopic can foresee the winding up of the Government in the role of balance wheel of industry. If the right to work is denied to our citizens by the falling off of private employment, then the Government itself must provide the jobs.

Such an assumption of responsibility is written in the Four Freedoms for which we are fighting. One of them is freedom from want. Political freedom has been enjoyed increasingly in our Nation, but there has been no corresponding growth of economic security. The lack of correlation between these two vital elements of the good society made the people of other lands acquiesce in the rise of tyranny. They exchanged their liberties for what they felt was security. As it happened, they got neither, but the task of the Freedom Front when war is over is to pin individual security to our liberties. This means that, consistent with the encouragement of free enterprise, government will continue to play a big role in our economic life.

Of course, the stuff of debate will always revolve around how much or how little power Government should exercise in effecting this grand purpose. But this debate belongs to the peace. At present a war has to be won which threatens both our freedom and our security. That should be our overriding preoccupation. It is a war of such dimensions that all peace standards must go by the board. All of them must yield to the inexorable necessity of making war.

That is the reason that the theory governing tax policy, for instance, has had to be transformed. No longer can taxes be used as a means for the redistribution of income. The need now is to mop up income which is released by the war without a corresponding output of consumer goods. Secretary Morgenthau's primary objective is to do precisely this; i. e., to prevent inflation. Doubtless Secretary Morgenthau is as ardently New Deal as ever, but he would simply be inviting the ruin of the currency if he recommended war taxes for the purpose of accomplishing the peacetime aim of redistributing income.

A similar revolution in approach is required in respect of other peacetime standards. The retention of "social gains" which were nothing but relief agencies—such as NYA and CCC—is absurd at a time of a shortage of labor. The 40-hour week, which was introduced solely to spread work, is likewise inappropriate. So is 110 per cent of parity for the farmers. If the conversionists were reactionary, they would insist upon the abolition of the social gains which are now part of our governmental structure. But there has been no such effort. There has been no campaign against the Magna Charta of labor which insures the right to organize freely and bargain collectively. There has been no campaign against the parity principle for agriculture.

All that the conversionist demands is that the Nation should wind up the standards which were laid down for a temporary condition which has now vanished. He wants to make sure that the greatest war in our history shall be won.

Pacific War Council

At last the Pacific War Council which the Australians have been urging upon Washington has been set up. Hitherto the suggestion has been treated somewhat lightly. It was thought of as a proposal which, if acted upon, would be a friendly but not absolutely essential concession to Australia and New Zealand.

Whether or not he intended to, the President expressed this attitude the other day. He was asked whether the requests of Australia and New Zealand for a more effective part in strategic decisions would be met. He replied that pretty good teamwork and contact already existed, but that if establishing a Pacific Council would make anybody happy, it ought to be done. It is a fact, of course, that representatives of both countries have been sitting in on combined staff deliberations both here and in London. And it may be that their actual role in the direction of the war from now on will not be so very different from what it has been.

It does seem, though, that the President's attitude did not take fully into account the potentialities of a Pacific Council either as a symbol of Allied cooperation or as a material weapon. Perhaps the establishment of the Council means that he has changed his approach. At any rate, all of the countries fighting Japan are now made to feel that they are participants on an equal footing in the stern business of deciding how and where to hit the common enemy. This is a prime moral requisite in a war effort which involves no fewer than seven allies. Each has its special problems—and special knowledge. Moreover, it is the Allies' special knowledge, properly utilized, which helps make grand strategy.

Thus, if the war is to be carried to the enemy in the Netherlands East Indies, or in China, the representatives of those countries have to share in the responsibility for mapping the campaigns. They know better than their Allies many of the complicated factors which go to make up the logistics of a given situation, and must be called in for consultation. To admit this—and it must be admitted—is tantamount to acknowledging that the advice of each ally is indispensable. This, quite apart from symbolic considerations, is reason enough for establishing a Pacific Council. In short, we have, at last, recognition that mutual risks carry with them mutual responsibilities which must be duly shared in the common interest.

Sense About Trusts

The Administration's decision to suspend antitrust suits for the duration of the war, if there is reason to believe that they would interfere with war production, is coupled with a proposal to extend the statute of limitations and thus make sure that wrongdoers will ultimately be punished. This is a sound and sensible policy. It offers greatly needed relief to industrialists from distracting and time-consuming investigations and prosecutions in these critical times. On the other hand, the Government makes it clear that regulatory laws passed in the public interest cannot be defied with impunity, even though the national emergency may delay their effective enforcement.

An especially significant feature of the proposal is that there will be close cooperation between the Justice, War and Navy Departments in determining whether a particular investigation, suit or prosecution would hamper our war effort. If the decision were left entirely to the Department of Justice, the tendency would probably be to decide in favor of action in doubtful cases. That danger is obviated by giving the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy the final say when differences of opinion arise, subject to a final appeal to the President.

As the President and the heads of the responsible departments have already agreed upon a plan of action, all that remains to be done to implement the new policy is for Congress to extend the three-year statute of limitation applicable to antitrust law violations.

SPRING OBJECTIVE

Having no thought but this:
That the frail blossom come
Where now no blossom is,
And that the frozen, dumb
And songless air be stirred
By the bid and casual bird.

Having no other aim,
(Being careless of our care)
But to come, as she always came,
Brightening the grass, the air—
For whose delight, for what,
Song . . . and forget-me-not . . .?

For naught, save that the spring
Must reach to song and flower,
Careless that men will bring,
Oh, surely, to her hour,
Their hearts, where no flower stood,
And listen, by a wood.

NYA Contribution

Without attempting a wholesale defense of NYA, which has its faults as we all have, I cannot let pass your unfair attack in yesterday morning's issue.

The assumption that the possession by NYA of a supply of metal working tools in connection with its training work is "worse than wasteful; a positive deterrent to our war effort," ignores the widely advertised need for the training of war workers. By all the estimates prepared by WPB, by industry, and by labor organizations, this country must train literally millions of machine operatives during the next 18 months if its factories are to be adequately staffed to meet the growing flood of war orders. NYA is one of several training agencies. The vocational departments of our public schools are, many of them, operating 24 hours a day as a partial endeavor to meet this need. Industry itself is engaged in a training program. NYA has been doing its part.

It is impossible to train workmen in machine skills without the use of machines and in all of the training program this fact has been clearly recognized by all agencies concerned, and machines have been made available for the training purpose. In addition to training, NYA subsidizes its enrollees in a small amount, for work done. For some time it has been required that this work be related to war production, and many of these machines are doubtless being employed by NYA enrollees in the performance of work contributing directly to the war effort.

There may have been a lack of wisdom in the selection of some machines or in undertaking some types of training or some types of war work. Such criticisms, however, would be specific to a given area. An all-out attack such as you have published, which assumes that in undertaking a much needed training with the facilities necessary to make that training valid is evidence of incompetency on the part of the NYA, ignores the facts and simply involves The Post in throwing mud at an agency which at the moment is the victim of a great deal of unintelligent attack.

Australia's Status

Ernest Lindley in his article "Casey Appointment" says the Australian labor party "has insisted for years on a clear recognition of Australia's position as an independent equal in the British commonwealth."

Surely a columnist of Mr. Lindley's eminence has heard of the Statute of Westminister by which, over a decade since, the British Dominions were made self-governing states equal in all respects with Great Britain herself. Why then should the Australian labor party beat on an open door?

Mr. Lindley continues: "Minister Casey, acting on direct orders from Canberra, carried Australia's case directly to President Roosevelt." From where other than Canberra could Minister Casey take orders? He is the envoy of the Australian government which is as independent of the government in London as is the Chinese.

In suggesting that Churchill has been guilty of "arrogance" and "has not improved Australian-British relations" Mr. Lindley is scarcely helping the common cause. It behooves every citizen of the United Nations in this time of great danger to abstain from any other than helpful and constructive criticism.

Doing Business Here

A few days ago it was necessary for me to make a business trip to Washington. I came with misgivings because there had been so much said about how hard it was to do business in Washington.

The business I had, while extremely important to me, was no doubt relatively unimportant as far as the total war picture is concerned. I thought I'd probably get the Washington brush off that we in the Middle West have heard so much about.

I was due for a very pleasant surprise. I've never in all my calls on private business experienced such courteous and efficient treatment as I was given in each branch on which I called.

The girls doing reception work are to be complimented. They were very helpful, courteous and quick to give proper advice. I had no trouble at all getting my story to the proper party and I think the efficient handling of people by Government workers is something to be highly commended. In fact, private business could certainly take a lesson from Washington on this score and I think the people of these United States should be told the true story about how smoothly, swiftly and efficiently business is being done in Washington. Tire Menace

In this time of tire conservation and tire rationing, limiting speeds and all the other forms that are advocated and performed by automobile tire owners, is there not something that can be done to have parking lot operators give some care to the tires on cares in their lot? I know of several first-class parking places in downtown Washington where absolutely no regard is given for anyone's tires.

When the attendant brings the cars back to the owners they come as fast as they dare and then slam on the brakes and stop "on a dime," as the saying goes. This has been done to my car many times, and I have seen it done to almost every other car brought down while waiting for mine to be returned to me. I consider this very bad treatment for anyone's car. I feel certain the few seconds of time saved is not worth the amount of rubber burned off the tires. Is there something that can be done with this problem? People must park their cars in these places, and seemingly no one is interested in the tires but owners, and their tires are at the mercy of the careless. E. K. I.

Whale Hitler

We need a scrappy, fighting war cry. "Remember Pearl Harbor," does not quite fill the bill, because when we do recall it our sense of lasting shame is greater than our indignation. We need a more positive and aggressive war cry, something like "Whale Hitler," which in the vernacular means, whip the devil try out of him.

While the Germans are heiling Hitler, why can't we whale him?

Irresponsible Labor

The American public is deeply indebted to Mr. Thurman Arnold for his impartial analyses of abuses in capital and labor management, and in him the present Administration has a real asset. He has exposed the autocratic labor leaders who have taken up the methods, if not the "public-be-damned" slogan, of the once-uncontrolled money barons of the last century.

He has shown that certain labor leaders are now acting in the same way by denying that they have any responsibility to the public as to their procedure—or, for that matter, any accountability to the dues-paying members of their respective unions.

Again—and this further indicates Mr. Arnold's sense of his obligations as a servant of all the people—he brings to the attention of Congress dangerous practices in international cartels in restraint of the manufacture of goods—in dealings which would, in similar fashion, be repudiated by the great majority of American industrialists.

Recently a laborer returned to the United States from a stay of several years in South America. He tried to get work at several war-defense plants, but labor autocrats, aided by political dupes in Government employ, denied him the right to work for himself or his country, except at their dictation and by the payment of exorbitant fees without guarantee or commitments. It is small wonder that he asked if "Hitler has taken over here," for this is dictatorship of a type that is a menace to individual liberty and to our representative institutions. Clearly it is the duty of Congress and the Administration to protect the public against exploitation by both labor leaders and industrialists.

I am considered beyond the Army age, but the Government will soon register me for service. Being physically fit, I could work in a war factory. If I apply for such work I may wish to join a labor union, if I like its methods; but if I am told I must join an exclusive club with fees and dues, I should want to know what the labor heads do with the funds contributed. If I should get no satisfaction, or if I am blackballed, I should think it would be my duty as an American citizen to object to this encroachment on my liberty of action. Then, if Uncle Sam attempted to force me to join, I ought to have the courage to refuse, even if I go to jail. In so doing, my act would be in defense of the inalienable rights proclaimed by the Declaration of Independence and apparently guaranteed under the Constitution.

Filipino Representation

The creation of a Pacific War Council by the President is a grand idea. But I note that the membership of the council does not include the Philippines.

The Filipino soldier is proving himself to be the best fighting man in the whole Pacific war on the side of the Allies. The British and the Anzacs were chased out of Malaya, Hongkong, Borneo, etc.; the Dutch, out of Java and Sumatra, but the Filipino soldier still clings to his fox hole in Bataan.

The council would gain more prestige if the Philippine resident commissioner to the United States were included in the council membership. I think the Philippines has a better claim to representation in the council than any of the nations in the Far East fighting under the banner of the United Nations.

Corregidor Characters

I could give a detailed description of Corregidor but this is wartime and I've put a button on my lips. This country could do very well with more "shock troops" and with less "squawk troops."

From an airplane "The Rock" resembles a green, highbacked, headless turtle, with a flat tail. A brood of baby turtles, Fort Hughes, Fort Drum, and Fort Frank, appear to be swimming after their mama from the Cavite shoreline, prepared to follow her into the South China Sea.

If you were to make the flight over Corregidor during target practice, you would see what appear to be gigantic praying mantises spring out from the green, spit out 12-inch projectiles, and then slip quietly back into hiding before their steel missiles of destruction have reached their towed targets in the bay beyond. I have been a witness to the accuracy of American gunnery, and, because I have been behind the guns, have lived to respect it. Many of the Japs, who face MacArthur's artillery, will not have that opportunity.

"The Rock" is a constant lure to Uncle Sam's soldiers. Regulars reenlist for that station.

They've passed on, now, but there was a pair of characters, large, well-knit, fine-looking soldiers, both of them, who were well-known for their exploits and capers on "The Rock" and in nearby coastal ports. They were often in conflict against each other, yet they were almost constantly together.

One of them, "Low Two" Brown, was a sergeant, an expert gunner. He picked up his nickname on the rifle range.

On the small arms range, accuracy of shots is signaled from the pits to the scorer on the firing line with colored disks. A white disk, placed over the spot where the bullet has pierced the target signifies a bull's-eye or five; a red disk, likewise placed over the bullet hole, is a four; a black disk, crossed with white, is a three, and a coal black disk, a two.

Sergt. Brown was firing "for record" and had placed nine bull's-eyes in succession and had just fired his tenth and last shot, when a recruit in a colored regiment, who was marking his target in the pits, risked poking his head up over the parapet, "to see, could he see, who's doin' all that good shootin'." The scorer, seeing that black face outlined against the bottom of the target, mistook it for a black disk, and called out to the recorder: "Sergt. Brown, a low two." Sergt. Brown became "Low Two" Brown thereafter.

"Sad Sam" Howell was the other of the pair, and contrary to his nickname, seemed to live only to be amused. He was an inveterate gambler in a harmless sort of way. He would bet that it would rain before nighfall or that it wouldn't.

Most of the conflict between these two arose through wagers. Once Sam bet Low Two that Queens in Spanish monte cards wear whiskers. Low Two had never seen Spanish monte cards and couldn't understand why Queens should be so decorated. He lost his bet.

An artillery recruit climbed the spindling steel ladder of Corregidor's 400-foot radio tower, lost his nerve, and was afraid to come down. Sam bet Low Two he couldn't make the rescue. Low Two slipped into the barracks for a moment, came back and made the climb. The recruit was hugging the four-foot platform atop the tower and Low Two's head and shoulders disappeared through the hole that admits the ladder to the platform, then reappeared. He looked down, grinned, and made the descent. The recruit followed him.

"How'd you do it?" Sam wanted to know.

Low Two grinned and waved a six-ounce bottle under Sam's nose.

"Hm-m-m!" grunted Sam. "Native gin! That stuff would make a mouse rear up on its hind legs and fight a cat."

In Manila, Low Two bought an ornate 21 jewel watch of Spanish make. When Sam learned of it, he bought an identical watch, but with a 17 jewel movement. He caught Low Two asleep, switched watches, and later bet him that his (Low Tow's) watch had a 17 jewel movement. Low Two was furious when he examined his watch. He didn't suspect Sam. He fumed for a week about what he thought was the shop-keeper's misrepresentation. At the end of that time Sam exposed his own trickery and offered to return the wager. Low Two refused but swore revenge, and got it. He bet Sam that the Corregidor streetcar, on which they were riding from "Topside" to "Bottomside" would jump the track. It did jump the track, because Low Two had bribed the motorman to fail to slow down for a curve.

The Liscombe, a small Army transport, had the Manila-Corregidor run. It was pulled off for a time and the Aguilar took its place. Sam learned the Liscombe had been taken to Olongapo for repairs. He made the first trip on its return, clocked its time, and then talked Low Two into making a weekend leave with him.

During trips, aft on the fantail, a betting pool was always made. Passengers, so inclined, put up a peso each, and made estimates of the ship's time from dock to dock. The nearest estimate took the pot. Sam steered Low Two into the betting circle and made his own estimate at a much lower figure than the Liscombe usually made the trip. When Low Two scoffed at him, Sam said he thought signs indicated that a stiff tail-wind would spring up. Low Two surveyed the skies and could see nothing to support such a prophecy and doubted if it would help much if a blow should come. He challenged Sam to a private bet. The Liscombe, her bottom scraped and freshly painted, her boilers cleaned and with new bearings, slid through the waves as though greased, and made the trip in the exact time Sam had estimated.

It's a shame these two are not alive now to take part in MacArthur's magnificent stand. I can see them, if they were, lying side by side in the Mariveles Jungle, rifle to cheek, two huge, good-natured, tobacco chewing khaki-clad figures, making bets regarding who could knock off the most Japs. H. C. HENDERSON.

Where To Fight

By Ernest Lindley

The Shipping Shortage Factor

THE EYES of most Americans may be fixed on Australia, and their hearts probably lie with MacArthur's men there and in Bataan. But the first concerns of high officials are the shipping situation and the north-south line between Murmansk and Suez.

LINDLEY

Australia is an outpost, more important sentimentally than in the cold logic of global strategy. It has been reinforced and, if attacked, will be defended to the end. Doubt that the Japanese will soon launch a heavy attack on Australia proper has been rising these last three weeks. The toll of Japanese ships already taken by a few American and Australian airmen may have indicated that the cost of invasion would be greater than the Japanese can afford to pay at this juncture. They have more to gain or lose now on other fronts, especially Burma and perhaps soon Ceylon and India.

The prevailing view is that the decisive fighting of 1942 will be on the shipping lanes of the United Nations and on the long front from the Arctic to the Red Sea which the Nazis must breach to move east and south, to the oil of the Caucasus and Persia and the riches of Africa, and to make a juncture with their Asiatic ally. The line was bent last summer but it is still held, mostly by the Russians, partly by the British, with the Turks wedged in between them. Where the Nazis will strike remains anybody's guess. Their effort to take Murmansk is intended to cut off Russian supplies from Great Britain and the United States. A drive through the southern Caucasus, or through Turkey, or a major landing in Syria—one, two, or all three, coupled with a renewed attack from Libya, would not surprise officials who have their ears to the listening posts.

ALTHOUGH not often said aloud for fear of arousing false optimism, it is being said privately by those who have an informed basis for judgment that if the Nazis can be stopped this year they can be beaten in 1943. But, they add quickly, if the Nazis break through the line from Murmansk to Suez this summer, the war will become a protracted process of attrition which may run three, five or ten years.

Troops and supplies for the Middle East from Great Britain and the United States must be hauled 10 to 12 thousand miles in ships. Only in extreme emergency have the British risked moving a convoy through the Mediterranean. Ships are moving steadily around the Cape of Good Hope and through the Indian Ocean, but the Japanese submarines and surface raiders may make this route more hazardous. Lack of shipping and of planes and naval craft to protect it put definite limits on the reinforcement of the Middle East.

THE ALTERNATIVE is to create a diversion which will prevent the Nazis throwing their full offensive strength at this front. This may be done by building up Russian strength in the north—assuming for the moment that the Nazis do not intend to attack there. If the Russian counter-offensive in the north and center can be kept moving, the Nazis will have less to spare for an offensive farther south. The sea haul to Murmansk is much shorter than to Suez.

A second alternative is to open another front in Western Europe. This would require still less shipping, especially if the new front were directly across the English Channel in France. The United Nations almost certainly could establish air superiority to cover the landing of troops on the continental side of the channel.

On his return to England a few days ago, Lieut. Gen. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian forces in Britain, said that Dominion and British forces should attack Germany on the European continent at the first "proper opportunity." He declined to guess when this might be. Such an invasion now might lead to another Dunkirk. This, the British can ill afford—even though the attack would be a success from the viewpoint of grand strategy if it drew off enough German forces to prevent a break-through in Russia or the Middle East.

THE RUSSIANS have not hesitated to urge the opening of a western European front. Although they are looking after themselves, their major contention is widely accepted in high circles here: the opening of a western European front this year offers the best assurance of preventing a Nazi victory on the eastern or southern front this year and therefore of beating them next year. The risks and costs of such a diversion would fall chiefly on British and Canadian forces now in England. For, again, the shipping shortage does not permit the movement of a great expeditionary force across the Atlantic.

Wherever the United Nations strategists look, they come up first against the shipping shortage. This is the heaviest restraint on their freedom of action and therefore probably the most important single influence on their decisions as to where and how to fight.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Newspaper Slander

Tucson, Ariz.

I HAVE just received the published version of Harold Ickes' letter to the publisher of a paper, not a daily, in Bridgeport, Conn., in reply to an editorial printed last July. Six months passed before Ickes saw the editorial and, when he did, he promptly wrote a letter so dirty as to bear comparison with Fiorello LaGuardia's premeditated and twice reiterated remarks about a reputable New York citizen last fall, which might have cost LaGuardia the election had they not been too filthy for communication to the voters. Jim Farley tried to put the gist and odor of that vile statement across to the people but it was just unprintable and, of course couldn't be used against LaGuardia on the air.

I don't blame Ickes for resenting the editorial but I do insist that he should have gone right up to Bridgeport, sought out the editor and shot him dead. Or he might have knocked his head off with a ball bat. I say this seriously for this editorial, among other loathsomeness, reflected upon Ickes' immediate family. Had Ickes killed the editor he would have performed a valuable service for the community in general and for the press in particular which, in the last few years, has suffered from a vicious growth of this sort of thing. The infection set in, in the Broadway or underworld gossip in New York and has now spread to many papers which are otherwise reputable if careless and, in this respect, often flagrantly indecent.

IT IS my belief that no jury in any city in the United States would have left the box to acquit Ickes if he had personally and promptly exterminated the beast who slandered his wife, and there are many communities in which the citizens, in such circumstances, would have given him a medal instead for ridding the neighborhood of an uncommonly nasty specimen of vermin. Such action would have revived an old and honorable American regard for the good name of decent women and would have put on notice many editors across the land who seem to think that because they buy filth by the yard from a New York syndicate, and because the dirty copy deals with unseen individuals a long way off, they themselves have no responsibility in printing the same. These men would not dare print insinuations about the wives and daughters of men in their own communities and would expect to be blown apart or kicked to a pulp if they should do so.

I know of one case in which it was reported all over the country, not once but three times, that a man and his wife recently married were about to separate merely because the husband, a magazine editor, had published a factual and authentic biography of a slanderous blackguard. The malice was obvious and I knew the reports were false because I dined with the couple in question less than two months ago, long after many guilty editors in many cities had permitted their columns to be used for this private revenge.

I HAVE discussed this problem with editors who have confessed that they well know the most notorious of the gutter snipe columnists to be a malicious liar, a fake and a rumorist but, somehow, seem to believe that the responsibility is not theirs. The libel suit is no adequate remedy in such slanders as that against Mrs. Ickes. Direct action is the only way.

I go back as far as 1910 in the newspaper business, a time when we were often careless of our facts and not too sensitive of the rights and feelings of persons in the news. But while, in the matter of reporting we were pretty awful, we had nothing comparable to the blackmailing and blackguardism that have become an element of our journalism as the reportorial standards steadily improved. And now, with a war going on and with a Congressional and Senatorial campaign warming up, editors who regularly use such low merchandise as authentic copy will find various candidates smeared and vilified as traitors and enemy agents merely because they have the presumption to run for office. Even in politics a man should not have to stand for that.

Most citizens who lead a normal life shrink from killing but there are circumstances in which a man's duty demands it, and I submit that Ickes would have been correct in killing a man who wrote as he did about his wife. Ickes' trial, if any, would have resulted in his vindication and a sharp check to those editors who have fallen into the belief that American manhood is dead.

Allied Ship Losses

By Mark Sullivan

Necessitate Increased Construction

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL publicly, and other British and American sources privately, feel concern about shipping. Mr. Churchill's statement, in London last week, was: "The Battle of the Atlantic . . . is now . . . worsened."

SULLIVAN

By "worsened," Mr. Churchill means merely that sinkings of American and British cargo ships, by Axis submarines and planes, have increased. But these sinkings are not, at this time, a complete barometer of the shipping situation—and the new seriousness of it. To understand, it is necessary to consider the shipping situation as a whole, and as affected by recent turns the war has taken.

As to sinkings, the current figure is not known to the public—both the British and ourselves, for good reasons, ceased giving out the figures some time ago. There is a rough figure which in many quarters has been taken as a kind of weather vane. It arose during the Great War. At that time, if sinkings were above 500,000 tons a month, the situation was regarded as serious, indeed fatal, for if sinkings kept up at that rate for month after month, Britain could hardly survive. But if sinkings were materially less than that figure, there was no feeling of desperation.

TO SOME EXTENT this figure, and the corresponding deductions, have hung over into the present war. A year ago, when the monthly rate of sinkings went up to 728,000 tons, and kept up at that average for three months, there was deep concern. President Roosevelt took notice, and increased the quantity of our building of new ships for the British, under the Lease-Lend Act.

Subsequently, last fall, the sinkings went down to some 200,000 tons a month and there was a sense of respite. Now the situation has, as Mr. Churchill says, "worsened." Without any information, it is probably safe to estimate the figure has gone up to 500,000 tons—if we include all sinkings of British, American and other Allied or neutral cargo ships by German, Italian and Japanese submarines, planes and raiders.

But a figure which had sound meaning during the Great War—and to some extent had meaning during the early part of this war—is today utterly without meaning. It has been out of date since Pearl Harbor, December 7.

COMPARE Britain's shipping situation during the Great War with her situation and ours today. Then, she had only one principal sea lane to be concerned about, the one between Britain and the United States, and perhaps to South America. She had no concern whatever about the Mediterranean—hardly a ship was sunk in that sea during the Great War; in the latter part of the Great War, Britain had Italy as an ally. She had little concern about submarines in the Indian Ocean and the Pacific, for Japan was her ally—in those oceans the only damage done was by a few harried German raiders. Finally, and importantly, the plane as a threat to shipping did not exist during the Great War.

With that comparative immunity, compare the situation today. There are now at least six major sea lanes for Britain and the United States to guard. There is the lane from the United States to Britain, which is also the lane to our outpost in Iceland, and to Russia—this lane constantly under attack by German submarines, planes and raiders. There is Britain's lane from her home ports to North Africa and other points in the Mediterranean, constantly subject to attack by German and Italian submarines and planes. There is our lane from the United States to Australia—now a lifeline for the United Nations—subject to attack by the Japanese. There is the lane from the United States to the Indian Ocean, by which we try to supply China and Russia. There is our own lane to South America, from which we need vital supplies. There is even our own home coastal lane between our Atlantic ports and the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean, now subject to intense attack.

BUT IT IS idle to speak of "lanes." Literally, all the waters in the world must be guarded by us and Britain. And it is misleading to regard sinkings as an index. We have been thinking of our shipping problem in terms of vastly increased new construction. The program President Roosevelt set down for 1942, eight million tons, is, in the light of present conditions, quite inadequate. If we maintain a great fighting force across the Pacific, in Australia and the Far East, as we are now committed to; and if in addition we maintain a fighting force across the Atlantic, in Europe, North Africa or elsewhere, we shall need cargo shipping far beyond what is now imagined.

Something is to be said on the hopeful side. Japan has a serious shipping problem, and is less able to meet it than we. Prewar figures gave Japan a total cargo shipping of some six million tons, and an annual building capacity of some half a million tons. Already, she must have lost half a million tons or more. In her now expanded empire, composed of islands and territories separated by water, she desperately needs ships. Shipping might be her Achilles heel.

India At The Crossroads

By Barnet Nover

Congress And The British Offer

SPOKESMEN of the Indian Nationalist movement have always received a warm welcome in the United States. Quite aside from the professional John Bull baiters, today a dwindling and discredited lot, there have always been a great many Americans who while harboring no animus against Great Britain have felt sympathetic to India's aspirations toward nationhood and independence. So Americans have lent a friendly, sympathetic ear to Indians who have expressed such aspirations.

NOVER

They did so because the rule of one people by another, no matter how benevolent that rule may be, does violence to the most deep-rooted of American instincts, because it is contrary to the principles upon which this Nation was founded, because it violates the canons of right and justice.

BY ANY OBJECTIVE standards Britain's rule has done more good than harm to the peoples of India. Certainly it stands out in shining contrast to Japan's rule, say, in Korea or Germany's rule in Poland or any other part of Occupied Europe.

This is not to say that there are no dark spots in the British record in India. There are, many of them. But the central fact remains that whereas Japan's rule and Hitler's has been characterized by the destruction of natural freedom, the disappearance of individual liberty and the reduction of the conquered population to a state of serfdom and slavery the rule of Britain in India has been marked by a steady progress in the direction of self-rule.

Now, all that India has achieved, all that she hopes to achieve, is threatened by the totalitarian tide.

If the United Nations lose the war there will be no free India. Then India would become just another part of a world enslaved. If the United Nations win, India will have her freedom.

THIS OFFER which the British government has made to India through its special envoy, Sir Stafford Cripps, has been warmly acclaimed by the people of the United States. It fits in with what we believe this war is about. It destroys the anomaly created by the circumstance that in a fight for freedom there are people on our side who do not deem themselves free.

The effect of the British plan for the achievement of Indian nationhood within the framework of the British commonwealth of nations would constitute a revolution in Indian political life, a revolution in the international sphere as well.

The British offer to India is indeed one of the most momentous ever made by one people to another. Yet, as Sir Stafford has assured the Indians, the offer has the unanimous approval of every member of the British cabinet. Winston Churchill, who once strongly opposed any limitation of British authority in India, is for it. And so is Sir Stafford himself, always an ardent advocate of Indian freedom.

THE INDIAN problem is not simple and cannot be made simple. There are endless complications to be disposed of. It will take years and decades to dispose of them.

The fact that the Congress party, the most considerable element in Indian political life, has a Moslem president does not mean that all Moslems see eye to eye with the Congress. Far from it.

The fact that the Congress is overwhelmingly Hindu in its make-up does not mean that all Hindus are in favor of its political program.

The leaders of the five million Untouchables are not.

The British plan may and may not be the best possible solution of the Indian problem. As to that time alone could tell. But it is an earnest of Britain's intentions. It can only be accepted or rejected on that basis.

A very great responsibility rests on India's political leaders, particularly on those in control of the Indian National Congress. If they quibble about details, if they take a whole-hog-or-nothing position, if they insist on receiving from Britain the right to dominate a country some of whose great minorities have not the least desire to be dominated by them, they will discredit themselves in the eyes of the world. They will certainly lose every vestige of good will they have enjoyed in the United States.

IT IS REPORTED from India that Britain's insistence on retaining control of India's defenses during the war is one of the principal stumbling blocks in the way of the plan's acceptance.

Thus Devandas Gandhi, son of Mahatma Gandhi, writes that he is "bewildered that one so sensible, so honest and so broad-minded as Sir Stafford should have lulled himself into the false belief that a scheme based on complete control of India's defense by the British government would prove acceptable to Indian opinion."

If this is the view of the Congress, and that is not yet clear, and if, prompted by such views, the Congress rejects the British offer its members will stand condemned before the world as their own and their country's worst enemies.

The defense of India today is not an Indian problem any more than the defense of Australia is any longer an Australian problem. The defense of India is a problem for the United Nations of which India is a member. To turn over India's defenses entirely to Indians at this time would open the country wide to the Japanese. That is why even so warm a friend of India as Sir Stafford is insistent on the continuance of the present defense arrangement.

To balk at that provision in the British plan in view of the menace which confronts their nation is to manifest an unrealism and unworldliness which India's many friends in the United States will utterly condemn.

Profound Study Led Lew Ayres To Pacifism, He Declares

By the Associated Press

Sacramento, Calif., March 31.—It was "profound thinking" which led Lew Ayres into a camp for conscientious objectors, the Hollywood movie actor said today as he breakfasted on his train en route to a labor camp near Wyeth, Oreg.

The star in "All Quiet on the Western Front," Ayres said he had offered to do noncombatant service in the Army, but had insurmountable scruples against joining any fighting branch.

"I was willing and wanted to go in the Medical Corps," he said. I told the draft board that and I said it several times and in the many papers which I filled out.

"However, they wouldn't take me, so I applied for admission to the conscientious objectors' camp and they granted my request. I am happy about it."

Asked if his role in "All Quiet on the Western Front" influenced him toward his antiwar philosophy, he said:

"Yes, I guess it did. I'm quite sure it did."

Ayres issued a formal statement which said in part:

"If I have learned one thing from my philosophical and theological studies, one issue upon which nearly all the most venerable of our teachers and sages have agreed, it is that man's troubles are the result of himself. That is, the selfish emotions and passions within himself. And any emancipation from these conditions must be accomplished for himself—by himself . . .

"Now let us consider war. Is it not strange that no one really wants war, yet few think life can be successfully or, at least respectfully, lived without it? We all shake our heads sadly over our predicament, and then wait for the other fellow to stop first. . . . So in my opinion, we will never stop wars until we individually cease fighting them, and that's what I propose to do. And I propose to proclaim a moratorium on all presumed debts of evil done us, to start afresh by wiping the slate clean, and continuing to wipe it clean. To hold no malice and so seek no revenge. To set our hearts in the right direction—and have confidence in God's beneficent wisdom to help us work out details."

Walsh Predicts Darkest Period

"The spring and summer of 1942 will be the darkest period in the history of the United States—the military picture is nothing but one of blood, sweat and tears—but persistent adversity will toughen the spirit of the United States, with victory the ultimate end."

Thus Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., regent of the Georgetown School of Foreign Service, described the expected full impact of complete industrial mobilization, necessary if the United States is to prosecute successfully its commitments in the World War.

In his sixth of a series of ten lectures in the Memorial Continental Hall last night Father Walsh outlined the responsibility of labor and capital in the mobilization scheme.

The Gallup Poll

Growing Dissatisfaction With War Try Found Among British; Offensive This Year Is Urged

By George Gallup,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., March 31.—Evidence that the British public is becoming restless and increasingly dissatisfied with England's war effort is revealed in a series of surveys just completed by the British Institute of Public Opinion.

The number of persons dissatisfied with the government's conduct of the war has increased sharply during the winter. At present one-half of all persons polled by the British Institute find fault with the war effort. In addition, more than two-thirds believe the time has come to take the offensive, rather than continuing to stand on the defensive the rest of the year.

The British surveys, conducted as Russia's ambassador to England, Ivan Maisky, and her envoy to the United States, Maxim Litvinov, have begun calling for the establishment of a second war front in Europe, probed British attitudes in two ways. The first question asked was this:

"Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the Government's conduct of the war?"

The results, and a comparison with the vote on the same question in previous months is shown below. Note that, among those with opinions, the number which was once satisfied with the war effort has dwindled to such an extent that today there is actually a majority dissatisfied.

	June 1941.	Nov. 1941.	Today.
Satisfied	58%	44%	35%
Dissatisfied	30	38	50
Undecided	12	18	15

This increasing public dissatisfaction found direct expression in demands for a shake-up in Britain's war cabinet—a shake-up which Prime Minister Churchill was forced to make early this month.

In contrast to the dark days of 1940 and 1941 when Britain staggered under repeated Nazi blows, the spirit of the offensive is the dominant note in British public opinion today.

A second question in the British Institute survey reveals that only one person in every ten, on the average, is in favor of continuing defensive operations for the rest of the year.

The overwhelming majority believe the time has come to take the offensive, as the following table shows:

Favor defensive operations for rest of year	10%
Favor taking offensive	67
Undecided	23

The public's critical attitude toward the war effort has led to a decline in public confidence in Prime Minister Churchill. The most recent British Institute survey on his popular standing shows 81 per cent approving Churchill as Prime Minister, as compared to 89 per cent in January.

Wallaces Head Sunrise Service Guest List

Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace are expected to head the distinguished guests at the twelfth annual Easter sunrise service of the Grand Encampment of the Knights Templar of the United States, in the Arlington Amphitheater, it was announced yesterday. The service generally draws more than 10,000 people. It will begin at 7:30 a. m.

The Right Rev. Dr. James W. Maxon, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Tennessee, will preach.

Another Easter sunrise service expected to attract throngs will be held at 6:46 a. m.—the break of dawn—on the heights of Fort Lincoln, Bladensburg Road and the District Line, under the auspices of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association. The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will speak. A 70-voiced chorus from that church will sing.

Georgetown Boys See Hoot Gibson And Colleagues

Hoot Gibson, veteran of the Hollywood horse operas, and two fellow stars from Col. Jim Eskew's Rodeo, which opens Saturday at the Riverside last night joined 400 youngsters at the spring "roundup" of the Georgetown Boys' Club, 2726 M Street Northwest.

Hoot brought personal greetings to the boys and introduced his colleagues, Cowgirl Dorothy Dunston, who sang several numbers, and Cowboy "Foghorn" Clancy, who told the lads all about cattle roundups and rodeos.

The rest of the "roundup" program included movies, a quiz contest won by Julius Goldstein and Billy Nichols, and refreshments of ice cream and cake. George Mullen, games room director, presided.

Interest in Folk Festival Grows as 9th Season Nears

"Individual performers and groups come to our festivals with an enthusiasm that is a constant marvel of all who have composed the organization of the National Folk Festival Association," said Maj. M. J. Pickering, business manager for the festivals, the ninth of which will be held at Constitution Hall, May 6, 7, 8 and 9 under sponsorship of The Washington Post Folk Festival Association. "The ingenuity which these people use in working out their plans is one of the biggest factors in their various sections of the country. Invariably, when a singer, or fiddler or dancer has appeared here, in one program he, or she, or they—in the case of groups—want to return. Some of them come year after year. Many return after an absence of a year or so. Also, their return is governed to some extent by the requests from the satisfied audiences.

Pickering

"There are several reasons for this intense interest on the part of the performers. They know they are carrying on with something that is of concrete value in their home communities. Also, they know that through their dances or playing of lively, traditional American tunes, adapted to the tempo of people of their localities, joyous recreation is brought to many who otherwise would have no possibility of enjoyment. This is literally true of folk musicians in every State of the Union.

POLISH DANCERS RETURN THIS YEAR

"Also—it is a mistake to believe that the bringing of popular and art forms of music, by radio, concert hall and in the movies, fills the needs of the people. People still crave actual participation themselves, as evinced by the growing number of groups for folk dancing in all parts of the country. Folk expression—instrumental, singing or by dancing—is the answer for hundreds of thousands in all types of communities from the smallest rural groups to the biggest cities. Right here in Washington, for example, there are at least six large groups that meet socially (aside from those sponsored by organizations) to enjoy the old square dances.

"It is significant that increases in this interest has been marked since the beginning of the National Folk Festivals in 1933."

In Chicago, the French and Lithuanian groups, both of which have been on the program the last five years, are holding small festivals throughout the Windy City to raise funds. The same is true of the Polish group of that city, new on the national festival program last year but coming back this year. An Irish group in Chicago has just sent word that by means of similar tactics, that group has raised funds to send 17 to do authentic numbers here this year.

By similar plans, groups from 25 States have signified that they will get to Washington to take part in the ninth annual festival next month.

NEW OFFICES UNDER CONSTRUCTION—Extending along Constitution Avenue from Fifteenth to Seventeenth Street, construction work is progressing today on temporary office building for war workers. 'Great Boondoggle' Gets A Fancy Set of Trusses

The proposed information palace for the Office of Government Reports (above) will be completed in about the time it would take to count all the information bureaus already existing in Washington, its builders estimated last night . . . that is, they expect it to be done within two weeks.

Only 15 days ago the first shovelful of earth was scooped out for the foundations at Fifteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. Now the work is more than 55 per cent completed. In fact the roof is on parts of the west wing—although other parts of the same wing are hardly above the foundations.

Only the central part of the building is intended to be used for relaying information to bewildered business men, the contractors report. The rest of the big wooden structure is to be office space.

To make the lobby and counter space for the central part, special wooden trusses had to be built. They were made on the grounds and hoisted into place by the giant crane that now towers above Pennsylvania Avenue.

If any other use should be made of the building, the center part will have to be converted into office space, because the enormous lobby would be wasted space for any other purpose but Mellett's. And the trusses, which were the only fancy construction necessary in the building, might just as well not have been made.

Woman, 68, Keeps Fit With Ease

By Ida Jean Kain

CAN YOU go into a deep knee bend without creaking? Or sit on the floor between your legs with your knees bent and heels back at sides of the hips? If not, don't try to fool anybody about your age. You're not in the class with a Washington, D. C., lady of 68 who can pass those tests with the greatest of ease, and who looks so young she enjoys telling her age!

I'd like to introduce you to Victory Barker Sheetz. You would find it hard to believe she is as old as she declares she is. She has an excellent figure, plenty of bounce and vivacity and is very attractive. This first letter from her gives you an idea of what she is like:

Persistent Follower

"Maybe you would like to know this old girl has been a persistent follower of your health-giving, body-building exercises for about three years, and with splendid results. Within the past year I have added a horizontal bar and a 6-pound medicine ball to my bedroom gym. I also have a roll and tumble mat."

This note from Mrs. Sheetz so captured my imagination that I wrote and requested more particulars of her program. Here is her reply:

"I use the horizontal bar for stretching, twisting, swinging and alternating front and back kick. The two things I do not do are chin myself and skin the cat.

"I cannot recommend the bar to anyone past 40 unless the abdominal muscles are good and strong. If a woman has to be held together by a girdle it is better to stretch on a pallet."

She not only passed the flexibility tests mentioned today but first given some weeks ago in an article, but is proud to say that "I can now touch my cultivated 1890 swayback to the floor without having to flex my knees and rest my feet on the floor!" That's a very good test for posture, and I'll wager few of you can pass it!

But to go on with her exercises:

Rope Skipping

"The medicine ball and pillow punching have helped my arms noticeably. I do not count calories. Nor do I diet. I have simplified the food problem by eating and drinking the protective foods, solo. If I overeat I skip a few meals to give my organs a chance to catch up. My health is excellent and I am never sick. By the way, I have skipped rope since World War I."

Now, to finish showing up all of you who try to claim exemption from exercise on account of your age, let's glance at Mrs. Sheetz' measurements: Her height is 5 feet 1¾ inches and she weighs 116 pounds. Her chest is 34 inches, bust 36 inches, waist 27 inches, hips 34 inches.

I wonder how many of you younger women have as good figures? My guess would be not more than a fourth of you! And, at that, I think I'm being an optimist. But perhaps her letters will constitute a challenge and an incentive. I hope so. If you will only pay some attention to your menus and will take a moderate amount of exercise you can have a much better figure. But, more important than that, you will enjoy life.

Easter Bouquets Boost Morale and Glamour

The Easter parade this year will be resplendent with girls accompanied by service men. With a novel corsage of fragrant stock with daffodil leaves manipulated in ribbon-like loops, as girl wears in picture (above), dramatic accent is given to the high-buttoned neckline of the dressmaker type of reefer coat

For the post-Easter dances—a simple arrangement of freesia with large sweet pea blossoms anchors the mantilla-like headgear. This may be arranged at home, as may matching flowers on dress

Patriotic and Romantic Corsages Featured for Wartime Easter

By Martha Ellyn

WITH WAR drums sounding, this Easter, flowers may express thoughts far different from those of peacetime. The service man sends flowers to his mother and girl friend, and those whose budget has taken on new kinks may wear a bunch of posies in lieu of a new Easter bonnet or suit.

Martha Ellyn

But morale can be kept high and banners flying whether your personal Easter parade will be at the side of a special beau on furlough or with members in the family. This festival day is bound to be one of those special wartime occasions when you must do your bit for morale by looking as charmingly feminine as you possibly can.

Patriotic corsage motifs are top style favorites for the 1942 Easter parade. Nosegays of red roses, white carnations and blue cornflowers are especially dramatic worn with navy blue coat and print ensembles. Clusters of forget-me-nots, stephanotis and violets are a romantic fashion used to accent breast pockets or lapels of tailored suits—old or new.

Neckline Corsage

High-buttoned reefer coats acquire glamour-plus, if you pin your Easter corsage of gardenias or orchids high at the neckline. Foliage used like ribbon bows is one of the smart new corsage fashions used with daffodils or roses that far-away beaux can wire anywhere. And when writing your soldier boy friend, if you mention the color of your Easter costume, it will be easier for him to wire an appropriate corsage.

For Easter fashion distinction, consider your tailored Breton as a background for fresh flower drama, and be sure to experiment so that you will pin your blossoms where they'll flatter best the contours of your particular features.

If you are 5 feet 6 inches or more, by all means choose the longer torso line suits with jackets or finger-tip length or the redingote type of ensemble and wear a corsage of two or three camelias or clusters of flowers—perhaps gardenias—in proportionate size pinned slantwise on the reveres to emphasize the fact that you are divinely tall.

Twin Boutonnieres

For those of small or average stature, twin boutonnieres of sweetheart roses, freesias, narcissus, stephanotis or stock are favorite 1942 style choices for lapel accents. Or, wear exotically a single giant duchess rose made of manipulated petals. If your suit is of the bolero type, a bunch of violets or a corsage of pastel sweetpeas placed at the belt is a glamorous choice.

Easter bonnets, of course, go at the top of the list. And all the belles this spring more than ever before will make an effort to wear truly feminine millinery that their service beaus will approve. Veils are an infallible foil for feminine guile and fragrant blossoms pinned to veiling on your hat or clipped to the hair or fastened with the veil on the shoulder are sure to provide that beguiling feminine accent. Fresh flowers pinned to the new cloche bonnets, chenille snoods and kettle-brimmed straws are especially effective backgrounds for Easter flowers. A matching cluster of fresh blossoms can be worn on the coat or suit. And the fine part about using flowers in this way is that it will not be expensive.

Don't overlook the handbag as a dramatic background for your Easter corsage. And there will be Easter lilies from California to take the place of the Japanese lilies, which wouldn't be quite appropriate. The dining table, foyer, living room and all through the house will call for a token of the day. Azalea, cyclamen, African violet can take the place of the old Easter lilies.

Model Students 'Too Rigid,' Says Expert

"MODEL students," identified in the classroom by their industry, conscientiousness and eagerness to please, achieve only "superficial success" in later life, Dr. Ruth L. Munroe, research associate at Sarah Lawrence College, reports in a study just issued by the Columbia University Press.

Such students, because of their lack of spontaneity and their restriction of thought and imagination, have been the subject of innumerable faculty meetings at Sarah Lawrence, according to Dr. Munroe. They are meticulous in performing their classroom assignments and attempt to order their lives according to a rational scheme, but lack warm, human contacts with other individuals, Dr. Munroe says.

The study, entitled "Teaching the Individual," is based on a series of investigations of the problem of adapting education to the individual, carried on at Sarah Lawrence. Case histories of many girls in the college are included in the study.

Need Reassurance

The so-called model students are classified as "rigid" by Dr. Munroe. "Almost every teacher of every student in this group comments that the girl needs success, needs reassurance, and that she finds criticism devastating," Dr. Munroe says.

"Since she depends upon the opinion of others for the whole of her self-esteem, this reaction is inevitable. She has no inner resources to depend upon. Part and parcel of this inevitable dependence upon external standards, this distrust of native impulses, is the lack of self-determination in the girl's own tastes and interests.

"Rules are valuable to these girls because they represent the only road to achievement and satisfaction and safety. They cannot tolerate freedom or vagueness. One of the students was placed before a bare canvas and requested by her teacher to 'play.' She was assured that anything she did would be acceptable. Her reaction to this invitation to frivolity was to burst into tears.

Lives Under Strain

"Under favorable circumstances this approach to life is very serviceable. The girls are usually 'successful' and why not? They work energetically to accomplish just those ends which are recommended by the group around them. It is little wonder that they come to college highly recommended for all the virtues of our society, that they receive their diplomas without question, and that they often function as leaders in extracurricular activities as well. Quite aside from a possibly sentimental distate on our part for such superficial 'success,' this way of life imposes certain penalties on the student and exposes her to dangers.

Your Personal Success

Dating Etiquette

NO GIRL thinks she's won personal success unless she's asked on glamour dates . . . smart restaurants, music, trim uniforms! But when some ARE asked they find they've forgotten to learn modern etiquette for such dates! They don't know how to order, even when to leave.

The girl who is a success knows such things. She's poised, charming. On consulting the menu, she waits for her beau to ask what she'd like and let's him give the order to the waiter.

She doesn't embarrass others with such lunch-counter habits as eating vegetables with a spoon (a fork's always used) or cuddling her plate with her arm.

And when the meal's over she suggests leaving, for she knows that's the girl's place.

Such smooth manners can soon become second nature. Check yours! Do you call a waitress with "Miss" or address a woman as "Lady?" Polite society says "don't." Or do you ask your military friends to carry bundles; do you make boners in introducing officers, enlisted men?

Send 15 cents (plus 1 cent to cover cost of mailing) for our booklet, "The New Book of Everyday Etiquette," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of THE WASHINGTON POST, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The Gentler Sex——By Malvina Lindsay

The Reception Line

"I am Miss Jingle——"

"Oh, how do you do, Miss Jingle! So glad you could come!" Mrs. Schooner, the president, is smiling at you with absent eyes as she hands you along to the guest of honor. "Miss Springle, Dr. Graph."

The guest of honor gives you a disinterested glance, a fishy palm, turns to the imposing woman at his side and mutters, "Mrs. Graph, Miss—er—er——"

"Jingle," you supply.

Mrs. Graph smirks encouragingly. "How do you do," turns to the woman next her. "Mrs.—Mrs.——"

"Pelican," supplies the vice president.

"I am Miss Jingle," you volunteer. "I believe I've met you——"

"Oh, yes, how do you do, Miss Hinkle." Mrs. Pelican is smiling at someone beyond you. "Oh, Mrs. Wadd, I'm so glad you could come!"

You try to move on out of Mrs. Wadd's—and Mrs. Pelican's way, find the next woman in the line is holding on to the hand of one "Carrie," who is telling about one "Ethel," who has gotten back from somewhere. You wait awkwardly—Finally your turn comes.

"I am Miss Jingle——"

"How do you do! So nice to see you!" Without looking at you, she has turned to the woman beyond her. "Mrs. Twitter, this is Mrs.—or is it Miss——"

Mary Haworth's Mail

will not appear for several days, due to the fact that Miss Haworth has been called out of town.

"Miss," you supply.

"Oh, of course! This is Miss er—er——"

"Jingle."

"Miss Twitter, Miss Jingle."

"How do you do." Mrs. Twitter is handing you along efficiently. "Of course you know Mrs. Mixmaster——"

But Mrs. Mixmaster is held up by an elderly woman with a cane who is whispering something behind her hand.

Mrs. Twitter brightly carries on. "Isn't it a lovely day . . . We simply haven't had any winter . . . You know it's really getting to be almost tropical here." Then as Mrs. Mixmaster disengages herself, "Now what did you say your name was?"

"Jingle."

"Oh, yes! Mrs. Mixmaster——" But the dowager with the cane has thought of something else to say. Again you are halted.

"This kind of weather is so unusual," begins Mrs. Twitter. Then, as the elderly nabob moves on, "Mrs. Mixmaster, this is—er Miss it's Miss, isn't it?—Miss Limerick."

"Beg pardon, but——"

"How do you do, Miss Limerick," exclaims the overwhelming Mrs. Mixmaster before you can intercept.

Oh, well, what's the use, you think.) She smiles benignly at you. Hands you grandly over to the next woman in line as one would a partner in a reel.

"Mrs. Dither, Mrs. Limerick."

"How do you do?" chirps Mrs. Dither, "Mrs. McAddle, Mrs. Limerick."

Mrs. McAddle, who is the last woman in line, looks at you earnestly. "I didn't get the name?"

"Limerick — Mrs. Limerick," says Mrs. Dither, sweetly.

"So glad to know you, Mrs. Limerick," says Mrs. McAddle, smiling in an especially friendly manner. "Now just make yourself at home."

You step out into the crowd . . . stand watching the guests . . . pondering whether you should change your name to Brown or Smith — or perhaps Garbo.

The reception line breaks up; there is a stampede for the dining room . . . you feel a presence at your elbow. You turn. It is Mrs. McAddle, the friendly woman in the reception line.

"Miss Limburger?" she inquires sweetly, "wouldn't you like to have something to eat. And I do want you to meet our guest of honor, Dr. Graph . . . and Mrs. Graph. They're perfectly fascinating!"

Capital Whirl

by Hope Ridings Miller

Author of 'The Good Old Days' and 'Love in America,' Leaving Soon for Brazil, Honored at Informal Fete

"THE stormy petrel!" said House Speaker Sam Rayburn, eyes a-twinkle, as he greeted Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold late yesterday afternoon. Two minutes later they were heads together, talking it all over—or, rather, the Speaker was talking. Arnold, for a change, was listening . . . and he looked as if he liked it.

Speaker Rayburn

The occasion was one of those small, informal "after 5:30" affairs which the busy House Speaker so seldom attends. But yesterday was a kind of prelude to a brief and much-needed vacation that officially will begin for him today when he takes the train for his home town (and mine)—Bonham, Tex. He is due back in Washington April 13, but the schedule he has laid out for himself between now and then would let you know his sojourn away from the Capital will be a vacation in name only. There are speeches, conferences, and goodness knows what all else in line for him the next two weeks. Looks to me as if he'll have to come back to the hustle and bustle of wartime Washington before he will have any chance to rest at all.

David Cohn Is Honor Guest

But back to yesterday's party. The House Speaker was a late arrival at a fete that had drawn a number of number of other celebrities by the time he arrived. Hostess was Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, and the guest of honor was David Cohn, the well-known writer, whose next book, "Love in America," is due for publication in the summer.

"Yes, I decided to have my say on love," said Cohn to Thurman Arnold. "You see you've covered practically everything else," he added with a chuckle. Across the room, Representative and Mrs. Fritz Lanham were chatting with the John J. Dempseys, and a few minutes later Admiral and Mrs. George Pettengill were coming in to join the party.

Thurman Arnold

Fresh from seeing newly-weds off on the train were the Hugo Gouthiers, of the Brazilian Embassy. They had been on hand to witness the quiet ceremony at which Peggy Healy, New York model, became the bride of Aloysio de Salle, of Rio de Janeiro.

Early arrivals at Evie's party were Mrs. Waggaman Pulver and Mrs. Christopher Bramwell. The latter got there in time, in fact, to put a couple of red carnations on the lapel of the guest of honor. Coming along shortly afterward were Mr. and Mrs. Georges Boncesco, and Prof. William Y. Elliott, who came to Washington from Harvard in the name of defense work and has been quite a center of attention ever since.

Mrs. Thurman Arnold, a gay addition to any gathering, was telling a small group she planned to keep the letters her husband had been getting, "to read in my old age—they are that fascinating." Mrs. Eugene Carusi dropped in for a few minutes, and so did Mrs. Harold Walker, mother of the hostess, and Aldace Walker, her brother. William Elsmlie was there, as usual devoting most of his time to Mrs. Ffoulke Dewey. George Abell and the guest of honor found plenty to talk about, and then both joined a talkative group, which included the Herbert Ellistons, Mrs. Barnet Nover, and Capt. H. M. Lovett.

Sir Harry Oakes Centers Attention

Meanwhile, Hostess Evie, trimly turned out in riding clothes, was taking another guest on the introduction rounds. He turned out to be Sir Harry Oakes, the fabulous Sir Harry, who originally hailed from Maine, made a fortune in Canada, bought a home in Nassau where he spends six months a year, and was knighted in 1939. Oh I could go on about Sir Harry for columns . . . and some day I probably shall. Before closing this party-account, however, I'd like to add one more item of news—namely that the guest of honor, Mr. Cohn, told one or two friends present that he planned to be off to South America next month for an extended stay. And I wouldn't be surprised if another book comes out of that trip. He wouldn't commit himself on that. But we'll wait and see.

Evie Robert

TRIVIA: All this rushing around town in the name of defense and wartime work has its drawbacks—in more ways than one. That, anyway, is the opinion of a Shoreham Hotel operator who is convinced that the frantic effort some women are making to attend first aid and nutrition classes is throwing some of our most prominent hostesses completely off balance . . . In proof of that theory he cites two recent incidents. One well known Washington woman en route to a first aid class stepped on to his elevator the other day, hauled out a dollar bill and waved it in his direction. "I want," she said breathlessly, "another street car pass." . . . Half an hour later, an equally prominent woman, bustled into the same elevator. "I'm late to my Red Cross class," she spluttered. "Let me off at Dupont Circle!"

Although it would carry less weight in Washington than in most cities, the best simile I've heard in a long time came across the dinner table at the Egyptian Legation the other evening. I promised the witty woman who said it I wouldn't reveal her name, and I must admit I don't know yet what led up to the conclusion; but her final sentence, obviously meant only for the ears of her dinner partner, was heard clearly above the hum of talk at our end of the table. "That," she tittered, "is as unmentionable as a first husband!"

Sumner Welles Gives Dinner For Dr. Ezequiel Padilla

Diplomatic and Official Notables Attend Large Fete at the Mayflower Hotel

Entertaining at the first official Washington fete in honor of the visiting Minister of Foreign Affairs of Mexico, Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles was host at a dinner at the Mayflower Hotel last evening. This afternoon the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera will be given a reception in honor of the Mexican statesman, "the Magnificent Mexican," as he was called at the Rio Conference.

Among the guests last night were the Ambassador of Peru, Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera; the Ambassador of Venezuela, Dr. Diogenes Escalante; the Ambassador of Colombia, Dr. Gabriel Turbay; the Ambassador of Cuba, Dr. Aurelio F. Concheso; the Ambassador of Uruguay, Dr. Juan Carlos Blanco; the Undersecretary of the Treasury of Mexico, Ramon Beteta, and the Mexican Minister, Dr. Luis Quintanilla.

Others at the dinner were the Secretary of Commerce, Jesse Jones; Senator Walter F. George, Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Senator Claude Pepper, Representative Fritz G. Lanham, Representative Richard Kleberg, Representative James A. Shanley, Representative Noble J. Gregory, Representative Edouard V. Izac, Brig. Gen. Miguel S. Gonzales, Brig. Gen. Thomas Sanchez, Lieut. Gen. Stanley Dunbar Embick, Vice Admiral Alfred Wilkinson Johnson, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Herbert E. Gaston; the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Oscar Chapman, and the president of the Export-Import Bank, Warren Lee Pierson.

Still others were George T. Summerlin, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Dr. Pedro de Alba, Laurence Duggan, Philip W. Bonsal, Herbert S. Bursley, Dr. Morris Lazaron, B. Howell Griswold, jr., Barnet Nover, Walter Lippmann, Charles Wertenbaker, Alburn D. West, Joseph Kingsbury Smith, William H. Lander and Raymond D. Muir.

Parties Planned For Miss McLane

Parties are beginning to dot the calendar for Miss Mary Rita McLane, who has chosen April 18 as the date of her marriage to De Nelson Ward. The ceremony, which will take place at St. Anthony's Church, will be followed by a reception at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. McLane.

Mrs. Mary C. Daniels will be hostess at a shower in Miss McLane's honor April 8, and the week following a trousseau tea will be given for the bride-elect at her home. Recently a group of her friends gave a party for her at the home of Mrs. Claudia Ward, and another fete at which Miss Dorothey Taylor was hostess has also been marked off the books.

Miss McLane will have her sisters as her two wedding attendants—as matron of honor, Mrs. Charles J. Salb, herself a bride of only last week, and as maid of honor, Miss Helen McLane. William Ward will be best man for his brother.

Mrs. J. L. Loose Widely Feted

In town for a short stay, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose is being widely entertained, and her crowded calendar of parties will continue until the latter part of next week, when she will leave Washington to return to her home in Kansas City. She is staying at the Shoreham.

Among events given in her honor recently was the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis entertained last night in their home on Massachusetts Avenue. Senator and Mrs. Harold H. Burton, of Ohio, were ranking guests, and others in the company were Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Coleman, Dr. and Mrs. Ricardo Alfaro, Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann and Dr. Sterling Ruffin.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper will be hostess at a luncheon tomorrow in honor of Mrs. Loose. The latter, after leaving Washington, expects to be in Kansas City until June, when she will go to her summer home in Gloucester, Mass.

Engagement of Miss Gatchell Made Known Here

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Victoria Gatchell, West Point, N. Y., to Lieut. George Philip Seneff, jr., U. S. A., which was recently made by her parents, Col. Oscar James Gatchell, professor of mechanics at the United States Military Academy, and Mrs. Gatchell.

Lieut. Seneff is the son of Col. Seneff and of Mrs. Casey H. Hayes, of Honolulu. The wedding will take place in April.

Miss Gatchell attended the Lee School in Boston, the National Cathedral School in Washington, and was graduated from St. Mary's School, Peekskill, N. Y.

The prospective bridegroom attended the University of Illinois and was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1941. He is stationed with the Fourth Armored Division at Pine Camp, N. C.

Gala Concert Draws Society to Russian Benefit Performance at Constitution Hall

Boston Symphony Plays Varied and Colorful Program

By Patricia Grady

They were all there—the top Washington officialdom of the United Nations—to honor their victorious ally, Russia, at the Boston Symphony Orchestra's benefit performance for Russian relief at Constitution Hall last night.

Coming into the flag-bedecked hall by the hundreds, Capital society rushed in from dinners before the event and rushed on afterward to suppers following the musical program under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky. It was a cheering audience from the beginning with the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Litvinoff taking the first bows from their corner box. With them were the Counselor of the Russian Embassy and Mme. Gromyko, and Mme. Yegorichev, wife of the Naval Attache of the Embassy, and as the hall filled, Mme. Litvinoff turned to her husband, after a significant look at the enthusiastic audience, with a whispered word that could only have been, "America is indeed with us." Later in the evening the Soviet envoy and his wife entertained at a small supper in honor of the Boston maestro.

Halifaxes Have Party With Them

So many celebrities were on hand that after the first buzzing of "There's Mrs. Roosevelt," and "Who's in the box with the Jesse Joneses?" the audience realized that no matter what direction they faced they were looking at a Great Name. With Mrs. Roosevelt were Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mrs. Cameron Clark, Mrs. David Bruce and Mrs. Walter Thayer and in another box the British Ambassador Lord Halifax, entertained Field Marshal Sir John Dill and Lady Dill. Air Marshal Douglas Evill and Mrs. Edwina d'Erlanger.

So representative was the group that when the Marines paraded the flags of the United Nations across the stage, there were many who could feel the thrill of country for each flag. The Dutch Minister and Mme. Loudon shared a box with the Netherlands Naval Attache and Mme. Ranneft and Gen. L. R. Dyxhoorn, and the Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Fotitch cheered their flag from the box of Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn. Sitting in a box with his son-in-law and daughter who had entertained at dinner earlier in the evening, was Senator Alben Barkley, who was the speaker of the evening. In the same party were the first United States Ambassador to Soviet Russia, William Bullitt; Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley Mrs. Abrams Hewitt and Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer.

In a family group of three boxes were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, whose wife was the organizing power behind last night's benefit. Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings and, Mr. and Mrs. Merrall MacNeille. The former Ambassador to Russia and Mrs. Davies were hosts at a small dinner before the concert at which their out-of-town guests included Mrs. Jerome Hill, of Pittsburgh; Lieut. Comdr. Gene Markey, late of Hollywood; Hans Habe, of New York, and Mrs. Davies' daughters, Mrs. Close Rand and Miss Nedenia Hutton.

Diplomats and U. S. Officials There in Droves

Mr. and Mrs. John McCarthy entertained at a dinner at the Canadian Legation before going on to the concert. In their party were Miss Toinette Bachelder and Mr. and Mrs. Leonid Tichbinsky, of Annapolis, Md. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was another dinner hostess having as her guests the Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward had as their dinner and concert guests Mr. and Mrs. Archibald MacLeish, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, John Thatcher and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Barclay. The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf Berle entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoskins at dinner before going on to the benefit performance.

Celebrities On Every Side

Among the Cabinet contingent were the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, who had the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins with them, and the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones, whose guests were Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson. In a nearby box, the Chief Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone entertained Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Batt had with them Sir Clive Baillieu and Lady Baillieu. Miss Dinah Brand and Robert Batt. With Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Edwin Watson.

Just scraping the surface of who was in attendance at the greatest tribute to Russia Washington has ever seen, a few to be mentioned are Mrs. George Marye, who took her guests on afterwards to supper at the Mayflower, and had with her Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, of San Francisco, Princess Cantacuzene and Countess Cassini; Maj. Gen. Chu, Military Attache of the Chinese Embassy; Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, Justice and Mrs. James Byrnes and Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Hale, sharing a box together; Bernard Baruch, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Harold Ickes, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Frank Walker, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Maj. Guy R. Mountfort, the Greek Minister and Mme. Diamantopolos, the Philippine Commissioner, Joaquin Elizalde, who had a party with him; the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Troncoso, Mrs. Walter George, Mrs. Morgan Bradford, Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, and the rest of Constitution Hall, almost all names of national and international renown.

Mary Jane Rust Becomes Bride Of Lieut. William I. Kent

Hessler Studio

MRS. WILLIAM I. KENT

Evening Ceremony at St. Albans Church Unites Popular Girl and Army Officer

The marriage of Miss Mary Jane Rust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Rust, jr., to Lieut. William I. Kent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett L. Kent, Merion, Pa., took place at a candlelight ceremony last night in the Little Sanctuary, Mount St. Alban. Canon Albert H. Lucas, of Washington Cathedral, officiated at 8:30 o'clock.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white marquisette fashioned with wide bands of chantilly lace on a full skirt, short puffed sleeves and bow of lace at the throat of the bodice. Her veil was of heirloom rosepoint lace belonging to her godmother, and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of orchids and freesia.

Miss Mary Snowden Rust, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a full-skirted green chiffon dress with gathered bodice and short puffed sleeves. Her hat was of fresh flowers matching the spring flowers in her old-fashioned bouquet. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Gordon, of Washington, and Mrs. Joseph H. Baker, of New York, were attired in identical gowns of yellow chiffon.

Dr. Wallace Davis, of Philadelphia, was best man. Ushers were W. Thompson Kent, brother of the bridegroom; H. L. Rust 3d, brother of the bride; Norman Hayes and Henry Ziesting, of Philadelphia; Robert Davidson, of Dayton, Ohio, and Lieut. John Kelley, of Quantico, Va.

Following the ceremony there was a reception for 200 guests in the apartment of the bride's parents at 2101 Connecticut Avenue. Receiving with the wedding party was Mrs. Rust, who was gowned in gray marquisette with a shoulder corsage of orchids. Also in the line was Mrs. Kent, mother of the bridegroom, who wore a frock of blue lace, set off with an orchid corsage.

Shortly after the reception the couple left on their wedding trip. For traveling, the bride donned a navy blue silk suit with blue and white accessories. The couple will reside temporarily at New River, N. C., where Lieut. Kent will report for duty soon.

Notes of Society

The former United States Minister to the Netherlands and Mrs. George Gordon will have a small company dining with them this evening.

The Swedish Military Attache and Mme. Karl Wessel have asked a number of friends in for cocktails this afternoon.

Many Parties Planned for Volinda Lewis

Mornings are full of a thousand and one wedding details, and afternoons are full of parties—one on every day in the week, for Miss Volinda Lewis, who will be married Saturday to Lieut. (j. g.) Hughes Call, at Christ Church in Georgetown.

Starting right down the line with the parties, there was one yesterday given by Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Gilchrist, who invited the bridal party and a number of friends to a cocktail gathering at their home in Arlington.

A similar fete will be that given this afternoon when Ensign and Mrs. Clark Henderson entertain at their MacArthur Boulevard home, and yet another is on the calendar for Thursday afternoon at which Miss Betty Burton will be hostess. Starting out as a cocktail party for a number of guests, Miss Burton's fete will turn into a spinster dinner for the bridesmaids later.

The bridal dinner Friday night will be given by Miss Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Irving Lewis, at the Chevy Chase Club, and to wind things up the morning of the wedding, Miss Gertrude Good will give a breakfast at her home on Rockwood Parkway.

Already marked off the calendar are the cocktail parties given over the weekend by Mr. and Mrs. Metcalfe Walling and Ensign and Mrs. Byron Johnson and the tea for the feminine half of the bridal party given by Miss Anne Turner on Monday.

'Relief Wings' to Convert Private Planes Into Air Ambulances for Emergencies

IN THE future, flying ambulances may supplant the motor car variety. But in the meantime, the air ambulance will supplement the automobile ambulance. Both will be used in event of bombing or other emergencies in the United States.

Keenly interested in building up this air ambulance service is Miss Ruth Nichols, widely known woman flier of New York. In town this week as the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Willard Boyd, she was the guest speaker at the Washington Junior League's meeting yesterday afternoon.

Miss Ruth Nichols

A Quaker, Miss Nichols is most absorbed in the mercy angle of the war. Her special interest is in "Relief Wings," an organization for the conversion of private planes into ambulances.

Outlining the need for such a service—especially in war time—Miss Nichols said: "Many lives could be saved both in war and peace disasters if there were sufficient planes equipped to serve as ambulances." She pointed out that approximately 3000 patients had been carried to and from Middle-Western clinics by airplanes since "Relief Wings" was organized over a year ago.

Many of the ambulance planes would be used to evacuate patients from hospitals in case of bombings, according to Miss Nichols, who is one of the earliest women fliers.

"In addition to special equipment, flight surgeons and flight nurses are needed to carry on the work," she explained. "These are all volunteers but they must have specific training."

Sponsored by leading aviation companies, "Relief Wings" is working closely with the Office of Civilian Defense. Recently an understanding was reached between "Relief Wings" and the OCD—that the Civil Air Patrol would use "Relief Wings," flight surgeons and flight nurses and planes as needed and as available.

Stressing the fact that the "Relief Wings" service is for civilian defense, Miss Nichols said: "At present the United States Government does not possess any twin-motored planes specially equipped for civilian defense."

Following Miss Nichols' talk, the league elected new officers. Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson, first vice president, was named president. She will serve two years. Mrs. B. Lowndes Jackson was elected first vice president to serve for one year. Miss Virginia Parker Cooke is the new second vice president. Mrs. Edwin H. Somers was elected secretary, and Mrs. Joseph Quinn continues as the league's treasurer.

Triple S Girls

COME APRIL 8, 22 senior Girl Scouts of Troops 155 and 50 will receive the Triple S Emblem—insignia of the Senior Service Scouts who have qualified for civilian defense work. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers will make the presentation at the Girl Scout pageant, "Volunteers for Victory" (dedicated to the defense savings program), at Constitution Hall.

Rep. Edith N. Rogers

It might be recalled that Representative Rogers, together with Senator Hattie Caraway and Representative Caroline O'Day, worked diligently to get Congress to pass a bill affecting Girl Scouts. That was back in 1937. The bill exempted from visa fees, head tax and other duties visiting Girl Scouts and Girl Guides who attended the Twenty-fifth Silver Jubilee encampment at Briar Cliff, N. Y.

Those from Troop 153 who will be awarded the S. S. S. Emblem are: Elizabeth Armes, Joan Beattie, Mildred Cabell, Sylva Culberson, Jean Dixon, Jean Fisher, Sally Ann Goodwin, Rita Kesserling, Margie Millar, Helen Mixon and Marjorie Smith.

Among the things that members of this troop have learned are evacuating and entertaining children. Also, they've perfected the art of preparing babies' formulas. Mrs. Joseph Beattie, their leader, provided instruction in outdoor living at her home near Falls Church.

Girl Scouts of Troop 50 slated to receive the Triple S Emblem are: Barbara Stellwagon, Betsey Ross, Bobby Smith, Margy Sanborn, Mary Ellen Peoples, Louise McCollum, Ibby Knox, Marjorie Newcomb, Catherine Otterman, Natalie Roberts and Joan Wheatley.

Pen Women to Meet

OYEZ! OYEZ! The Chevy Chase branch of the National League of American Pen Women will meet Saturday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock, instead of tomorrow as announced here yesterday.

Mrs. Roland Gray of Boston will be a guest speaker. Her subject will be "Looking Forward." Hostesses are Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson and Miss Viola Offutt. The Shoreham Hotel is the place of the meeting.

Doings of the Day

DR. PAUL DOUGLAS, president of American University, gives "Easter Message" at ZONTA CLUB'S luncheon meeting, 1 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Florence Sindell, member of club, sings a solo. . . . UNIVERSITY PARK WOMAN'S CLUB executive board meets with Mrs. Gail Hathaway, 431 Van Buren Street. On Monday, April 6, the club will hold a business meeting and luncheon, 1 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Harry D. Eisenhauser, 4301 Sheridan Street. . . . SOROPTIMIST CLUB presents money for a mobile canteen to the D. C. Chapter, American Red Cross, at luncheon meeting, 1 p. m., Willard Hotel.

Wheaton Club

THE D. C. WHEATON College Club will have its spring luncheon meeting tomorrow, 12:45 o'clock, at the Y. W. C. A., according to an announcement by Mrs. Clifton E. Mack, the president.

A new colored movie, showing campus life, will be presented for the first time in Washington. Undergraduates home on vacation will have a chance to see themselves as portrayed by the camera.

Sigma Tau Gamma

APPOINTMENT of new representatives and officers of the Council of Sigma Tau Gamma Sorority was the main business of the council's recent meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Mack Rogers, 5004 North Capitol Street.

The council president, Mrs. A. Francis Swinburne, of Alpha Chapter, appointed Miss Bernice Wiltshire, of Gamma, as treasurer, to succeed Miss Ann Schiel, of Beta, and Mrs. Walter I. Taylor, jr., of Alpha, as secretary, to succeed Mrs. Mack Rogers, of Beta. Miss Schiel has been transferred to Columbus, Ohio, and Mrs. Rogers to Kansas City, Mo. Both are in Government service.

Mrs. Mae Asher was appointed president of Beta Chapter, also one of the representatives of the chapter in the sorority's council she succeeds Mrs. Mack Rogers. Miss Rosina Carlo has been selected as the chapter's second representative in the council.

Alpha Delta Pi

MRS. EUGENE V. CLENDENIN is the newly elected president of the Washington Alumnae Association of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. Miss Beverly Marshall was named vice president.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Grant Kelleher, recording secretary; Miss Wanda Sarnecki, corresponding secretary; Miss Betty Coekhill, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Graeme Bannerman, Pan-Hellenic delegate; Mrs. James Kirkland, alternate Pan-Hellenic delegate; Miss Ann Thomas, Adelphean reporter; Mrs. Willard La Rosa, chairman of the ways and means committee. Miss Marshall was named publicity chairman.

League to Meet

THE VOTELESS D. C. League of Women Voters has set Tuesday, April 21, as the date of its one-day school on taxation and price control. Speakers from the Treasury Department, the Office of Price Administration and Congress will appear on the morning's program. The afternoon session will be devoted to a panel discussion. In the interest of wartime economy, the day's program will not include a luncheon. All events will be held at the Washington Hotel. Mrs. Paul Appley is general chairman and Miss Doris Starr has charge of ticket sales.

Festival Date Changed

Due to the change in the date of the National Folk Festival from the original date scheduled to the week of May 6, the Lithuanian dancers' program will be presented at Catholic University Music Hall on Saturday, May 9, at 8 p. m. instead of on May 2, as previously announced. The dancers will be under the leadership of Vytautas-Beliejus.

Members of the bowling team and the study-discussion group of the American-Lithuanian Society will hold their annual dinner at the Hamilton Hotel on April 14.

Catholics to Convene

"Catholic Women in the Service of God and Country" is the theme of the twenty-first national convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, to be held in Hollywood, Fla., April 18-22, and St. Augustine, April 23.

Informal sessions will be held on Saturday, April 18, to discuss the contributions of Catholic women's groups to wartime activities. During the day, diocesan and deanery leaders of 65 Diocesan Councils of Catholic Women throughout the country will tell of the activities of their groups. Saturday evening, leaders of national organizations of Catholic women will discuss the work they have been doing.

The sessions will open formally Sunday morning, April 19, with a pontifical high mass, celebrated by the Most Rev. Joseph P. Hurley, Bishop of St. Augustine and host to the convention, at the Church of the Little Flower, Hollywood, Fla.

Main sessions of the program will be devoted to a panel on the National Catholic Welfare Conference in Wartime, to talks on the National Catholic Community Service, the National Catholic School of Social Service, the volunteer in the field of Catholic charities, inter-American relations and post-war life.

300 Decry Kensington ADA Project

Residents of the Kensington (Md.) area last night demanded abandonment of the Alley Dwelling Authority's proposed wartime housing development near the town limits at a mass meeting in the Kensington Junior High School.

The meeting was attended by more than 300 irate citizens, who on occasions greeted remarks by John Ihlder, ADA executive officer, with angry boos.

A resolution, adopted by the citizens, expressed "unalterable opposition" to the project, which calls for construction of 876 demountable homes, and recommended the appointment of a committee to try to halt the development. The resolution was introduced by Capt. John Griffee.

Pleads for Cooperation

Ihlder, in urging cooperation from property owners in the vicinity of the proposed development, declared that the homes, of prefabricated construction, would be dismantled after the emergency.

He pointed out that the community would profit by the construction of streets, sewer and water lines, all of which would remain after the war. The immediate construction of temporary homes to relieve the acute housing shortage in the Washington area, Ihlder described, as "a matter of life and death."

The congestion in Washington now, he likened to that in Philadelphia during 1918 "when influenza swept the city like black death."

Ihlder said the ADA had been searching weeks for housing sites and challenged his listeners to find a more suitable location than the Knsington site selected after conferences with the Montgomery County commissioners.

Challenge Accepted

The ADA executive's challenge immediately was accepted by Harry Martin, a Kensington resident who asserted that he could suggest a site, which could be acquired for less money than the Kensington site and which would be closer to transportation facilities.

Joseph Cantrel, of Bethesda, and Alfred Noyes, of Kensington, urged residents to accept the housing project in the interests of the war effort. Cantrel, former counsel to the Montgomery County Commissioners, pointed out that the Federal Government had full authority to proceed with its plans without approval of county or town officials.

Noyes declared that he didn't believe his property in Kensington would be materially affected by the housing development, and added that "even if it should be, this would be a small sacrifice to help defeat Hitler and the Japanese."

The meeting was held under auspices of the Chevy Chase View Citizens Association, with Harry Booth, of that community, presiding.

Boston Symphony Heard In Russian War Relief Concert

By Ray C. B. Brown

Sergei Koussevitzki conducts the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall on Tuesday night in a concert for the benefit of Russian war relief. Program: "Classical" Symphony, Op. 25 (Prokofiev), Symphony No. 6, Op. 53 (Shostakovich), Symphony No. 5, Op. 64 (Chaikovski).

Absent from Washington since April 3, 1935, Dr. Sergei Koussevitzki and the Boston Symphony Orchestra received a tumultuous welcome last evening when they returned to Constitution Hall for the express purpose of giving their services in a concert for the benefit of Russian war relief. The crowded auditorium held a thoroughly representative assemblage of official, diplomatic and musical personages in the National Capital, and a glance around the boxes and the serried ranks of seats fell upon people who had apparently stepped from the pages of the local "Who's Who."

Brown

Pomp and circumstance attended the preliminaries of the concert which were symbolical of the special occasion. With the orchestra on the stage and the auditors in their places, the drum and bugle corps of the United States Marines marched down the center aisle sounding a salute and followed by color-bearers carrying the flags of the 26 nations united against Hitlerism. To the accompaniment of appropriate words from an announcer over the loudspeaker, each flag was presented to the spectators with a fanfare of bugles.

While the auditors still stood at attention, Dr. Koussevitzki entered amid a storm of applause and directed the "Internationale" in Aaron Copland's new arrangement and "The Star-Spangled Banner." Showered with more plaudits, he then retired for an interval during which the auditors settled themselves expectantly and waited for what they had come to hear.

Seven years is a long time to keep in memory exactly how an orchestra sounds and many of us had forgotten to a certain degree the superb tone quality of the Bostonians. Just what constitutes the tone of an orchestra is a mystery which no critic has been able to explain satisfactorily. Primarily, of course, the tone emanates from the strings because they are the leading voices of the ensemble, but why the tone of one string section differs from another remains a recondite matter.

Whatever the reason, the combination of the Boston tone and Sergei Koussevitzki is unique. The two work together with an irresistible magic which vivifies the colors of instruments, subtlizes accents and animates dynamics to the point of supreme eloquence. It was an unalloyed pleasure to hear again such blendings of tints and such balancings of timbres.

Prokofiev's "Classical" symphony, with which the program opened, is no stranger here, but Dr. Koussevitzki's reading underlined as no other that I have heard the significance of the title. By that I mean that he kept the dynamics entirely within the frame of the classical orchestra of Mozart's day. The lightness and the delicacy of the performance delighted the connoisseur of miniature precision.

The novelty of the concert was Shostakovich's sixth symphony which had been performed here only once before the Philadelphia Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski on December 10, 1940. Whether it was the revision of the score by the composer or the insight of Dr. Koussevitzki that made the difference, last evening's disclosure of the music seemed absolutely new. The meaning of the work came out with a clarity and a power that made a fresh impact upon the consciousness.

Undoubtedly Shostakovich has grown in the ability to express emotion and has sloughed off many of the mischievous mannerisms that retarded his development. There is a dignity in the sixth symphony that marks his emergencies as a spokesman for his nation. He has ceased being the Russian playboy and is uttering significant messages to the world.

The concert closed with Chaikovski's familiar fifth symphony touched into unexpected bloom by Dr. Koussevitzki's hands. He conducted it lovingly and fervently with a full revelation of its essential beauties.

Golf Tourney Slated to Aid Hospital Blood Bank Drive

Golf yesterday joined bridge, the dance and other forms of entertainment which this year are serving as vehicles for support of the Children's Hospital blood and serum bank.

Plans for a novel blood bank tournament at Indian Spring Country Club on May 2-3 were announced by Frank Mirth, chairman of the arrangements committee. Open to the public, as well as club members and guests, the tourney will offer medals to individual and team winners, he said.

Entry fees will be donated to the blood bank fund after expenses have been deducted.

Potomac Post and Auxiliary Unit of the American Legion cosponsor of the 1942 campaign with the Washington Bridge League and The Post, announced it will hold a benefit party at the Legion Club, 2437 Fifteenth Street Northwest, on the night of April 16. John J. A. Ager is post commander and Nettie Peters heads the auxiliary.

The annual blood bank benefit party of the Forty and Eight, in collaboration with its auxiliary, the Eight and Forty, was given last night at the Legion Club.

Receipts yesterday included $20 from James E. Walker Auxiliary Unit, headed by Mrs. Martha E. Campbell, and $5 from Kenna-Main Auxiliary Unit, of which Mrs. Jerry Love is president.

Meantime, George B. Hunt and Marie Gardiner, commander and president, respectively, of James Reese Europe Post and Auxiliary Unit, announced that members are raising donations for the Children's Hospital bank, which is maintained by funds gathered in the annual spring drive.

Dies Committee To Give Wallace Chance to Testify

Copyright by Chicago Sun

Vice President Henry A. Wallace will be given an opportunity to answer questions before the Dies Committee about 35 high officials on his Board of Economic Welfare, Chairman Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas, yesterday informed members of his investigating group.

Attaches of the committee also said that Maurice Parmelee, $5600 a year economist for the board and the author of "Nudism in Modern Life," probably would be given a chance to answer questions about his affiliation with Communist Front organizations, if any.

Choose Armour's 75th Anniversary Triumph for Easter Feasting

Star Ham in Easter Dress!
Bake and glaze your Tender-Tested Star Ham as directed below. Stud with cloves in 4-leaf clover designs. Surround with salad nests of pineapple slices topped with canned pear halves, tinted with red cinnamon candy. Then serve it proudly—the heartiest of all Easter greetings for your family and guests!

Armour's Star Ham
TRADE MARK

3 delicious types. Order your choice today
(1) TENDER-COOKED, in the yellow wrapper.
(2) READY-TO-COOK, in the white wrapper.
(3) TENDER-COOKED, boneless—in cans.

The Richest, Tastiest Ham of All Time...Tested for Tenderness Before It Comes to You!

☆ Yes, lady, you can select this magnificent Armour's Star Ham for your Easter dinner with perfect assurance... Knowing before you put it in your oven that it will come out rich, mild and deliciously tender!

First, because these superb Star Hams are sugar-cured and slow-smoked over hickory and hardwood fires in Armour's own secret way to give you sweeter, milder flavor. Then scientifically tested for tenderness before they come to you.

Armour's "Tender-Test." During the smoking process, a ham from every batch is diathermically tested...individually checked by thermometer to make sure it has reached the internal temperature that food authorities have found gives the extra tenderness and quicker cooking quality American women want.

Over two million women will choose Armour's Tender-Tested Star Ham for Easter! What better proof that it's America's most delicious ham!

How to Bake and Glaze—Wrap your Tender-Tested Star Ham in its inside glassine wrapper. Place, fat side up, in an uncovered baking pan. Bake in 325° F. oven, 18 minutes to the pound. 45 minutes before done, remove paper and rind, score the fat in squares. Then glaze with a mixture of 2 cups brown sugar and ½ cup corn syrup. Return to the oven until baking is finished and the ham is golden brown.

'Muscles' Group 'Muscled' Out In April 1 Joke?

What started out to be an April Fool's Day joke for Administrator Paul V. McNutt's Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services is today back on the lap of the Office of Civilian Defense. Or is it?

Who is directing the Division of Physical Fitness and all its sports coordinators, really? It was scheduled to land on McNutt's desk this morning and certainly Dean James M. Landis of OCD has been wanting to get rid of it. But somebody forgot to write the executive order which makes the transfer legal.

Off the OCD payroll yesterday and not yet attached financially to ODHWS, the division apparently is on its own this morning. Administrator McNutt has lots of plans for its future—but his office pointed out yesterday nothing could be announced until the transfer agreement is recognized officially.

The agreement was made several weeks ago by Administrator McNutt and James M. Landis, the OCD director, and had the President's approval. The order is expected along within three or four days, the ODHWS said yesterday.

Soldier Has Plan to Salvage Iron From Mines

Private George J. Demas, attached to a field artillery unit at Fort Meade, Md., was spending his day off in Washington yesterday seeking to sell defense officials an idea which he believes might help America win the war.

Demas, who worked in Pittsburgh steel mills and also edited an English language Greek newspaper in Homestead, Pa., said he believes that nearly half a million tons of iron are going to waste in abandoned coal mines in this country.

The iron, he said, is that in the steel used to support the roofs of mine shafts, and left in place after the mine is worked out. He said he had devised a system whereby these supports could be removed, cheaply and safely, and salvaged for use in war weapons.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Errol Flynn Divorced By Lili Damita

LILI DAMITA

Flynn Would Rather Be Alone

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, March 31.—The stormy marriage of Lili Damita and Errol Flynn of swashbuckling movie fame ended today.

The French-born actress was granted a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty.

The two were married in Yuma, Ariz., in 1935, when Flynn, a native of Ireland, was just embarking on a screen career that soon vaulted him into the high-money brackets.

Miss Damita was a former movie and musical comedy actress in France. She retired from professional life after her marriage. A son was born to the couple last June.

Rumors that all was not well in the Damita-Flynn household cropped up almost from the time of their wedding, and they separated definitely last November.

Miss Damita told Superior Judge Wililam Palmer:

"He told me he wanted to lead his own life in his own way. He said he wanted to be free, that he didn't want a child or a wife and would rather be alone."

She said Flynn told her to see an attorney about a divorce.

"There was nothing else for me to do, because I saw it was hopeless," she said.

The court approved a property settlement providing that Miss Damita will receive one-half the couple's community property, valued at $150,000, and $18,000 a year alimony. She was also awarded custody of their son.

Registration Of Women Hits Snag in House

Representative Baldwin (Republican), of New York, yesterday admitted he saw rough going ahead for his bill to register American women between the ages of 18 and 65.

"There is opposition to it in the Military Affairs Committee," he told the Women's National Press Club, "and also there is some belief around that it is a draft bill.

"As a matter of fact, it merely asks amendment of the Selective Service Act to permit registration of women in order that a catalogue of their abilities might be made. The President then could call for such a registration if he thought it necessary."

Representative Baldwin expressed doubt drafting of women for war work ever would be necessary in this country, but declared modern war holds many surprises and that "only blindness would keep us from learning from England."

Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers, a luncheon guest, said she believed the Baldwin bill will run into much opposition on the House floor and that she personally thought women will volunteer for any jobs to which they are permitted.

Representative Baldwin said the Selective Service Board and the War Production Board would need to set up women's divisions to handle the proposed registration, and declared he would be opposed to permitting the Census Bureau to undertake the job.

"I would be loath to have any paid group do the work," he asserted.

"We have got to have millions of men in the Army and doing war jobs, our battle lines already are all over the world. We know our coastlines are threatened and we know from what has been done in England that women can render an invaluable service," he said.

"For that matter," he added, "any of us might find ourselves in the front lines right here in Washington on any day. It is not inconceivable, and we might as well admit it."

Mrs. Small Denies Dog Tax Thefts On Witness Stand

Mrs. Hattie F. Small, silver-haired widow charged with embezzling $392 in dog tax receipts from the District tax collector's office, declared herself innocent of the theft, from the witness stand at District Court yesterday.

Mrs. Small, a former employe of the office, and other tax office workers called to the stand for the defense described the routine followed in collection of the dog tag funds.

The defense contends that 17 other employes, as well as Mrs. Small, worked on the issuance of the tag, and had access to the funds. Though she is accused in the indictment of taking only -392, Prosecutor John L. Laskey told the jury in his opening statement that she had embezzled about $4000 during 1939 and 1940.

STREAMLINED NOVELTIES TO NEPTUNE ROOM. Fittingly enough, Andy Padova's Streamliners and the organ and novachord stars, Collins and Arlo, who all arrive in the Neptune Room on Saturday, are graduates of that modernistic masterpiece, the New York World's Fair. The Streamliners played at the Fair for many months, Arlo played organ and novachord at the international business machine exhibit and Collins was at the organ in Ferde Grofe's orchestra at the Ford exhibit.

Better dig your car outs that snowdrift and head for the Victory Room if you're to enjoy Bob Chester's music. The Chester band bows out on Friday, with the high-test Lew Breese orchestra due on Saturday.

PAUL YOUNG'S NEW SHOW includes Syd Golden, magician-emcee; songstress Gloria French and dancer Lee Roy with those weird youngsters, Jerry and Turk, held over as stars but with a fresh line of chatter. . . . Owner Paul tells us that he's toying with the idea of producing a Paul Young's "Helzapoppin'."

MAYFAIR IS REFULGENT with the glittering music of the new Michael Barker Trio, a bunch who give their every number "that certain something." Leader Michael has spells when he plays his bull fiddle like a guitar. Accordionist Leo Bailey, only 19, imitates the bands of Dick Himber and Kay Kyser. Albert Barry makes his guitar fairly drip syrupy melody. Yes indeedy, this is a real crew of music makers.

Tomorrow's big movement will be the appearance of Giovanni, master magico, at the Troika. Unbeknownst to you, Giovanni's likely to make off with your hat, watch or suspenders. But he'll return them,—we think.

A NAVAL EASTER WEEK is being celebrated in Lotus. The Naval Cadets sing "Easter Parade" while the Tom Ball Girls prance in flowery chiffon frocks. As a finale the girls and cadets, all in deep-sea togs, step in the formation of a giant "V for Victory." Bunny Hare gives the Army a break in war songs, hillbilly style.

"DEEP IN THE HEART OF TEXAS." El Patio's Don Rinaldo, after a long engagement in Texas, is a Lone Star State fan, says Galveston is the livest town he's ever seen, that Dallas has the most beautiful girls in the world . . . This reminds that Texas, delightful pianist at Lee's Stables, is named after the State of her birth.

ECHOES IN RHYTHM. Bob Pace, singer of the King Cole Room and radio, is being boosted enthusiastically by Johnny Salb, of C. B. S., who was one of John Charles Thomas' first accompanists . . . "Angry," as presented by Layton Bailey's band in the Metronome Room, is making the customers happy . . . Organist Ida Clarke of the Lounge Riviera, says the "Lamp of Memory," of Mexican derivation, is a comer-upper . . . Thoughtful Bob Preble, of the Casino Royal, sings "Miss You" for farewell parties . . . Celia Best, of Cafe Caprice, is caroling "Sing Me a Song of the Islands," from Betty Grable's new pic, "Song of the Islands . . . Reuther Plan Given An Airing in Detroit

Program Is Derided by Auto Executive, Upheld by Its Author at G. M. Session

By David J. Wilkie
Associated Press Staff Writer

Detroit, March 31.—The Reuther plan for speeding up aircraft production was alternately derided and defended at an all-day press conference here today by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corporation, and Walter P. Reuther, labor leader and author of the plan.

Conducted in the auditorium of the General Motors Building here, the conference to which nearly 200 news and magazine writers and others were invited, took on many of the aspects of an old-fashioned town hall meeting, with hours of questions from the floor occupying most of the day.

Wilson termed the plan one conceived chiefly for "publicity and political purposes" with nothing to it "that would be helpful," and Reuther retorted by accusing industry of waste and inefficiency, and with being more interested "in maintaining peacetime production than in defense production."

One Type of Plane

"Industry," Reuther charged, "hung on to get the last automobile off the line."

Wilson was flanked by three members of his executive and engineering staff and Reuther had with him three associates on the executive staff of the United Workers (C. I. O.). At a microphone in the center of the long table on the auditorium stage was George V. Denny, radio's "Town Hall of the Air" director, who acted as moderator. Denny frequently choked off questions that had no direct bearing on the Reuther plan and kept the principles within agreed time limits.

The Reuther plan, Wilson said in his opening statement, was "a guns and butter plan and not a conversion plan; a plan to produce something our military authorities did not require and still do not require, even in this war emergency. It was a plan to build four million automobiles a year and, with the excess capacity in the automotive industry, to build one type of fighter plane at the rate of 500 per day."

Referring to the proposal as a "publicity trick to attract attention," Wilson asserted: "It could hardly have been a considered opinion based on a true engineering and manufacturing survey of what could be done, because the exact product to be manufactured was not specified."

"An Over-All Approach"

Reuther, responding, asserted that he had been unable to present the proposal to management representatives because of their unwillingness to discuss it. The plan, he said, was not put forward "just in terms of 500 planes a day. It was more than that; it was an over-all approach to the organization of American industry that would insure the maximum utilization of man power and machinepower, by an over-all direction and coordination of these facilities."

"I say," he went on, "that the skilled man-hours wasted in building a 1942 model car was the most criminal thing ever done against our program because it represented the greatest waste of skilled man-production and man-hours that has ever taken place in America at a time when we needed every single skilled man-hour we could get. We were wasting it, and the industry came out with a model, which we called the "Christmas Tree" model, filled with gadgets, filled with trimmings, that used up more critical materials than were necessary."

The 1942 models were brought out, Wilson said, because lacking large defense orders at the time, the industry would have had to lay off huge numbers of workers.

Subordinated Tooling Plan

"The industry did agree," he said, "in October, 1940, that it would subordinate any tooling program on new models to the necessities of the defense program. The trouble was that the orders for defense material did not come out fast enough for us to get at the job."

In elaborating his proposal for "over-all coordination and direction," with the industry operating as one unit and with labor having a voice in the effort, Reuther insisted that "labor is not trying to take over management; it does not challenge General Motors' right to have Mr. Wilson as its president."

The afternoon session brought a several-times repeated challenge by Wilson to Reuther to prove that his plan did not propose exactly the "same kind of a business as usual" program with which Reuther accused the industry.

Throughout the conference the tall, white-haired Wilson chose his words carefully, sometimes reading from notes, sometimes from memoranda passed to him by his associates and sometimes from records of earlier conferences on production, plant capacity or other manufacturing processes.

A typical exchange between the two principals was:

Reuther: "Mr. Wilson, you state that you did not anticipate the developments in the industry."

Wilson: "No. I didn't say that, Walter. I didn't say that. I said that we did not anticipate as big an automobile business as developed; that our plans were for less production than our share of four million."

Reuther: "I would like to ask Mr. Wilson if he doesn't feel that if the industry had volunteered to waive the 1942 model, and at that time had started tooling for defense production and that such tooling and the overall production had been organized on an industry-wide basis, whether we would not be much further along with the war effort than we are at the present time?"

Wilson: "The industry did agree, individually and all manufacturers in October, 1940, that they would subordinate any tooling program on new models to the necessities of the defense program."

Conferred with Knudsen

Replying to a question from the floor, Reuther said that although his plan had been submitted to Government representatives, he at no time "got a definite answer from the Government . . . We had several conferences with Mr. Knudsen (W. S. Knudsen, then director of the Office of Production Management). At the last conference we had with Mr. Knudsen he promised to give us a blueprint of an airplane motor. We were to take the blueprint back here and double check the industry. We never did get the print . . . We are still waiting for them."

In another digression, Reuther asked Wilson if he would be willing to go along with a proposal that much unused "single purpose" machinery in the industry be turned over to Russia, China or England if it could be used in their war effort.

"I don't know why you specify Russia, China and England," Wilson replied, "because we already are turning this equipment over to our own countrymen right here in Detroit. We are willing to release these tools for use in any other part of the war effort."

5% Retail Sales Tax Is Urged By Merchants as Deflation Plan

A 5 per cent Federal retail sales tax, estimated to yield three billion dollars annually, was recommended to the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday as a substitute for a large segment of the seven billion dollars to be raised in a new tax bill. The Treasury has proposed that the total be raised largely from drastically increased income taxes, both individual and corporate.

The recommendation, made by the American Retail Federation, representing more than 400,000 merchants and marking a reversal in their long-held position on sales taxes was received with an interest little short of enthusiasm by members of the committee.

Despite the opposition to the sales tax expressed by Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of the Treasury, speaking directly for President Roosevelt, a majority of the committee has been veering steadily in favor of a sales levy in one form or another.

Speaking through B. Earl Puckett, president of the Allied Stores Corporation and chairman of Federation's Tax Policy Committee, the retailers said:

"Retailers have always opposed sales taxes because they are deflationary. We now propose a sales tax for exactly that reason. If we reverse our position it is not because we expect any immediate improvement in the retail business to result from the reversal. Quite the contrary.

"We do expect, however, that a Federal retail sales tax will siphon off purchasing power and hence will tend to check the current inflationary trends. We believe that check is necessary. We ask especially that this general tax of 5 per cent be imposed, not on the retail merchant nor on the sale, but instead on the consumer. It is a tax on consumption."

Textile Workers Strike in Paterson, N. J., Over Unconditional Pay Increase Demand

By the Associated Press

Paterson, N. J., March 31.—Thousands of textile workers quit their jobs here today in protest over failure to win an unconditional 10-cent-an-hour rise in pay.

They walked out of nearly 60 plants and may have numbered nearly 6000 persons in their ranks, but both management and labor leaders said they had no figures. There are about 6000 workers in the area.

Vito Fritz, international secretary of the Federation of Dyers, Finishers, Printers and Bleachers of America (C. I. O.), said the walkout was spontaneous and not a strike called by the union.

The Dyers and Printers Employers Association, which had been negotiating with Local 1733 of the union for some time, last night offered the dyehouse workers a 10 per cent increase on the condition that competitive plants pay not less than 10 per cent below the Paterson rates. The association said the minimum now was 75 cents an hour.

This morning union members in the various shops offered their employers contracts omitting the condition and, when the management declined to sign them, walked out.

NLRB Cancels Textile Argument

By the Associated Press

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday canceled an oral argument scheduled for April 7 on a petition of an independent textile union at Fall River, Mass., because, the board said, not all of the union members who had struck complied with an agreement to return to their jobs.

The strike was ended Monday on the basis of the board's promise to hear the union discuss orally its petition, already dismissed by the NLRB, for an area-wide election on a craft basis.

The strike lasted a week and involved thousands of workers in Fall River mills.

A telegram from H. A. Millis, NLRB chairman, to the American Federation of Textile Operatives (independent), made public by the board, said:

"The board agreed yesterday to grant oral argument on the condition that strikers returned to work and remained at work. We are advised that some strikers at Berkshire mills have not returned and are still striking. Since the condition on which oral argument was granted has not been complied with, the oral argument set for April 7 is hereby canceled."

Fall River, Mass., March 31 (AP).—Approximately 3600 workers in three mills of the Berkshire Fine Spinning Co., remained idle today because loom fixers and other key workers stayed out in protest against the employment of one worker who belonged to the C. I. O.

While the remainder of the city's 18 cloth manufacturing plants were reopened after nearly a week's idleness, the loom fixers, slash tenders and knot tyers, members of the American Federation of Textile Operators, an independent union, continued the walkout at the Berkshire plant.

Pickets Delay Army Huts

Detroit, March 31 (AP).—The Currier Lumber Co., said today two pickets for the Detroit Building Trades Council, A. F. L., were delaying shipments of 900 prefabricated Army huts.

Paul Foley, in charge of the company's advertising and public relations, said the pickets were preventing drivers of the A. F. L. Teamsters' Union from making deliveries or picking up loads at Currier's Schaefer road plant.

He said he knew no reason for the picketing, and that the company had protested to the War Production Board.

Ed Thal, secretary of the Building Trades Council, said he did not know the plant was being picketed.

"But we have a strike on at Currier's," he said, "and we won't let anybody work for them."

The Currier company's labor troubles date back more than a year to a strike called by the A. F. L. Since that time, the C. I. O. has been recognized as sole bargaining agency for Currier employes.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

5000 Census Workers Will Keep Their Jobs

Census has 5000 temporary employes who, according to law, must have their work on the sixteenth decennial census completed by January 1. But Director J. C. Capt has no plans to dismiss any of the employes. Statistical and tabulating jobs from war agencies will keep the 5000 temporaries busy indefinitely . . . Congress has finally approved that bill to pay Federal employes who volunteered for military service their accrued annual leave. Heretofore, only drafted employes were given their leave in cash, the volunteers were discriminated against.

Thomas McNamara has been transferred to the Investigation Division at GAO and W. W. Richardson has been made acting personnel director . . . A Civil Service exam for District policeman is open. There are 75 vacancies. The maximum age limit has been raised from 31 to 35. The starting salary is $1900 . . . A change in the war transfer regulations places all Federal workers in a preferred class for the filling of vacancies. However, employes can't be transferred to agencies with a lower priority rating . . . There are 1656 eligibles on the senior administrative officer register which was set up yesterday.

The abolition of Public Work Reserve yesterday killed more than 5000 jobs. Only 50 or 60 of the jobholders were here but each State had an average of 100 employes each. Federal Works will set up a postwar planning bureau but it won't be nearly so large as the Public Work Reserve. A. D. Morrell, chief of the Public Work Reserve, has been invited to head the new bureau but he probably won't accept. Jacob Baker, former president of the UFWA, has been working on post-war problems for Federal Works but he isn't expected to get the call.

Mental Test Experiment

Federal administrators are being given mental exams as an experiment. The tests were worked up by Dr. L. L. Thurstone, a Chicago University professor. Dr. Leonard White, another Chicago professor and a former member of the Civil Service Commission, assisted him. The Carnegie Foundation is financing the tests in the hope of developing a competitive method of picking competent young administrators for the Government. Successful administrators are being used as guinea pigs. The tests are being given in a room at the American University, 1905 F Street Northwest, and plenty of administrators have flunked out. The experiment will take three months.

The FBI, in cooperation with Civil Aeronautics, is investigating each of the 200,000 plane pilots in the country. As the FBI clears the pilots, CAA will issue them certificates to fly . . . FBA is moving into North Interior, USHA is moving out to the Longfellow Building. Incidentally there's only three parking places available at the Longfellow . . . Treasury Beneficial Association will celebrate its golden anniversary on April 5. The group insurance organization has 16,703 members. It was started 50 years ago by passing the hat when a poor Treasury employe passed on.

Agriculture announces officially that Farm Credit's cooperative and research division won't be moved to Kansas City . . . Federal credit unions have sold more than 12 million dollars in defense bonds and have bought themselves more than ten million dollars worth . . . Herbert Hoover, jr., son of the former President, has been awarded a mining patent by the Patent Office . . . The Rockefeller agency on inter-American affairs is said to have the best furniture in the Government.

26-Year-Old Horse In $80,000 Estate Of D. C. Contractor

An estate whose assets included two carriages, two automobiles and a 26-year-old horse estimated to be worth $25, was left by Charles A. Langley, retired Washington contractor who died on March 17, it was revealed at District Court yesterday.

Total valuation of the estate was placed at upwards of $80,000—the bulk of it in real estate—in a petition for probate of his will filed by Attorney George C. Shinn. A son, Albion C. Langley, was named as executor.

The property was left to his family, the court was told, under a will dated September 7, 1937. Debts were reported to run about $4000.

A Lucky Slip

New York March 31 (A.P.).—Cleaning house, Mrs. August Maguire decided to burn a pile of papers and an innocent-looking cigar box.

One Drink Too Many

Seattle, March 31 (A.P.).—Harborville Hospital attendants wrote out this accident report: "Possible cerebral concussion—cause, one drink of milk."

Eugene Gray, 61, explained: "I was drinking milk in a restaurant, I choked, ran outside, fell down and hit my head on the curb."

BOND CONCERT—Hep on the steps of the Treasury, Johnny Long and his swing band yesterday cut a groove for the sale of more defense bonds and stamps. Victory Sidelights

Navy Orders Strict Regulation Of Potomac, Anacostia Craft

Strict regulation of private vessels operating on the Potomac and Anacostia Rivers will take effect April 20, Rear Admiral George Pettengill, commandant of the Potomac River Naval Command, announced yesterday.

Under orders designed to guard against possible sabotage and espionage, traffic will be barred from certain areas, vessels must be licensed and operators and crew members will be required to carry identification cards.

Licenses and identification cards are being issued by the captain of the Port of Washington, Lieut. P. B. Mavor, United States Coast Guard, 1020 Main Avenue Southwest.

The orders also specify that rowboats and canoes must display four-inch identifying letters and numerals, assigned by the captain of the port, on both bows.

Owners of rowboats and canoes who use them personally must obtain identification cards from the captain, and those who rent them to others must provide him with the names and addresses of the users and a statement on where the craft are to be taken.

No rowboat or canoe will be allowed below Memorial Bridge on the Potomac and Anacostia Bridge on the Anacostia unless at least one of the occupants carries an identification card.

The orders bar all vessels from waters within 100 yards of Army and Navy activities and stipulate that "no vessel shall moor, anchor or hover near any supporting pier of any bridge."

Give the Boys Real Send Off, House Urged

Substitution of a "roaring send off" for the "silly shush-shush policy of many local draft boards" in inducting men into the armed forces was demanded on the House floor yesterday by Representative Young (Democrat), of Ohio.

"Young Americans inducted into the armed forces of this Nation, instead of being quietly taken from their home cities as if they were being taken to some penal institution, should be marched proudly down the main street of their cities," he declared.

Get Tough to Win Le Sauvage Says

A warning that the people of this country are too complacent about the war and that we must "get tough" to win it, was sounded last night to 400 members of the Washington Restaurant Association by Lieut. Comdr. G. R. Le Sauvage, U. S. Navy, retired.

"Most of you here are concerned about carrying on your business," said Le Sauvage, "and that's only natural. Let me tell you this: Before this war is over you will have to do without a lot more than sugar. The people don't seem to realize that our house is on fire and that we are in serious danger. We've got to get tough and put in everything we've got—or else."

Le Sauvage, national chairman on defense of the restaurant industry, said five members of his family will be in the country's service by the end of this week. One son, Rollins, 21, is with the R. A. F. Another, George, 24, enters the Army this week. A son-in-law, Alvin Van Hoff, is an officer with the Coast Guard. Two daughters, Joy, 20, and Mimi, 23, are serving with the Army Intelligence and Red Cross, respectively. "And I expect to go back in any time," he said.

Col. Lemuel Bolles, OCD director, spoke on blacking out restaurants during an air raid and urged all restaurant operatives to cooperate with air raid wardens.

Dog Tags to Become Water Hydrants

Fido, too, will give to national defense, said District officials last night, hoping to enlist at least his license tag in the interest of the war effort.

Substitute tags will be made of fiber, in order to permit the conversion of old tags with a high brass content into fire plugs, of all things. About 700 pounds of brass, hoped to be saved thereby, will be cast into hydrants at Lorton Reformatory.

Thirty-five thousand of gray, weather-resistant fiber have been ordered in advance for patriotic District canines. The old metal tags are to be turned in at the nearest police station after the war badges have been purchased.

4 Pianos Included In Gifts to Army

Four pianos, one radio-victrola, 500 pieces of sheet music and the same number of records have been collected and distributed to soldiers in nearby Army camps by the District music for the services committee, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Eugene Byrnes, chairman, said the Army will call for any instruments or bulky packages of music or records, and invites persons wishing to make such donations to leave their gifts at any branch of the Public Library. She announced, also, a meeting of her committee on Monday, April 13, at 4 o'clock in the Arts Club.

Mt. Pleasant Women To Meet Tomorrow

Women from the Mount Pleasant civilian defense area will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Francis Asbury Church at Sixteenth and Lamont Streets Northwest, to formulate a plan for collecting money with which to run defense services of their neighborhood.

Deputy Warden Richard M. Barr and other officials will aid the women in perfecting plans for their drive, a job for which they volunteered. A goal of $5000 will be set, and at least 125 women will participate in the campaign.

Traffic Light Devices Ordered

The total blackout of traffic lights from midnight to morning which started Friday, turned out to be, like many District blackouts, not quite total, after all. In fact, lights at 19 intersections still flash their red and green signals all through the night.

For the benefit of late drivers who may have been wondering if the particular intersections are regarded as especially dangerous, or if the air-raid wardens entrusted with the keys to the light switches have not been on the job, the Traffic Department announced last night that these lights have not been doused because the timers for them have not yet been installed.

The air-raid wardens are not supposed to dim or to cut off the lights every night, but only when an alert is sounded. Ordinarily the automatic cut-outs will do the job. The rheostats, which have been ordered for dimming the lights, are expected to be installed within ten days, when all the lights will go back on a 24-hour day.

Last of Draftees Until April 15 Leave

In announcing the last group of Washington registrants to be inducted into the armed forces for March, William E. Leahy, director of District Selective Service, stated yesterday that there will probably be no inductions from local boards until April 15.

Those to be inducted today at Camp Lee, Virginia, being sent from Local Board No. 5 are: Harry Goldberg, Robert Yentis Jesse, Norman Langford, Louis Reznek and Samuel Montgomery Schollenbarger.

Thomas Fitch Goes To Flying School

Thomas E. Fitch, 807 East Capitol Street, a member of the 121 Aviation Cadets at Fort Dix, has been sent to a Basic Flying School, Fort Dix authorities announced yesterday. Fitch will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Corps, upon completion of the course.

Baptist Women To Hear Mrs. St. John

Mrs. Edward A. St. John, vice chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, District Chapter, American Red Cross, will address the Women's Society of the National Baptist Memorial Church, Sixteenth Street and Columbia Road Northwest, today at 1 p. m. at a luncheon in the dining room. She will speak on the subject of "Streamlining the Red Cross Disaster Relief Setups."

Band Concert Loosens Rolls Of Hepcats

Music, quoth the sage, hath charms to soothe the savage breast.

And, sister, when wrapped in jive and sent solidly—but in the groove—to a session of hepcats it's got a way of snapping the rubber bands off bankrolls and putting the green to work against the Japanazis.

Johnny Long and his band demonstrated that yesterday at noon on the Treasury's north steps. Taking a half-hour's sabbatical from the Earle Theate, the swingcasters tootled away for a lunch period crowd of 500 in the name of defense bonds and stamps.

A goodly share of the listeners, after the last note had been kidnaped by a high wind, walked up the steps and planked dimes and dollars on the counter in exchange for the aforesaid stamps and bonds.

Between such classics as "Blue Skies," "Shanty in Shantytown" and "Artillery Song," Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan came out and had his picture taken with the fellows. Guilford S. Jameson, Bar Association speaker, delivered a sales talk. When the rhythm was resumed, a pretty redhead standing in the court got back to her foot-tapping.

It was said, without confirmation, that one trombone slide lifted the left foot of Alexander Hamilton's bronze effigy, which stands on the other side of the Treasury Building, a half inch off its pedestal.

Next Monday, the Treasury announced, the Army Band will do a bond concert on the same steps to commemorate Army Day (there'll be no parade) as well as to stimulate sales for victory.

Southeast Area To Meet Tonight

Area defense plans will be discussed and members of the recently organized provisional finance committee presented at a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in Hine Junior High School, the Southeast civilian defense area.

Members of the finance committee are James G. O'Brien, chairman; Charles H. Kindle, the Rev. F. F. King, the Rev. A. F. T. Raum, Kenneth G. Reed and Frank E. Scrivener. The junior high school is located at Seventh and C Streets Southeast.

War Housing Bill Action Is Suspended

Leaders Disagree On Funds Needed; Matter to Be Taken Up After April 13

Congressional action on the District area's war housing bill last night was suspended until after April 13, with House conferees adamant in their determination that 50 million dollars be authorized to care for Federal war workers here and Senate conferees willing to compromise on a 60-million-dollar figure instead of the Senate's original 70 millions.

Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate conferees, declared his group has taken the stand that at least five million dollars should go for increased hospital facilities in Washington.

"The hospitals already are overcrowded,' he said. "With more workers coming here the need naturally will be increased."

Delay Regretted

He expressed regret that action on the important measure should be delayed longer, but the Senate conferees are unwilling to accept the House figure, he said, following a conference yesterday.

The reason for waiting until after April 13 for the next conference is that the House conferees cannot obtain further instructions from House leaders until that date, it is understood.

Representative Lanham (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee and of the House conferees, had no comment to make after yesterday's conference.

The Senate group also is seeking House concurrence in the Goodwillie plan which would reconstruct nine square slum blocks in Southwest Washington for the use of Federal war workers at a cost to the Government of five million dollars. It is believed they may compromise on this demand.

3 Months in Congress

The bill has now been in Congress about three months. As originally passed by the House, it authorized appropriation of 50 million dollars: 40 millions for 10,000 homes for war workers in the Washington metropolitan area, and the remaining ten millions for facilitating public works.

Following hearings before its Education and Labor Committee, the Senate amended the bill, authorizing 70 million dollars; 45 millions for housing, including the Goodwillie plan, and 25 millions for a vast public works improvement program which embraces funds for additional school room space, 2100 more hospital beds and street, sewer and lighting facilities.

Southeast Group Names Three Men To Replace One

When Vernis Absher, a veteran member of the Southeast Citizens Association and a founder of the Southeast Council, resigned his official positions in association work to go in the Army, it was a major upheaval in officeholding. Three persons had to be appointed or elected to replace him.

The selections were made at a meeting last night of the association in Friendship House, 619 D Street Southeast. C. C. Clem was elected to succeed Absher as a delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations. Rev. A. F. T. Raum, was elected to replace him as vice president of the Southeast group, and Bernard Ladd was elected to replace him as a delegate to the Southeast Council.

Miss Mary Roney was elected secretary of the association to succeed W. W. Miller, who has been called into service by the Navy.

W. A. Phalen of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association spoke on insanitary housing in the Southeast and Hazen Terry, of the same association, on war salvaging. Committees from the Southeast group were appointed to work with the two men in these matters.

Four D. C. Students Chosen Finalists in Oratory Contest

FINALISTS for competition in the American Legion national oratorical contest are Richard Forsling, of Woodrow Wilson High School, and Betty Jane Watt, of Langley Junior High School

Four junior and senior high school students were chosen as District finalists for the American Legion national oratorical contest in preliminary competition held last night.

The winners, who will compete for the District championship at the Smithsonian Institution's Natural History Building next Monday, were: Richard Forsling, 17, of 3283 Arcadia Place Northwest, of Woodrow Wilson High School; Betty Jane Watt, 14, of 34 R Street Northeast, of Langley Junior High School; Jane Simmons, of Holy Cross Academy, and Verna McFarland, 15, of 1905 Capitol Avenue Northeast, of Dunbar High School.

Nine representatives of white schools competed at the American Legion Home while four representatives of Negro schools matched words at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A.

Winner of next Monday's District finals will go to Philadelphia April 9 for a regional contest, to be followed by sectional competition in Buffalo, N. Y., April 15, and the national finals April 17 in Milwaukee.

Winners of the first four places in the national finals will receive scholarships valued at $4000, $750, $500 and $250, respectively.

George Brown Believed Held By Japanese

BROWN

George Brown, 25-year-old former American University football and basketball star, is among the Americans interned by Japanese at Manila, members of his family here believe.

His mother, Mrs. Dora Brown, of 3030 Wisconsin Avenue, who saw the name of her son on the list of internees released Monday by Francis B. Sayre, United States High Commisioner to the Philippines, said last night she was "overjoyed" at the evidence that the former athlete was alive.

Last previous word from Brown had come January 2 through the International Red Cross, which reported he was "alive and well."

Board Urges D. C. Lawyers As Judges

Trade Body Praises Law Providing Single Municipal Court

The Washington Board of Trade yesterday praised the law providing for a single Municipal Court here and urged Attorney General Biddle to recommend local lawyers as judges in the new tribunal.

Fred A. Smith, president of the board, made public a letter in which the board's executive committee said the establishment of an Intermediate Court of Appeals and the combining of the present Police and Municipal Courts "should do much to promote the fair administration of justice in the District."

"These courts," the letter continued, "are purely local courts whose jurisdiction is confined to matters of purely local interest with respect to the rights of citizens of the District."

The law, which is now before the President, limits appointment to the appellate court to District residents who have practiced law here for five years. The board urged that the "appointments be made to conform in every respect to the intent of the legislation."

The same requirement is established for members of the new Municipal Court, except that two of the judges may be residents of Maryland. "Here again," said the board, "we urge that the letter and the spirit of the law be recognized and that the appointments in all instances be limited to men who, by reason of experience in the active practice of law in the District of Columbia, have become qualified to serve as judges."

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Board Approves Louis K. O. Over Simon

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 31.—Confidentially the reason why the Washington club signed Buck Newsom is this: Clark Griffith is an incurable Buck Newsom fan. He was willing to pay Newsom more than the rich Detroit club offered him because he wanted big Buck on his ball team.

POVICH

Griffith's affection for Newsom has weathered ridicule and insults hurled at the Washington club by big Buck. Another club owner might have waived Newsom out of the league, and good riddance, but not Griffith. Firstly Griffith is a businessman, and secondly his admiration for Buck's showmanship overpowers any personal dislike he may have for the fellow.

Newsom's color and his circus stuff on the ball field is right down Griffith's alley. The Washington owner likes a show with his baseball. For nearly 20 years he had on his payroll both of the only two professional clowns in the game—Altrock and Schacht. He likes Newsom's light touch.

Griffith Has Plans

Griffith's willingness to meet Newsom's salary terms was not exactly philanthropic, however. He reasons, and probably correctly, that he will get it all back at the gate if the colorful Newsom has a decent sort of year. With 21 night games on the Washington schedule, a winning Newsom would be a powerful magnet in boom town Washington.

Newsom says so himself, incidentally. "I'm never an overpaid pitcher," Buck was saying. "Griffith will get back my salary the first time I pitch in Detroit when those Detroit fans fill the park to see the Tigers try to beat me. I gotta be paid over the scale, if they really want to pay me what I'm worth." Newsom hasn't changed much.

Only a few hours before he accepted Griffith's terms, Newsom loudly laughed off the idea that he would be sold to Washington. "That's one club that can't pay me enough money," he told newsmen. "Not a chance for me to go to Washington."

He heaped insults on Griffith, declaring he had been underpaid by the Washington club owner in 1935, 1936, 1937. "I wouldn't work for that outfit," he said. Would he accept a contract with a bonus arrangement? Definitely no, he said. "I had one experience with Griffith's bonus arrangement. When it looked like they'd have to give me a bonus for winning 18 games in 1936, they gave me the works toward the end of the season and kept me on the bench for 22 straight days. I wouldn't sign another bonus arrangement with the Washington club unless it was guaranteed by the Treasury Department."

A Bonus Contract

And what kind of a contract did Newsom sign with the Washington club yesterday? You guessed it, a bonus contract. Not only that, but the unpredictable Buck who had inveighed for an hour against the unreasonable Griffith before the deal was made, actually offered to sign a blank contract with Washington. "Here's my signature, you fill in the salary," Newsom told Griffith. "I'm trusting you to make the price right."

Griffith didn't accept that offer, but he reached terms with Newsom. The contract Newsom signed, incidentally, created something of a situation on the Washington club. Although the terms were not disclosed, it is estimated that Newsom signed for a $15,000 salary with bonuses that will raise his pay to $20,000 if he has a good year on the mound. Thus he is a higher-paid pitcher than Dutch Leonard who was winning 18 games last season while Newsom was losing 20 with the harder-hitting Tigers. Newsom's salary throws the club's payroll out of line, but Buck always upsets the normal course of things.

"Did I tell you what I did with the contract the Detroit Tigers sent me?" volunteered Newsom today. "They wanted to cut me 66 per cent, and I took that contract and sent it back to Jack Zeller in the next mail. He got it in a great big box big enough to hold a hat. I packed it in limburger cheese and wrote a note saying his idea of a salary for me smelled worse than the limburger."

Harris Not Enthusiastic

Griffith wanted Newsom on the Washington club a whole lot more keenly than did Manager Bucky Harris. Like every other manager who has had Newsom on his club, Harris was glad to be rid of Buck, who is another name for managerial headache. Harris was hopeful that he could convince Griffith that Newsom was hog fat and not much account generally. He was prepared to make that sort of speech to Griffith after interviewing Newsom in Lakeland before Washington met the Tigers in an exhibition game.

Harris, however, suffered a change of heart later in the afternoon. He saw Dutch Leonard get pounded by the Tigers and Hardin Cathey, his pet rookie pitcher, get the same treatment. He began to wonder if it wouldn't be better to have Newsom around. Harris' opposition to Buck melted and Griffith had his own way.

W. L. Hunter, of Boulder, Colo., who saw his first National League Baseball game in 1879, writes me an interesting letter of reminiscence in which he names the late Billy Sunday as the fastest runner he ever saw in baseball uniform. Hunter, now 82, saw Sunday dethrone Arlie Latham as the 100-yard sprint champion in the Chicago ball park in 1837. Sunday would not race unless his supporters agreed to cancel the $500 bet they had placed on him. It was against his principles.

Heinie Comes Back to Life

Col. Harvey L. Miller, former N. B. A. president, now a Marine commander at New River, N. Complaint By Johnston Overruled

Voluble Manager May Bring Charge Of Incompetence Against Referee

By the Associated Press

New York, March 31.—In a few thousand well-chosen words, James Joy Johnston today officially put his complaint about Abe Simon's knockout by Joe Louis before the State Athletic Commission. And to the surprise of exactly no one, the commission said "No."

The august fistic fathers heard James Joy's complaint because when James Joy starts to jaw, that's all anyone in a radius of a couple of miles can do. Then the fathers ruled that Simon was not on his feet at the count of ten last Friday night, and so was officially flattened in six heats. But, with sparkling consistency, the commissioner added that if Johnton wanted to submit charges of "incompetence" against Referee Eddie Joseph, they'd hold a hearing about it. Jimmy said he'd do that little thing. Then the derby hat was invited to leave.

It was altogether fitting and proper for James Joy to put his beef into a few thousand words. There is no handier guy around for putting a beef into words—and vice versa. It wasn't so much that Jimmy went on record as being quite displeased over what he maintains was Friday night's "fast count." Whether Abie was on his feet at Referee Eddie Joseph's count of ten and whether he could have stretched his ability to take punches much farther is strictly a matter of opinion.

An Official Beef

What is more important, was that Jimmy's complaint finally put into the records an official "holler" on a fight decision in a season that has been uncommonly sprayed with unofficial hollers on the part of managers, fighters and fans. The referees' finishes to at least half a dozen fights since last November haven't sat at all well with the folks.

In which respect, it would be well for the three wise men of New York's walloping to remember one part of the reformed boy bandit's "Patrick Henry" today. In brief, this was:

"Fighters train for five or six weeks to learn to absorb punishment. They're prepared to take some punishment. They are paid sums up to five figures for same. Unless a fighter is badly hurt, why should a referee take it upon himself to stop a fight, just because a fighter happens to be floored, especially when the boxer gets up and wants to continue?

Well, Almost Standing

"After all, the fans pay good money to see a fight. Last Friday they paid $25 apiece. I maintain Simon was on his feet at ten. Anyway, Abe wanted to continue, so why should Joseph stop it?"

If you change the names slightly, it's the same patter employed by Fritzie Zivic, Maxie Berger and Norman Rubio when Referees Arthur Donovan, Frankie Fullam and Donovan again decided they knew better than the fighters about how the fighters felt in their tussles with Ray Robinson. It's the same beef registered when Donovan wouldn't let Buddy Baer get up the last time in his January party with Louis.

As for Gus Fan and his Missus, they have always contended their tickets, bought anywhere from $5 to $30, give them the right to let loose a blast whenever the feeling arises. And in several of these instances, it has arisen so much that the Garden walls rocked—and not from cheers.

Oklahoma's Aggies Win Benefit, 44-35

Oklahoma City, March 31.—The Oklahoma Aggies scuttled Oklahoma tonight, 44 to 35, in a game which netted them the State basketball title and grossed $3,187 for the naval relief fund. Attendance was estimated at 4000.

The victory gave the Aggies the year's series with the Sooners, two to one.

In a postseason game that settled the supremacy between these ancient rivals, the Aggies steamed out in battle formation, caught the Sooners with a salvo of fancy shooting and took a lead that they held through most of a rough-and-tumble scrap.

At the same time they bottled up Gerald Tucker, who has been something of a dreadnaught all season, holding him to a single field goal and a total of nine points.

Maple Leafs, Red Wings Gain Hockey Finals

By the Associated Press

Toronto, March 31.—Nick Metz sent the Toronto Maple Leafs into the Stanley Cup finals tonight by coming through with a storybook goal six seconds before the final buzzer, to defeat and eliminate the New York Rangers, National Hockey League champions, 3 to 2.

The Leafs now meet Detroit's Red Wings for the battered mug, emblematic of hockey supremacy. The Red Wings eliminated Boston, defending cup champions, 3 to 1, in the Motor City tonight.

Metz broke up the sixth game of the best of seven semifinal series by streaking down the left side of the rink while a majority of the Rangers were on the opposite side. He circled Bill Juzba, only Ranger in his path, and belted a hard drive past Sugar Jim Henry, New York's rookie goaler.

Detroit, March 31 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings entered the finals of the Stanley Cup National Hockey League playoffs tonight with a 3-to-1 victory over the defending champion Boston Bruins in the second game of the best-out-of-three semifinals series before 13,525, the largest crowd ever to see a game here.

The Red Wings, last year's cup finalists also, will meet the Toronto Maple Leafs, conquerors tonight of the New York Rangers, in a best-out-of-seven series for the battered trophy.

Gus Dorazio Bows To Bettina's Rally

9000 See Former Lightheavy Champion Win Unanimously Though Badly Punished

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, March 31.—Cuffing his opponent around in the last round with a two-fisted attack, Heavyweight Melio Bettina won a 10-round decision over the veteran Gus Dorazio before a capacity crowd of 9000 at the Arena tonight. Until the last stanza the fight was virtually even.

At the end Dorazio, Philadelphia Italian who at 190 outweighed the former light-heavyweight champion from Beacon, N. Y., by five pounds, was stumbling around the ring, missing wild swings, while Bettina slung him with lefts and rights. The decision was unanimous.

Bettina in Danger

He was on the verge of a knockout in the sixth round when Dorazio smashed home a terrific right that drove Bettina into the ropes. The crowd let out a roar as Bettina's legs sagged and he grabbed Dorazio to hold on. Gus, a 3-to-1 underdog in the betting, tried hard for the kill, but Bettina recovered and fought back savagely. At the bell Dorazio landed a hard right to the stomach that hurt, and Bettina showed it as he stumbled to his corner.

Dorazio never again came close to victory, although in the first and eighth rounds he missed two savage rights that had "knockout" written all over them.

Bettina, revived in his corner after the sixth, slowed up Dorazio in the seventh with hard cracks. He repeated delaying tactics in the next two rounds, although Gus landed several that hurt, then came out swinging for his winning rally in the last round. Gus was completely outclassed in the final stanza, barely on his feet at the bell. His seconds dashed out to the middle of the ring and poured cold water over him to help clear the mental cobwebs.

Bettina's southpaw style puzzled Gus at the start. He took many jabs in the face without getting in a return. Gus kept boring in, however, constantly trying to get Bettina into a corner. When he did he socked home wicked punches that cut Bettina's right eye and nose.

Dorothy Kirby Leading Field

By the Associated Press

Augusta, Ga., March 31.—Tall Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, the defending champion, shot a five-over-par 79 today to take a one-stroke lead over the field after the opening round of the 54-hole medal play Titleholders Golf Tournament.

Miss Kirby and another Georgian, youthful Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, waged a close battle for the lead as the sixth annual tournament got underway over the windswept Country Club course.

The two heavily backed Georgia veterans engaged in a ding-dong battle through 17 holes, with Miss Suggs, the present North and South champion, missing a short putt at the home green for an 80.

Back in third place, five shots off the pace, came Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. Dak., whose 84 gave her a one-stroke advantage over Mrs. Helen Hicks Harb, of Washington, D. C.

Vinnie DeAngelis, Former G.W. Player, Named Baseball Coach

DeANGELIS

Appointment of Vinnie DeAngelis, former baseball pitcher and outfielder of the George Washington Colonials, as head coach of the team he used to play with was announced yesterday by Max Farrington, director of athletics.

Since the resignation two weeks ago of Coach Ed Morris, top diamond mentor for a decade at G. W., DeAngelis had been acting head coach and it had been generally assumed that he would succeed his old boss. Arthur Zahn, freshman basketball and baseall coach, will assist the new appointee. Freshman baseball, golf and tennis have been abolished at G. W.

DeAngelis, a graduate of Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, N. Y., was selected to go south with the New York Giants for spring training as a reward for winning the New York World-Telegram's contest for the outstanding schoolboy player in the metropolitan area. Experts and club officials said the only reason he did not stay with the Giants was that his fast ball didn't have enough hop, although he had remarkable speed.

Following his graduation from high school, he spent the next several years as a clerk in a Wall Street brokerage firm, and then decided to complete his education at George Washington. He played football during his first two seasons at the downtown institution, but his lack of weight caused him to give it up. He was a member of the Colonials' best nine the 1936 team which won 12 and lost 1.

His best and most spectacular performance was against Marius Russo, of Long Island University, now with the New York Yankees. He bested Russo in a 1-0 mound duel and even drove in the winning run himself. De Angelis came to be such a consistent hitter that the coach played him in the outfield when he wasn't on the mound.

With the appointment of De Angelis, Director Farrington also announced the addition of two baseball games to the spring schedule, against Maryland, cancellation of the diamond contest with Harvard for tomorrow and also the cancellation of the Cornell tennis matches, which were to have been held yesterday. Bad weather was given as the reason for calling off the Harvard and Cornell contests. Neither school is making its regular Southern trip.

Eagles Beat Sea Gulls, 7-6, Near Crown

By the Associated Press

Atlantic City, March 31.—Though minus two of their outstanding players, the Washington Eagles tonight clinched at least a tie for the United States Amateur Hockey Association title by defeating the Atlantic City Sea Gulls, 7-6, in a "sudden death" overtime period. The score was tied, 5-5, at the end of regulation time.

Odie Hallowell fired the winning marker at 3:28 of the session after the teams had each scored once in the first overtime period of 10 minutes.

The victory enabled Washington to end its season with a record of six victories and two losses in the playoff series. Only the New York Rovers have a chance to tie the Eagles for the title. If that should happen, the crown would be decided upon total number of points scored.

Carrasquel And Hudson Show Form

Cincinnati Is Held To 5 Hits; Nats Get 9 and Lead Throughout Game

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Orlando, Fla., March 31.—March and the Cincinnati Reds went out like lambs this beautiful afternoon with blonde Sid Hudson and black-haired Alex Carrasquel pitching five-hit ball for the Nats. Washington won, 4 to 2. It was a soft touch for the Nats.

The Reds were in the ball game only briefly. They got the help of an error and stirred up two runs in the fifth inning to cut the Nats' lead to 3-2 at that point, but thereafter they were exceedingly lamblike. Hudson and Carrasquel held 'em to one hit after the fifth.

And so the Nats brought their two-game losing streak to a halt on another clever pitching performance. Hudson was in trouble only in that fifth inning and at the end of a seven-inning turn had given up only four hits. The first man to face Carrasquel in the eighth, Gee Walker, singled, but they couldn't get to first base against the Venezuelan thereafter. He struck out one batter in each of the last two innings.

Nats Get 9 Hits

The Nats were not exactly a power club themselves, getting only nine hits off the venerable rookie right hander, Ray Starr, and fast baller Johnny Vander Meer, who pitched the last two innings. But they had the help of three errors by the Reds' infield and a couple of misplays that were generously scored as hits.

Washington scored a cheap first-inning run after George Case beat out a hit to Shortstop Eddie Joost, and took second on an overthrow to first base. Ortiz also beat out a hit to the unhappy Joost and when Starr threw wild past first base in an attempt to pick Ortiz off, Case ambled home from third.

Frank Croucher, returning to the Nats' lineup, sore arm and all, was the hero of a two-run uprising against Starr in the second inning. After Repass drew a walk, Croucher bashed a long double to right field. Hudson himself, personally, singled to left and Repass scored. Croucher got home with the second run of the inning when Catcher Lamanno dropped Gee Walker's throw to the plate on a close play.

Croucher Bobbles Grounder

Matters rocked along at 3-0 until the fifth when Croucher set up a pair of unearned runs for the Reds by bobbling Starr's grounder, Joost followed with a double to left, Lonnie Frey singled to center and a bit later Walker's long fly moved Joost home with the second run.

Big Robert Ortiz knocked the Nats' fourth run home, in the seventh inning. Starr walked Croucher, Hudson sacrificed, Case flied out and then Ortiz swatted a single to left that got Croucher home.

The Nats missed out on at least one more run when, in the eighth, after Vander Meer had walked two batters, Mickey Vernon smashed a line drive toward left field only to see Third Baseman Haas spear it with a fancy leap. . . . Croucher got back into the Washington lineup, but he was under instructions not to attempt any double-play throws and risk further hurt to his sore arm. . . . Bruce Campbell replaced Mickey Vernon in the clean-up spot in the Washington batting order, and it may be significant. . . . Again it may not. . . . Carrasquel was charged with a balk in the eighth inning, but it was rank injustice . . . Tomorrow the Nats play the Orlando Air Base team, which features Hank Greenberg at first base. . . . Greenberg is on loan from Mac-Dill Field, near Tampa. . . . It was Hank Gowdy day at Tinker Field today. . . . The Reds' coach, who was the first big league player to enlist in World War I, was presented with a life membership certificate of the Rainbow Division in a pregame ceremony at home plate.

Dodgers Again Stop Yanks, 4-3, on Rookie's 'Clutch' Single

Herman's Two-Bagger Ties Score

Brooklyn Takes 2d Straight Edge Over Weak-Hitting N. Y.; Gordon Shines

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 31 (AP).—Billy Herman, Brooklyn infielder, who won yesterday's baseball game with his first hit in 22 trips to the plate, crashed out a ninth-inning double today that enabled the Dodgers to tie the New York Yankees and go on from there for a 4-to-3 triumph.

It was the second straight victory for the Dodgers over the Yankees who defeated them in the 1941 world series four games out of five.

Herman's blow sent Dixie Walker home with the equalizer and Catcher Mickey Owen raced to third. He stayed there while Peewee Reese was walked to fill the bases and then Les Burge, recruit first baseman from Montreal, hit for Bob Chipman and laced a single over Tom Henrich's head.

The Yankees, their hitting still held in check, were kept in the ball game by the spectacular fielding of Phil Rizzuto and Joe Gordon, who combined for four double plays. It was Gordon's single down the third base line with the sacks loaded that brought home two Yank runs in the fourth.

Rinaldo (Rugger) Ardizoia, right-hand hurler, was returned to Kansas City of the American Association, and Milo Candini, another orthodox moundsman, was shipped to Newark. Both clubs are members of the Yank farm system.

Hattiesburg, Miss., March 31 (AP).—Jeff Heath's two home runs wiped out a lot of good pitching by Dave Koslo today and the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Giants for the fourth time in five meetings, 3 to 2, in ten innings.

Heath's two blows were the only Indian scores until Manager Lou Boudreau singled Clint Brown home with the winning run in the extra frame. Approximately 3000 soldiers saw the game.

Browns Win in 9th

Lakeland, Fla., March 31 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns scored two runs in the ninth off Charley Fuchs, Detroit's leading rookie hurler, to beat the Tigers today, 5 to 4.

The Browns nicked Veteran Tommy Bridges for four doubles and two singles in the first four innings and only the backing of two Tiger double plays held the St. Louisans to three runs. Roy Henshaw, who took over in the fifth, didn't allow a Brownie to get on base in four frames.

Chet Laabs walked to open the ninth, advanced on Walt Judnich's single and scored on an infield out and then a wild pitch and a long fly brought Judnich home with the winning run.

Phils Win, 5-4

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 31 (AP).—The National League Phils pushed across a run in the thirteenth inning to defeat the Rochester nine of the International League, 5-4, here today.

Nick Etten walked to open the thirteenth. Ken Northey singled to advance Etten to second and Catcher Ben Warren slashed another one-bagger to right field to score Etten with the winning run.

Rochester tallied all of its runs off Sam Mahem in the fifth. Mahem issued three walks in succession and then singles by Jim Ripple and Harry Davis and Dain Clay's long fly to center accounted for the runs.

Cubs Swamp A's

Los Angeles, Calif., March 31.—The Chicago Cubs landed on Bill Beckman for eight runs in the first two innings today and wound up with a 15-to-4 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Lou Stringer homered for the Cubs with two on base in the opening inning and Bill Nicholson came through with a similar clout with another pair on base in the fifth. Johnny Wallaesa, of the A's, also hit for the circuit.

The game closed the Coast exhibition schedule for both teams. They meet tomorrow at Tucson, Ariz.

Anacostia Nine, Confident of Beating Eastern, Has Fair Prospects for Coming School Race

By Bill Burnett

After several years of predicting big things for his teams at Anacostia High, then seeing those teams wind up on the short end, Coach Rolland Lund is getting wise. His comment for the start of the 1942 baseball season is a simple:

"We don't expect to win all our games. As a matter of fact, we are confident of winning only one—that with Eastern."

Further investigation of the Anacostia diamond situation, however, reveals the Indians aren't quite so bad off after all. The business about Eastern is definitely a dirty crack, part of a fine feud which has grown up between Lund and Eastern's Coach Charley Guyon.

Play Eastern First

Six lettermen and a "dark horse" are out for the Indian nine, scheduled to start interhigh action against Eastern April 17. That makes it as strong or stronger than any other public school squad, with the exception of Western. And the quality of its returning stars is no mean matter, either.

John Penn and Elmer Leukhardt, both three-letter figures, head the list. Both pitch, though Penn specializes in mound work. Leukhardt, All-Metropolitan selection last year, in addition to pitching, can play shortstop, first base or left field with equal ease, if you can imagine that.

Then there's slender Jimmy Flaherty, the only southpaw on the squad, who will probably inherit the first base job; Bob Nolte, a clever second baseman; Paul Blaine, at third, and Jimmy Henry out in right field.

These veterans may be helped considerably by another player Coach Lund is keeping very secret. He won't talk about him, nor allow spectators near his workouts. But the word is that he pitches a terrific fast ball, stands 6-feet-4 and weighs over 200, and is a transfer from Pennsylvania, though not necessarily in that order.

Some Regulars

At the moment, supposing that the vari-talented Leukhardt takes over left field, the remainder of the first-stringers appear to be Charley Kuhl, a senior transfer from Roosevelt, in center field; Johnny Wahler, a tiny soph slugger, at short, and Robert Nelson, another three-letter man, behind the plate.

The happy part about the whole thing is that almost every player mentioned can hit—not slightly but at least fairly well. Leukhardt, Nolte and Kuhl are the slugging leaders at present.

Md. U. Opens Tomorrow in Spring Sports

By the Associated Press

College Park, Md., March 31.—The University of Maryland will initiate its spring season in three sports this week, with the lacrosse team entertaining Harvard Thursday and the baseball squad starting a six-game trip the same day by invading Richmond University.

The track team will go to Blacksburg, Va., Saturday to oppose Virginia Tech.

Third baseman Roscoe Whipp, First-sacker Mearle Duvall and Second-baseman Jim Wharton—all lettermen—are expected to start in the infield Thursday against Richmond. Newcomers Clark Hudak, at shortstop, and Jack Brenner, catcher, will complete the starting infield.

The Outfield

Letterman Max Hunt, Bob Smith and Lefthander Bill Fulton will be counted on for the bulk of the hurling, assisted by Joe Hoopengardner, an infield reserve in 1941.

Goalie Jim Forbes, Bob Fetters, point; Bill McGregor, second attack; Milton Vandenberg, second attack, and Ray Greiecki, out home are the veterans listed on the starting lacrosse team.

Ralph Burlin, first defense, was a reserve last year, but has made great strides and is being started this season. Sophomores Jack Dittmar, cover point; John Hoyert, second defense, and Bill Tarbert, center, also will be included on the first team.

Warren Eierman, 200-pound defense man and the biggest player on the squad, is on the injured list.

The track outfit numbers seven veterans on its roster. Outstanding among them are Bob Condon, 880-yard conference indoor champ and Jack Gilmore, conference high jump champion. The others are Sprinter Lou Chacos, Bob Montgomery and Randy Cronin, 440 runners; Stanley Kohn, 880-yarder and Luther Conrad, shot and discus thrower.

Carlos Englar, a sophomore high jumper and pole vaulter, has vaulted 12 feet both indoors and out, and should go even higher this season. Heck Horn, a newcomer this year, has a record of 148 feet 2 inches in the discus and has tossed it farther in practice.

Small Hunter Class Sought For Chevy Chase Horse Show

Flooded Meadows May Delay Event Again; Md. Riding Club's Grounds to Be Ready

By Anne Hagner

Whether the Chevy Chase Horse Show will be able to stem the spring thaw in time to have its postponed classes Sunday remains a moot question—but even if the flooded meadowlands of the East-West Highway show grounds necessitates further postponement, there is likely to be an added starter in the list of events when they finally take place.

Local horsey folk (to a man, owners of horses under 16 hands high) have been spreading subtle propaganda to committee heads to put on an additional class for hunters—you guessed it; hunters under 16 hands. At the most recent census, Chairman Donald Bradley and Secretary Gardner Hallman were weakening visibly under the barrage of phone calls and pleading voices.

So, if time permits, the odds are that the class will be sandwiched in and run on a sweepstakes basis, with percentages going to winners.

3-Year-olds Get Chance

Chief instigators of the idea are owners of 3-year-olds in need of plenty of early schooling. A limitation on heights of entrants would give them an excellent chance to compete without the threat of older, more experienced conformation horses outshining them.

Meanwhile, indications from College Park are that the show grounds there will have dried sufficiently by Saturday to hold the University of Maryland Riding Club horse show as scheduled, with proceeds going to campus war charities.

Particular emphasis is being placed on the working hunters' outing, for which the trophy will be presented by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university.

The third show on the local schedule, the Jolea Farms event at Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Cotter's home near Travilah, Md., on April 12, offers the most imposing array of silver seen here in several seasons. Proceeds of the show go to the Montgomery County branch of the Red Cross Motor Corps, and trophy donations have been unusually large.

Long List of Donors

Donors include Mrs. David J. Dunnigan, Becker's Leather Goods, Dr. William J. Collins, Dr. and Mrs. Dexter M. Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vogel, jr., Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Phelan, Mr. and Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, the Potomac Hunt, which offers a bowl to the winner of the working hunter class; Mr. and Mrs. Cotter, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lawson King, and Boyd Keys, master of foxhounds at the Manor Hunt.

Eugene A. Smith will present a defense bond to the winner of the jumper championship and his brother, Ernest L. Smith, will make the game award to the hunter tricolor winner. Margaret Cotter's Rocksie will give a trophy to the knockdown-and-out-victor — "out of his spending money," says his owner. The bay gelding is not exatcly penniless, having earned $1400 at the National Horse Show in November to move into the upper brackets.

Shirley 'Guns' Deal Faculty Five Into 21-18 Victory

In a clash marked by more spirit than ability, the Alice Deal Junior High faculty basketball team clinched its series with the Anacostia High faculty last night, winning its second triumph in three games, 21-18, at Wilson gym.

Though his teammates accused him of being "shot hungry," Dallas Shirley local court official, managed for scoring honors for the winners with 14 points.

Metropolitan men, alert in the matter of dress, are not allowing Army officers to monopolize the military-type shoe. Just as in the last war they took over the British Drape from officers overseas, so they are now borrowing the swagger ease of these seamless-front calfskin shoes. "APRIL FOOL NOTHING! I did buy a Defense Bond with home-made money!"

Honestly, it's a cinch to make money in your own home—plenty of money! Without the help of a printing press, either . . . but with the help of a Post Want Ad!

A three-line ad sold a baby carriage and mahogany double bed for Mrs. E. W. Callahan, 1622 Oak Street N.W.

An apartmentful of furniture was sold in two days through a Post Want Ad by Jacques Braunstein, 2000 F Street N.W.

A single 22-cent insertion sold a Philco radio for Mrs. C. W. Acheson, 1549 35th Street N.W.

Remember, with new goods growing scarcer, there's a vital need for used goods which you can help meet . . . through The Post. And you can help the drive for Victory, too, by buying a Defense Bond with the money you make! Why don't you try it—right now!

It pays to put a Want Ad in The Post

Battle Lark 2d, Beaten Five Lengths

Winner Pays $6.80; Silver Grail Third As Favorite Loses Again; 4308 Attend

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 31.—Billy O., son of Discovery bred by Alfred Vanderbilt but flying the silks of L. Murray, spotted five rivals of his age about eight lengths at the start and still was good enough to score a galloping victory in the Venetian Purse here today. Porter Roberts guided the improved colt past the wire five lengths clear of his nearest rival, Battle Lark. Silver Grail was third, two lengths behind.

The winner was a $6.80 for $2 shot and negotiated a mile and a sixteenth of slop and mud in 1:48 3-5. The event, which was for platers of the $2500-$2000 variety, saw Silver Grail handing favorite players their sixth setback in as many events decided. The attendance of 4308 was the smallest of the meeting.

Billy O. scored his first victory early this month at Hialeah in a maiden dash. A week ago, at this course, the colt ran for $1200 in a six furlong test and romped home by ten lengths. He jumped up the ladder today, running for $2500, and at that figure was claimed by Jake Freedman. The new owner gets a sharp horse which, today, was making his first start at a distance farther than six furlongs.

Silver Grail, Aunt Ellen and Battle Lark had turns at leading the field. Billy O., whose backers gave up when he was practicaly left at the post, began to pick up horses midway of the backstretch. He came around the field, gained command before entering the stretch, and continued to widen the gap to the end. He was top weight of the field and won as if he could have conceded his opposition considerably more weight than he was asked to.

Bless Me and Mates Arrive at Lexington

Lexington, Ky., March 31 (AP).—Nine horses belonging to Col. E. R. Bradley, including his Kentucky Derby eligible, Bless Me, arrived today from Florida.

Olin Gentry, manager of Idle Hour Farm, said the string apparently stood the trip well. Bless Me did not compete in Florida, but has been training well, Gentry added. The colt probably will make his season's debut at Keeneland next month.

Selections at Tropical Park.

Dear al:

While waiting for Bowie to open, a bunch of the boys must have been whooping it up, for one of them phoned to ask what I thought of Shut Out as a Kentucky Derby threat. Here's what Friend Frank Menke writes about that colt: "What a horse," the railbirds exclaimed, as Shut Out completed his 2-year-old debut at Delaware Park, last June, by turning 5½ furlongs in the sizzling time of 1:05 2-5. "He's the image of his dad, and he runs like his daddy ran—smoothly and powerfully," they added. Shut Out's sire was the immortal Equipoise, and his dam was Goose Egg, which name is somewhat synonymous with Shut Out in baseball circles. He was bred by the Greentree Stable, and is owned by it, with John M. Gaver as the trainer. In his second start last year, Shut Out ran away from a field of 10 opponents at Saratoga. Next out was the Saratoga Special, where he was blocked in the stretch, to finish second to Amphitheater, which was coupled with him in the wagering. He won his fourth start, beating his stablemate, Devil Diver, and a field of classy folks, including Requested, whereupon Shut Out was hailed as the potential 2-year-old champion of 1941. After which he never won again in 1941. His record for the year was 9 starts, 3 victories, 2 seconds, 1 third, three times out of the money, and earnings of $17,210. In the Hopeful, which was his fifth start, and where he ran coupled with Devil Diver and Amphitheater, he was a distant second to Devil Diver, with Amphitheater third in a race where there was more roughness than can be observed in a dozen football combats. Just how much Shut Out was involved is shown by the fact that Eddie Arcaro, his jockey, was suspended because if his tactics. At Belmont Park Shut Out was given two chances to redeem himself—and failed in both. He was out of the money in the Futurity Trial, and also in the Futurity. They moved him over to Empire, where he was a dismal third to Fair Call and Bright Willie at a mile and 70 yards. In the Pimlico Futurity he ended fourth in a race won by Contradiction, after which he was retired for the season. "He has demonstrated his speed," says Gaver. "His breeding says he can run all day. I'm hopeful that 1942 will prove it." Only one day to Bowie—if it doesn't snow.

BILL.

First race—BETTY LEON could be the right one in this dash for maiden juveniles. At any rate, I'm going to string along. NICE ENOUGH has speed and belongs close. TOWER LASS to take care of the others.

Second race—SNOWLINE may emerge from the maiden ranks in this test of 3-year-old nonwinners. BOUNCING has been bouncing around for a long time and is a threat. INFANT QUEEN will be a factor if in action.

Third race—RANGE DUST gets the best figure in this sprint. Needs only the right ride. PRETTY ROSE is a long shot and a wake-up possibility. TORCH GLEAM to take care of the others.

Fourth race—BUFFLEHEAD (Art Brown's namesake) is likely to take it all in this field. ELOOTO will like the track and will be close. WHITE HOPE to fill out the money bracket.

Fifth race—PERFECT RHYME likes the 1 mile and 70 yards and will be ready for the best. MORDECAI'S last was encouraging. ONE TIP for the minor award.

Sixth race—CURIOUS ROMAN probably will get a track that suits and make take it all in this company at fair odds. PUTITTHERE and MIXER to gain the place and show positions.

Seventh race—FORFEND promises to d a lot of running in this and I'm going to take my chances with this fit horse. SIR GIBSON and FRENCH TRAP seem to have something on the others.

Eighth race—DUNADE will find conditions that suit in the day's finale. MIGAL FAY'S last was brilliant. HANDIBOY belongs in the pay group.

Best bet—RANGE DUST.

Calumet Farm Derby Hopes On Sun Again

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Ky., March 31.—It's Sun Again as far as Calumet Farm is concerned for the 1942 Kentucky Derby, but Trainer Ben Jones is none too optimistic that the muscular son of Sun Teddy and Hug again will repeat Whirlaway's 1941 victory.

The Derby, May 2 at Churchill Downs, is still five weeks away and a lot of things can happen between now and then.

Musing about Sun Again's chances for the $75,000 classic, Jones said:

"At least he looks like a Derby winner and will make a show in the parade" to the post.

Sun Again suffered a minor leg ailment while on the West Coast, setting back his training schedule. He has run three-quarters in better than 1:14, but Jones isn't certain he will be ready for the bruising mile-and-a-quarter Derby run.

Sees a "Close Fit"

"It's going to be a close fit," commented the trainer, "but with a good break in the weather I believe we will get there. Sun Again goes in the Phoenix Handicap opening day with Whirlaway and probably again later in the Keeneland meeting. We'll know more about it after those competitive efforts."

As for the other Calumet Derby eligibles, Some Chance, the stable's No. 2 horse, hasn't trained quite up to expectations and Col. Teddy also is slow in rounding into form. Early 'N' Smart also has developed slowly and the filly, Mar-Kell, hasn't worked out the kinks from the long trip from the West Coast, where the Calumet string ran into the racing blackout.

Pharatheen, Wishbone and Yukon are coming along nicely, but all three are maidens and as Jones put it, "You don't win Derbies with maidens."

Bowie, Defrosted, Is Shipshape For Season Opening Tomorrow

Nominations Are Listed for Kindergarten And Southern Maryland $5000 Features

By Walter Haight

The weather man has promised to behave himself from here in so Bowie can stage its delayed opening of the 1942 Maryland racing season tomorrow. A strong sun went to work on the racing trip yesterday and accomplished a defrosting that assured a raceable course, but one that can't help being muddy for the first of the nine programs at the nearby Prince Georges County course. Track Superintendent Dick Pending has promised to do his best on the running surface, but I'm afraid his best will not be good enough in this case.

Except for the fact that a day has been clipped off the meeting (to be picked up probably in the fall), the show will go on as usual. The $5000 Rowe Memorial Handicap will be the opening feature as scheduled and will be placed in fifth position on the eight-race program. This test of six furlongs will bring another clash of E. R. Watkins' Clyde Tolson and Victor Emanuel's Omission. They have been assigned 123 and 122 pounds, respectivcely. In the same race last year Omission was the winner.

No New Features

Bowie, first with a lot of modern equipment in other years, will have no new features to offer simply because it has had at recent meetings the last word in devices that serve the public with good racing. These are the totalizator, the electric starting gate and the photo finish. Bowie, first to have the daily double in Maryland, will conduct the twin wager on the first and second races, as usual. Post time for the first event is 2 p. m.

Horses will be plentiful at the meeting. Not only are the stalls at Bowie filled, but there are many more horses than usual at Laurel and Pimlico, ready to be vanned to the Prince Georges track for their engagements. Many of these thoroughbreds have come East from California's now raceless area.

Despite an earlier opening of New York than usual, Bowie has drawn a good representation from horses who competed during the winter in Florida. In addition, the open winter hereabouts, at least open until last Sunday's little frigid joke, has served to help trainers to condition these thoroughbreds. I believe there will be many a winner from the ranks of those horses making their first starts of the year.

Nominations Listed

Nominations for the Rowe and Saturday's Bowie Handicap have been announced. Here are the lineups of eligibles for the $5000 added Bowie Kindergarten, annual test for 2-year-olds booked for next Wednesday, and the $5000 added Southern Maryland Handicap, closing day feature on Saturday, April 11:

BOWIE KINDERGARTEN—R. B. Archer's Little Bud, H. M. Babylon's Flying John, O. L. Bonifay's Lady Tennis and Little Hoops, Cary O. Boshamer's Ned's Roman, F. K. Atlantic City Is Awarded P.G.A. Tourney

By the Associated Press

Atlantic City, N. J., March 31.—The P. G. A. will hold its national championship at the Seaview Country Club, near here, May 25 to 31, city officials announced today.

Ed Dudley, of Augusta, Ga., president of the P. G. A., informed officials his organization's silver anniversary tournament probably would be the only national golf tourney in the United States this year.

Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., defending champion, is in the Army, stationed at Fort Monmouth, N. J., but efforts are being made to obtain a furlough for him for the competition.

Net profits of the tourney are to go to the Army and Navy war fund.

Greenway Alleys Officially Open

The Greenway Bowling Alleys, located in the new shopping center at Minnesota Avenue and East Capitol Street, will be officially opened tonight at 8 p. m. Special ceremonies will be in charge of Manager Julius Singer.

Welsh Retains His No. 1 Rating in D.C. Tennis

Mrs. Herbert Regains Her Top Ranking

Bensinger Takes Junior; Veteran Honors to Dole; Other Classes Listed

By Jack Munhall

The District of Columbia Tennis Association rankings are out again. This is merely another way of saying that Barney Welsh officially is the men's singles champion for the ninth straight year.

Otherwise, however, there are plenty of surprises and reversals, with seven new champions crowned. Foremost among these is winsome Willie O'Steen Herbert who regained the top spot in women's singles, displacing Margo Lee. Miss Lee dropped to second.

Welsh came back in doubles. With Hugh Lynch as his partner once again, the lanky Rockville barrister returned to the top. Last year, teamed with the now retired Dooley Mitchell, Welsh was fifth in doubles—his worst local ranking since he began his monopoly away back in 1933.

Trailing Welsh in the men's singles are Don Leavens, the steady Department of Agriculture employe; Lynch, a lawyer; Davie Johnsen, the unpredictable George Washington University medical school student, and Charley Clanning, an insurance salesman.

Bobby Bensinger, the freckle-faced red-headed kid who everybody says will be the next Barney Welsh hereabouts, continued his ascension by winning the junior crown. Though it is seldom done, Bobby'll probably retain it, too. He's entitled to another year in that age group, last before the unlimited division.

Conspicuously missing from the listings are such stars as Dick Murphy, Alphonso Smith, Frank Shore, Tom Mangan and Ed Mather in the men's singles and Mary Cootes Belin and Hazel Bishopp in the women's. Most of them didn't play in the required number of tournaments.

Rankings for veterans' singles were made for the first time and the No. 1 "oldster" is Commander W. N. Dole, U. S. N. He nosed out Strand Johnsen, the masseur with the fascinating accent, who also is known as the father of David Johnsen.

The name of Herbert Shenkin occupies the tenth slot in the men's singles, and this is a real surprise, inasmuch as this large gentleman with the awkward looking but effective service was playing around here for the first time.

The D. C. T. A. reelected all incumbent officers yesterday. They are Col. Carl Ristine, president; Hugh Lynch, vice president, and A. O. White, secretary-treasurer.

Incidentally, if you have a beef about the rankings, please address it to one of the following: Felix Silva, chairman; Eddie Becker, William Mehaffey, Louis I. Doyle and Chet Adair.

NET NOTES—The season opens up on every front just as soon as damage caused by the untimely snow has been repaired. . . . Edgemoor Club, almost strictly a tennis club, announces about a dozen vacancies in membership. . . . The Bethesda outfit lost quite a few habitues when the SEC packed up and left. . . . Now having a full-time professional for the first time, the club is looking to a big season. . . . The new pro is Harry Brinkerhoff, sr., whom Edgemoor lured away from Governmental employ as the pro out on the Rock Creek courts. . . . John McDermott, national sixth ranking men's player a couple of years ago, is reported in town. . . . Watch out Barney!

Bill Howard, who had the Navy rank of lieutenant last we heard of him, is said to be somewhere at sea . . . his old doubles partner, the ever young-looking Jimmy Farrin (also a lieutenant or better) is supposed to be at a nearby naval base. . . . Many of the local tennis guys are in the service . . . Col. Carl Ristine president of the District of Columbia Tennis Association, is on active duty with the Army here . . . Gil Hunt, you know, is a private at Fort Lee, and Buddy Adair a newly promoted corporal at Belvoir. . . . A. K. Tigrett, a past president of the D. C. T. A., is in Army service, and William Mehaffey, a member of the rankings committee for 1941, is a commander in the Navy . . . Art Simmons, veteran of many seasons of play in the public parks, is also in the Army, while Dick Murphy, one of the city's cleverest little singles performers, is a lieutenant in the Navy . . . Dick may not get in much tennis this year, for he's been working until 7 p. m.

Szabo-Fraley Winner Slated To Get Match With O'Toole

Promoter Joe Turner announced last night that Tommy O'Toole, the popular Irishman from Arizona, who discarded his boxing gloves for a wrestling career, and Cowboy Luttrall, the Texas "Riot Man," would be given serious consideration as a possible opponent for the winner of tomorrow night's title bout at Turner's Arena between Sandor Szabo, the National Wrestling Association titleholder, and Pat Fraley.

O'Toole, who made a big hit last week in beating Art LaGrand in 17 minutes with a series of flying tackles, has been booked for a 30-minute match against Fred (Legs) Grobmier, the Des Moines (Iowa) scissors king.

Luttrall is taking on LaGrand. He drew with Lou Plummer in a 30-minute bout last Thursday.

Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, will engage Gus Sonnenberg, former world's champion, in a semiwindup, while Sheriff Tom Hanley, the 320-pound Oklahoma blimp, will tackle Milo Steinborn.

Promoter Turner stated he was planning a big show for April 16, and that he would look over his talent tomorrow night to select the gent to meet the Szabo-Fraley victor. Luttrall has been gunning for a shot at Szabo ever since the Hungarian Adonis refused to meet him in St. Louis about six months ago.

"That's the one guy I can lick," the Cowboy told Turner.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Since the recent crack-down by Federal authorities on illegal netting in inland waters of Virginia, the commercial fishermen are now complaining that they do not know the exact location of the jurisdictional lines agreed upon last summer by the two fish commissions of Virginia: namely the commission of fisheries, and the commission of game and inland fisheries.

JACK BELL

According to the agreement between the two commissions, jurisdictional lines have been established at the following points, and all tidal waters above these points are considered inland waters in which all nets, except those used for the netting of minnows used for fishing bait, are prohibited:

Fairfax County: Big Hunting and Little Hunting Creeks, at their respective Mount Vernon Memorial Highway bridges; Dogue Creek at the mouth; Gunston Cove, including Pohick Bay and Accotink Bay, at the mouth of Gunston Cove, this being the boundary line between the States of Maryland and Virginia; Belmont Bay, including Kane's Creek, Masseys Creek, and Occoquan Creek at a straight line between Sandy Point and Deep Hole Point.

Prince William County—Neabsco, Powell, and Quantico Creeks, at their respective railroad bridges; Chopawamsic Creek at the mouth; Belmont Bay, including Kane's, Maseys, and Occoquan Creeks, at a straight line between Sandy Point and Deep Hole Point.

Stafford County—Rappahannock River at the railroad bridge at Fredericksburg; Potomac Creek at Squire's Wharf on the North Bank of Big Marsh; Aquia Creek at the railroad bridge; Chopawamsic and Accokeek Creeks at their respective mouths.

King George County—Upper Machodoc Creek, at the tomato factory at Oyster Shell Landing; Rosier Creek, at a line running from Stoney Point to Potomac Beach on the Westmoreland shore.

D. C. Colored Collegians in 46-44 Victory

In an uphill game, colored collegiate former stars of Howard, Union and Morgan defeated a picked team of former stars from Pennsylvania, Temple and Villa Nova, last night at Turner's Arena, 46-44.

Billy Woods, former all-Pennsylvania forward, led the way to an auspicious 10-4 start, before Willie Wynne and "Eggie" Parker came to life and tied the count at 15-all. But Bob Dorn, Temple star, and "Reds" Klotz added five baskets in quick succession, and the half ended, 25-18, with the Pennsylvanians in front.

This lead was dispelled early in the second half, Wynne accounting for eight points and "Soupy" Campbell, the Richmond lad, for four, to tie the count at 32-all. The colored collegians drew away, but were tied again at 42-all by the efforts of Klotz and Dorn. "Pickles" Frazier and "Skinny" Mack added their only points of the game to break the tie.

Blaine Rolls 465 Set and 170 Game

Rolling one of the highest sets ever posted at Silver Spring Bowling Alley, Lanny Blaine last night totaled an amazing 465 that blasted the all-time records of the American League and won for him the plaudits of the league members. Blaine had games of 170, also high for the night; 129 and 165 in his big effort, and his Diamond Appliance team had no difficulty in winning team honors after pinfalls of 618 and 1823, but could win but two from Arbaugh's Restaurant. Charley Mehler was next high with a 409 set count.

Gas Company's Net Decreases In February

The Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported net income of $263,368 in February, a drop of $32,141 as compared with the same month last year.

Operating revenues for the month were $1,313,756, up $188,887 as compared with last year, but operating expenses of $999,018 were $214,816 heavier.

For the first two months this year the gas company's net income totaled $472,374 compared with $514,680 for 1941. The reduction of $42,306 was attributed partly to increased taxes, the provision for which was about $117,000 heavier in the current year than in 1941. Operating expenses were $422,123 greater than in the first two months last year.

The report also showed gas sales of 2,126,060 M (thousands) cubic feet for February, compared with 1,770,417 M cubic feet last year. There were 179,693 meters in service on February 28, a 6.6 per cent increase over last year.

With publication of the gas company's figures for February, all four Washington utilities now have filed their statements for February with the Public Utilities Commission. Capital Transit was the only local utility which showed an increase in net income. The transit firm reported a 90 per cent gain in earnings over February last year. Potomac Electric Power reported a net income decline of $7778 while the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. displayed a $66,642 drop. Sharp increasese in operating expenses and taxes were general.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

New Peak in Clearings

Washington bank clearings in March spurted to $158,090,277, a new all-time record for that month and an increase of $21,105,721 compared with the same 1941 month. In addition to the business boom, income tax payments helped to swell the total.

Figures kept by George H. Bright, manager of the Washington Clearing House Association, show that aggregate clearings here in the first three months were $463,158,768, an increase of $75,415,332 over the same 1941 period. The three-month total also was a new record here.

Only three previous times in Washington's history have monthly clearings exceeded the $158,000,000 level. In January, 1942, the total was $166,815,884. The all-time record was $172,982,242 in December, 1941. In October, 1941, the figure was $167,930,954.

War Finances Discussed

More than 85 local accountants and their guests heard a panel discussion on "The Economics of Contemporary War Finance' at a dinner meeting Monday night in the Hay-Adams House.

Principal speakers at the session, which was sponsored by the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants, included the following members of the American University faculty: Dr. Fritz K. Mann, Dr. Paul F. Douglass, Dr. Egon Renshofen-Wertheimer and Dr. Adolph Drukar; also speaking were Dr. Oscar Zaglitz, Department of Agriculture; Dr. Roy Blough, director of Division of Tax Research.

John Stoy was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Railway Elevates Schardt

The Southern Railway System yesterday announced the promotion of Peter J. Schardt, assistant to the vice president, to the position of assistant vice president, in charge of mail and express traffic, with headquarters in Washington. Mr. Schardt entered the railway's employment on April 1, 1923.

Loans, Deposits Soar

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reported yesterday that on December 31, 1941, loans and deposits of the 13,427 insured commercial banks were the largest since the FDIC began gathering such statistics.

Loans amounted to $21,262,000,000, an increase of $2,864,000,000 or almost 16 per cent over December 31, 1940. Total deposits were $69,421,000,000, an increase of $5,951,000,000.

Program Committee Named

A. M. McLachlen, vice president and treasurer of the McLachlen Banking Corporation, has been appointed chairman of the program committee for the twenty-fourth convention of the D. C. Bankers Association, it was announced yesterday. The convention is to be held at the Columbia Country Club, May 25, 26 and 27. Francis G. Addison, jr., president of Securtiy Savings & Commercial Bank, has been appointed vice president. Other members of the committee are: Clarence F. Burton, Victor B. Deyber, Charles H. Doing, Robert V. Fleming, H. H. McKee, C. H. Pope, Frederick P. H. Siddons and Wilmer J. Waller.

Pension Plan Voted

Wilmington, Del., March 31 (AP).—Aviation Corporation stockholders approved today a pension and extra-compensation annuity plan for employers earning $4200 or more annually. Cost of the plan will be shared by the eligible employes, the corporation and its wholly owned subsidiary, the American Propeller Co.

Three Billion Dollars in Till As Record Tax Month Closes

By the Associated Press

The heaviest tax collection month in Treasury history closed last night with more than 3 billion dollars of income and excess profits taxes in the till.

The exact figure will not be known for several days but in the first 28 days of the month the "take" was $3,014,189,364. This was more than two and a half times the $1,197,680,363 collected in a similar period last year.

With the $413,974,819 of income and excess profits taxes collected in January and February, revenues from these sources for the first quarter of this year are expected to exceed $3,500,000,000. Last year the first quarter total was $1,374,381,096.

Although the March income and excess profits taxes smashed all records, they lagged behind expenditures. In the first 28 days of March, spending totaled $3,151,774,153, of which $2,544,207,059 was for defense.

However, with excise, social security and other types of Treasury income, aggregate revenues from all sources probably will exceed expenditures by a small amount for the month—a surplus which may not appear again in any month for the duration of the war.

Since the fiscal year began on July 1, 1941, revenues have totalled $8,944,107,427 and expenditures, $19,965,440,928, of which $15,060,228,942 was for defense.

Carriers' Net Up 15 Million In Two Months

Class I railroads in the first two months of 1942 had an estimated net income, after interest and rentals, of $49,700,000, or 15 million dollars more than for a similar period of last year, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

Net railway operating income, before interest and rentals, for January and February amounted to $135,450,263 compared with $120,156,285 for the same months in 1941.

Total operating revenues were $943,177,171, compared with $735,787,689, or an increase of 28.2 per cent, the association said. Operating expenses jumped from $524,559,078 to $676,434,315, or a 29 per cent increase.

In the 12 months ended February 28, 1942, the rate of returns to the carriers on property investment averaged 3.85 per cent, compared with 2.75 per cent for the previous year.

Estimated net income for February was $23,800,000, after interest and rentals, compared with 15 million dollars in February, 1941. Operating revenues were $462,486,015 compared with $358,413,499, while operating expenses totaled $327,653,379, compared with $255,590,196.

Gilman Resigns As Packard Head Due to Ill Health

Detroit, March 31 (AP).—Max M. Gilman, president of the Packard Motor Car Co., has resigned, effective tomorrow, because of ill health, Alvan Macauley, chairman of the board, announced today.

"The move was necessitated by ill health," said Macauley's statement. "A serious accident has hospitalized Mr. Gilman since last January. Faced with an even longer recuperation, he feels that the interests of the company will be better served by his present withdrawal, especially in view of the day and night operation currently demanded of the company in its 100 per cent production of war goods."

Gilman, a World War pilot in the United States Air Corps, had been with Packard since 1918, starting as a salesman in Brooklyn, N. Y., becoming truck sales manager in New York, and vice president of sales in the New York branch, and rising to general manager of the company in 1934. Gilman was named president in 1939 on the resignation of Macauley to become chairman of the board.

American-Hawaiian Steamship Co. reported for 1941 net profit of $2,817,947, after charges and a contingency reserve of $473,562, equal to $6.49 a share on the capital stock. This compared with 1940 profit of $3,431,169, including profit of $1,462,984 on sale of vessels, equal to $7.87 a share.

Mead Corporation, paper makers, reported for year ended December 27, 1941, net profit of $2,109,784, equal to $2.66 a share on the common stock, compared with $1,426,881, or $1.56 a share, in 1940.

Timken-Detroit Axle Co. reported for six months ended December 31 net income of $2,966,152, equal to $2.99 a share on the common stock, against $2,559,500, or $2.58 a share, in the comparable period a year ago.

Life Savers Corporation reported for 1941 net profit of $1,030,498, equal to $2.94 a share on the capital stock, compared with $1,016,876, or $2.90 a share in 1940.

Lone Star Cement Corporation reported 1941 consolidated net income of $4,104,535, equal to $4.33 a share of capital stock, compared with 1940 net income of $3,457,293, or $3.57.

SEC Orders Divorce Of Utility, Pipe Line

Philadelphia, March 31 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission today directed the Columbia subsidiary, the Columbia Oil & Gasoline Corporation, to sever the relationship of the Columbia Gas System from the 75 million dollar Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co.

At the same time, the SEC canceled the voting power of Panhandle's Eastern class B preferred stock and declared the "voting power now remains as a pure device to insure control" of Panhandle by the two corporations.

Seat Price Up $1000

New York, March 31 (AP).—Cost of a seat on the New York Stock Exchange was a little more expensive today than it was last week. Arrangements were made for sale of a seat at $18,000, or $1000 above the $17,000 a seat cost last week when the price reached a 45-year low.

Hearing Is Set On Pepco Plea For New Issue

A petition of the Potomac Electric Power Co. to issue and sell to the Washington Railway & Electric Co. 30,000 shares of common stock at $100 a share will be given a public hearing April 9 at 10 a. m.

The application was filed January 29 and brought from the PUC an order for an extensive investigation into the company's financing, particularly into the North American Co.'s control of the power company and its parent firm, the railway and electric company.

Nine specific questions are to be answered in the investigation, but because of Pepco's urgent plea for additional capital, the commission ordered yesterday an immediate hearing on only the first four of these questions. These are:

What would be the best method, or methods, of financing?

How the proposed method of financing, or other methods, would affect the company, the consumers and the investors.

Are there any special circumstances which would warrant the suspension of the competitive bidding rule? If the competitive bidding should be waived, would the sale of stock to the Washington Railway & Electric Co. constitute a stock dividend to the extent of its value in excess of $100 per share? If the competitive ruling is not waived, at what price should the Washington Railway exercise its preemptive right?

A hearing on the Washington Gas Light Co.'s request to issue 40,000 shares of $5 cumulative preferred stock—also with the competitive bidding ruling waived—was set for April 10 at 2 p. m.

The PUC ordered a hearing on the extension of the crosstown bus line, scheduled for April 7, postponed until April 16 to clear the calendar for the finance hearings.

Hupp Trusteeship Ended by Court

Detroit, March 31 (AP).—United States District Judge Frank A. Picard ordered the trusteeship of the Hupp Motor Corporation terminated today and announced creditors would receive 100 cents on the dollar immediately under a reorganization plan.

The Hupp plant is engaged in war production.

Socony Shows Heavy Losses In War Zones

By the Associated Press

New York, March 31.—The annual statement of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. today disclosed 1941 net earnings of $43,175,902, equal to $1.38 a share on the capital stock, compared with $36,409,055, or $1.17 a share, in 1940.

Regarding the company's interests in the Far East, represented by its 50 per cent ownership of the Standard-Vacuum Oil Co., John A. Brown, president, said:

"In February, 1942, the Standard-Vacuum Oil Co.'s refinery at Palembang, Sumatra, and its pipe line and oil wells tributary to that refinery were destroyed by the Netherlands Indies authorities to prevent the Japanese from utilizing these resources when they occupied Sumatra. The Standard-Vacuum also has suffered losses at distribution installations in the Philippines, the Hongkong area and the Singapore area."

As a result of write-offs and reserves, Brown said, the entire foreign position of Socony-Vacuum now is carried at a net figure of only $64,866,912 out of the company's total net worth of $626,509,609.

"If the company had written off its entire foreign investment," he added, "the remaining net asset value of the shares at the end of 1941 would have been $18.01 per share."

Brown said reduced civilian consumption of petroleum products would put the industry's operations out of balance, adding:

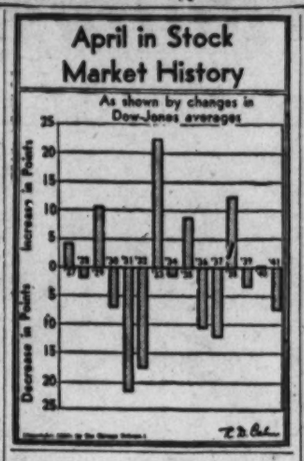
"We do not know the extent of future war demands but it is not expected that they will be sufficient to offset the smaller civilian consumption in a way to keep the industry in any usual economically balanced position."

Within the United States the company's sale of crude oil and products in 1941 amounted to 123,792,614 barrels, an increase of about 9 per cent over 1940.

S. P. R. Sugar to Abide By New Breakup Law

San Juan, March 31 (AP).—The South Puerto Rican Sugar Co., the largest producer on the island, has decdied to abide by the law limiting sugar corporations to ownership of 500 acres of land rather than contest it in the courts, it was learned today.

The company's lawyers are reported to be engaged in discussions with the land authority concerning the price and payment for its approximately 30,000 acres holdings.



Aluminum Co. Expansion Put At 215 Million

By the Associated Press

New York, March 31.—Aluminum Co. of America said in its annual report today that the company's self-financed expansion program to assist in meeting the national emergency was increased to approximately $215,000,000 during 1941.

"A large majority of these expanded facilities have been completed and put in operation," said the report, "and it is expected that all of them will be completed by the end of the calendar year."

The company's net income in 1941 was $40,882,134, equal to $22.90 a share. This compared with adjusted net income of $46,552,471 or $26.73 a share in 1940.

Explains Profit Drop

The decline in profits, the company said, resulted from increased taxes, rising costs and a 2-cent-a-pound reduction in the base price of aluminum ingot. Production and sales recorded sharp increases.

"Winning the war," said the report, "requires that the United States produce annually almost seven times as much aluminum as it produced in 1939. Toward that end Alcoa, in a little over a year, has more than doubled the production rate which required 50 years for it to attain. Facilities for fabricating most forms of the metal have already been doubled and facilities for certain forms have been increased to more than six times what they were when World War II started."

Builds Plants for U. S.

In addition to the company's own expansion program it is building plants for the Defense Plant Corporation "which will more than duplicate the capacity of the aluminum industry within the United States."

Arthur V. Davis, chairman of the Alcoa board, and Roy A. Hunt, president, wrote in the report that the company's production from its own plants and those it will lease from the Defense Plant Corporation will, within the coming year, be greater than the amount it is believed Germany and all her conquered countries can produce.

Dr. Zimmerli Made Gen. Aniline Official

New York, March 31 (AP).—The appointment of Dr. William Frederick Zimmerli as vice president of General Aniline & Film Corporation in charge of research and patents was announced today by Robert E. McConnell, president.

His appointment marked another step in the management reorganization of General Aniline, since the Federal Government took a hand in its affairs last December to eliminate the German interests which at one time controlled the company.

Sluggish Market Again Moves Slightly Lower; Composite Average Drops 2.8 Points in Month

New York, March 31.—The stock market entered March without much of a lion-like appearance and ended the month today with a good imitation of an ailing lamb.

The list tacked on an assortment of modest recoveries at the start of the day's proceedings but these failed to hold in most instances and declines of fractions to a point or so predominated at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .2 of a point at 34.2, a new low for this barometer since March 31, 1938. On the month the composite registered a net drop of 2.8 points, biggest for the year to date. Activity picked up a trifle over yesterday's most sluggish session since last May. Transfers totaled 279,690 shares, compared with 229,290 Monday.

Lack of inspiration in the war despatches, fears British negotiations with India might fail, and continued apprehension over taxes, earnings, dividends and labor, brokers said, contributed to the buying apathy.

In the share division American Airlines was off 1½ points to a new 1942 bottom. Prominent losers elsewhere included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem., Santa Fe, Great Northern, Chrysler, Texas Co., International Harvester, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, Anaconda, General Electric, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penny and Air Reduction.

Profits statements of leading corporations for 1941 were more or less ignored. Boeing Aircraft, for instance, was off ⅛, although the company reported net for last year of $5.65 a share against 34 cents in 1940 after heavy write-offs.

McIntyre Porcupine, one of the recently wavering gold stocks, came up at the last to emerge with a gain of 2 points. Mild improvement was retained by Nash-Kelvinator, Western Union, U. S. Rubber common and preferred, Allied chemical, Yellow Truck, Montgomery Ward, American Can and Caterpillar Tractor.

Scattered railway bonds held fairly well. Profit selling in recently buoyant commodities turned the tide here. Cotton was off 50 to 65 cents a bale after touching new 13-year peaks in the forenoon. At Chicago wheat fell 1 to 1¼ cents a bushel, corn was unchanged to down ⅜ and hogs 25 cents lower.

Heyden Chemical was up 2 in a slim curb. Fairchild Engine, Brewster Aero, N. J. Zinc and Humble Oil clung to lesser advances. Easier were American Gas, Gulf Oil, Lake Shore, Pennroad and Pantepec. The turnover here approximated 57,000 shares versus 47,000 yesterday.

Power Service Is Restored In Most Areas

Virtually complete restoration of its service was reported yesterday by the Potomac Electric Power Co., which said the weekend's wintry blast caused more damage to its facilities than any snowstorm in company history.

Late yesterday, all but 250 or 300 consumers had been brought back into service and these were expected to be within the fold by nightfall, Pepco officials said.

Acknowledging the "tolerance, understanding and fine spirit of cooperation" displayed by consumers, the utility said it had pressed into service every available employe and recruited additional labor in its effort to restore service as speedily as possible.

Because so many of the lines which were snapped by crashing trees carried high voltages, Pepco said it had only a limited number of skilled technical men to do an "immense amount of dangerous work" and many of these men worked as long as 36 hours at a stretch, went home for a few hours' sleep and then returned to the job at hand.

"The damage was not localized," Pepco said, "but seemed to be almost evenly distributed throughout the territory served by the company. The District was badly damaged as well as the territory from Oxon Hill to Upper Marlboro and continuing to Muirkirk, Laytonsville, Darnestown, Rockville, Gaithersburg and all intermediate and nearby Maryland suburbs of Washington."

Contract Bridge

Assume you hold the South cards of today's deal in a matchpoint duplicate game and the contract is six clubs. After West leads the heart jack and you look at dummy's cards, you realize that you must take all 13 tricks to win a good score, as Elis, Fishbein, Schenken, Mrs. Sobel and a few other players will probably make seven-odd. How would you go about it?

Today's Hand
Both Sides Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

NORTH: ♠ A Q 10 6 4 ♡ none ♢ 9 8 5 4 2 ♣ 10 9 8
WEST: ♠ 9 3 2 ♡ J 10 8 5 4 ♢ K 7 6 ♣ 3 2
EAST: ♠ K J 8 7 ♡ 9 7 6 3 2 ♢ Q J 3 ♣ 6
SOUTH: ♠ 5 ♡ A K Q ♢ A 10 ♣ A K Q J 7 5 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♢	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: J ♡

The Solution

Declarer makes his contract with an overtrick by establishing a discard through ruffing. He wins the opening lead in the closed hand, shifts to a low spade and goes up with dummy's ace, refusing the finesse. A small spade is returned and ruffed with one of South's club honors and the North hand is reentered when declarer leads a small trump.

Another small spade is trumped with a club honor and South again enters the board with a trump lead, exhausting the opponents of the suit. South for the third time ruffs a small spade with a trump honor, the last adverse spade falling from East, declarer then enters dummy with small trump to cash the thirteenth spade, on which he throws off the losing diamond ten from his hand. His two high hearts and the remaining trumps give him a total of 13 tricks.

Note that if declarer ruffs spades in his hand with small trumps rather than with honors, he blocks himself from dummy as he cannot enter the board enough times by leading clubs.

There is no need, according to radio's Arthur Godfrey, for the men of the Nation to join the House of David because of the announced rationing of razor blades to one a week.

As he points out on his CBS "Victory Begins at Home" program, which you hear over WJSV and the Columbia network at 11 a. m., one razor blade can easily last a week if given the loving care of a man determined to conquer 5 o'clock shadow.

There are many methods of increasing the longevity of razor blades, but Gregory suggests a simple, gadgetless method which he vouches for—having used it himself when necessity dictated.

"Take an ordinary, smooth-surfaced drinking glass," recommends Godfrey, "put your razor blade inside it and agitate it back and forth with your forefinger. If the blade has been used only once or twice, the honing against the hard surface of the glass will bring the edge back to a good shaving edge."

Godfrey, whose thrice-weekly CBS program is designed to give helpful advice to American consumers under war conditions, realizes there are mechanical devices employing this basic principle on the market, but he figures there's nothing so helpful as a water glass when Junior uses the mechanical honer as a toy.

Trinidad Citizens Favor Raises for Police, Firemen

The Trinidad Citizens Association last night indorsed the Schulte bill providing pay increases for police and firemen, urged a return to the 9 a. m. opening hour for senior and junior high schools, and, in a resolution which will be sent to the House and Senate Labor Committees, "deplored the unpatriotic campaign in many places, high and low, to discredit American labor."

The campaign, the resolution stated, was evidenced in the "fight against the 40-hour week."

The association, meeting in the Wheatley Shool, Montello Avenue and Neal Street Northeast, also lent its support to the new taxicab zoning plan recently proposed by Alfred Calvert, president of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association, and asked that representation be given the northeast section in the membership of the Washington Recreation Board.

Palmer Off to Britain To Study Housing

Charles F. Palmer, Defense Housing Coordinator for the last 18 months, left yesterday for London as head of a special mission named by President Roosevelt to study wartime housing in the British Isles.

Accompanying Palmer, whose recent work was completed by the merger of 16 Government housing agencies, were Eric H. Biddle, an observer who studied British public administration under air attacks, and William V. Reed, director of the standards division of the former Division of Defense Housing Coordination.

District Jews Begin Feast Of Passover

Ancient Seder rites today at sundown in Jewish homes will usher in the observance of Passover, commemorating the Jews' exodus from Egypt and their liberation from slavery. The feast is eight days long.

Reading of the Hagada and the eating of unleavened bread—matzoth—and bitter herbs will highlight the family services, symbolizing the hardships of bondage and the appreciation and obligations of freedom.

The youngest son of each family generally recites four questions concerning the meaning and spirit of Passover, and the family head relates the pilgrimage of the Israelites, led by Moses, to the promised land.

The Washington Hebrew Congregation will have a Seder feast tonight at 6:30 p. m. in the Temple at 822 Eighth Street Northwest, and services there tomorrow at 11 a. m. Orthdox Jews will hold services tomorrow and Friday mornings, generally at 8:30 a. m.

Officers and enlisted personnel of the Jewish faith will attend a Seder service tonight at 7 o'clock at the Willard Hotel. It will be conducted by Chaplain Aryeh Lev, of the chief chaplain's office.

Among the Army and Navy officials expected to attend the affair are Chaplains Alva R. Brasted, Fort Belvoir; J. R. McAllister, Fort Meade; Christian Westphalen, Bolling Field; Thomas M. Midura, Seventy-first Coast Artillery (AA), and Roy R. Marken, Marine Barracks, Quantico.

Joseph Bower, USO director for the Jewish Welfare Board in this area, is handling arrangements for the function. He may be reached at DEC-4572.

The Hebrew Travelers Sheltering Society has extended an invitation to all wayfarers of the Jewish faith to attend Passover services tonight and tomorrow night at 407 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. The Ladies' Auxiliary will be in charge of the reception.

Chaplain Calls For Loyalty To God, Nation

Chaplain Walter B. Zimmerman, of the Chief of Chaplain's office, yesterday called for a renewed loyalty to God and country.

He addressed Southeast churches' services at the Penn Theater, 650 Pennsylvania Avenue, one of many Holy Week programs held throughout the city.

"Loyalty to the church and State may be one and the same thing," the speaker told the noonday congregation, reminding that the right to worship God according to the dictates of one's own conscience is protected by the State.

Among basic elements in Christianity, he said, are the teaching of the law of the good life; a willingness to forgive when man has disobeyed the law, and a constant and regular leadership in the good life.

The chaplain was introduced by the Rev. Edward Gabler, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Navy Yard Parish. The Rev. Daniel W. Justice, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, will be today's speaker.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, yesterday continued his Holy Week messages at Epiphany Episcopal Church, where he will speak again today and tomorrow at 12 noon. The Rev Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, addressed Holy Week services of four downtown churches at First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest.

Holy Week services are being held daily through Thursday at 12:10 and 8 p. m. at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol Street, and also at 8 p. m. on Good Friday. The Washington Lutheran Ministerial Association will sponsor Good Friday three-hour services there from 12 to 3 p. m.

12 noon—Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, city-wide Methodist joint services.

12 noon—Memorial United Brethren Church, North Capitol and R Streets, services of Bloomingdale and Eckington area churches.

12 noon—Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G Street Northwest, services conducted by the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, rector.

12 noon—St. Dominic's, Sixth and E Streets Southwest, singing of The Passion by 12 Dominican friars.

12 noon—Immaculate Conception Church, Eighth and N Streets Northwest, three hours' agony.

12 noon—St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Tenth and N Streets Northwest, three hours' service.

12 noon—Washington Cathedral, three hours' service.

1 p. m.—Franklin Park, Fourteenth and K Streets Northwest, "Everybody's Good Friday Service," sponsored by Catholic Evidence Guild.

First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, Cecil B. DeMille's film, "King of Kings," at 10:30 a. m., 1:30, 4 and 8 p. m.

Employment Here Shows 1.7 Per Cent Gain

Total civil non-agricultural employment in the District increased 1.7 per cent from mid-January to mid-February, but declined slightly for the Nation as a whole, Secretary of Labor Perkins announced yesterday.

The mid-February total for Washington was 442,000, or 8000 more than in mid-January, while that of the entire country was 39,842,000, a figure 29,000 smaller than the mid-January total.

Federal, State and local government employes are included in the "nonagricultural" bracket, but military and naval personnel, people employed on WPA and NYA projects, and CCC enrollees are excluded.

The employment total of 442,000 reported for the District in mid-February compared with 366,000 people similarly listed at the same time last year—a gain of 20.7 per cent.

Two Million More Jobs

The national total, although less than in January, was 2,394,000 greater than in February a year ago.

Secretary Perkins said seasonal decreases in employment from January to February occurred in trade, contract construction, transportation, public utilities and mining, but were largely offset by increases in manufacturing and Federal, State and local government employment.

From February, 1941, to this year, she said, all groups showed employment increases except contract construction, which showed a drop of 46,000 workers because of the decrease in non-Federal construction.

The Secretary said 54,300 employes were added to the Federal executive servic during February, 9900 of whom were working within the District.

Factory Employment

Increased factory employment from January to February hiked the index for all manufacturing to 132.9 per cent of the 1923-25 average, and factory payrolls advanced 2 per cent over the month to 176.9 per cent of the 1923-25 average.

The factory employment index increase for the 12-month period ending in February was 12.8 per cent, and the increase in the factory payroll index for the same period was 39.5 per cent.

Secretary Perkins attributed the greater proportionate gains in payrolls than in employment to "the increase in working hours in many war industries to well above 48 hours per week, as well as the expansion of hours in other industries, overtime payments and wage rate increases."

Plasterer Claims His Union Barred Him From War Job

A charge that officers of a local plasterers' union have barred him from work on the new War Department building in Arlington—by "arbitrarily" refusing to recognize his union credentials—was brought to District Court yesterday by Garland Kirby, plasterer, of 464 Lebaum Street Southeast.

Asserting that the recognition was denied him despite his status as a union member in good standing, Kirby filed a $100,000 damage suit against his international union, one of its Washington locals, and two officers of the local.

He named as defendants the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishing International Association of the United States and Canada; Local No. 96 of the Assocation; Irwin Taylor, financial secretary of the local, and M. R. Stevens, the local's business manager.

His attorneys—George J. Boden, Walter M. Shea and John T. Bonner—said that the plasterer was a Washington resident of long standing, owned his home here, and had been for many years a member of the international union as well as its two D. C. locals, 96 and 841.

They said that recently he had been transferred briefly to the jurisdiction of a Baltimore local when he went to seek work in that city, obtaining accredited standing there by means of his international "traveling book."

When he failed to find work in Baltimore, Kirby charges, he returned to Washington to take a job with the McNulty Bros. Co. on the War Department project. He was ready to go to work, he alleges, when Taylor and Stevens refused to accept his traveling book and reclear his credentials for work here.

He quoted Taylor as saying that he "had orders not to accept it," and adds that no reason was given him for the refusal to let him go to work.

He claims that he is not only being barred from work on the Arlington job, but is being "denied the right to work on any job being constructed under union principles."

Regulars to Sponsor Carnival Appearance

THE YOUNGER CROWD FAVORS DELIBERATE CONTRASTS

It's all in keeping with war times . . . when the boys who are too young "to go" need something that reflects excitement and daring. The new "deliberate contrasts" are adventurous and daring . . . and they do satisfy the young fellow's quest for the exciting! That's why they're wearing coats that contrast with trousers, rough weaves that contrast with smooth weaves, plaids, checks and stripes that contrast boldly with solid colors . . . for the greater the contrast the more popular it will be!

ALL MERCHANDISE PROPERLY LABELED AS TO WOOL CONTENT.
